

WIDECOMBE-IN-THE-MOOR CHURCH

Widcombe-in-the-moor is one of the largest parishes in the County. Its present area is nearly 11,000 acres. It is situated about midway between Exeter and Plymouth, on the south-east of Dartmoor. The nearest railway stations are Ashburton, 6 1/2 miles distant, and Newton Abbot, on the Great Western Railway main line, 12 miles distant. Prior to the development of road traffic, Widcombe was one of the most secluded villages in the county. The thousands of motor-cars and the endless procession of charabancs which visit it during the summer months have led to many changes in what was, for centuries an enchanting collection of cottages surrounding the village church and some almshouses occupying the building which was at one time the Church House. The latter, in its original form, is stated to be coeval with the church tower. A document dated 1608 grants to John Baker the use of the Church House and Butte Parke for one year at a rent of twenty-four shillings. The tenant was to permit the parishioners "to keep ale once or twice a yere and to use the said house as they have been accustomed." Subsequently, it became a Poor House, and then a Church School, and latter by a County Council School. It is frequently referred to in the burial section of the register as the "poor house." In the Bishops' Transcripts for the year 1813 it is described as "the Church house," and in the register in several entries "Church House" has been altered to "Poor House." The remains of a number of Church Houses survive in Devon Villages, but none, as far as we know, is so architecturally interesting as that at Widcombe. The energy and patience of the present Vicar and Mrs. Wood, aided by subscriptions from residents and well-wishers of Widcombe, brought about its conversion in 1935 into a Village hall, a noteworthy return, more or less, to the purpose for which it was erected in the late fifteenth or early sixteenth century. A number of local Church Houses have become "village pubs."

The protection which the surrounding hills afford appears to be responsible for restricting modernity from spreading far beyond the village square, which actually covers little more than half an acre. From the centre of the village radiate several Dartmoor roads, which wind in steep curves "up over" the surrounding moorland.

Viewed from the heights of the hills and tors, the most prominent feature of the landscape is the tower of the village church which, were one ignorant of its present day surroundings, might well be the entre of the picturesque oasis which "Uncle Tom Cobleigh" rode into on his old grey mare when he visited Widcombe Fair a century or so ago.

to have been erected at the cost of these engaged in the once extensive mining industry of the district.

There are some indications of the existence of a much earlier church on this site, and this is supported by documentary evidence. The present building, however, is in the Perpendicular style of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Owing to its unusually large size it is generally referred to as the "Cathedral of the Moor." It is dedicated to St. Pancras. Like so many of its neighbors, it has suffered from injudicious restoration following periods of neglect. Prior to the restoration which took place about 1875, it is stated to have been in a deplorable condition. The upper part of the chancel screen has gone, but the lower panels remain; these contain thirty-one figures of saints and martyrs. There are other remains of interest to the ecclesiologist and the curious. The building is capable of seating many more worshippers than attend in these days.

The parish contains an unusual number of small farms which have for centuries been in the possession of true yeomen. The age old names by which these farms are known frequently crop up in the register and are interesting for the accuracy of their descriptive character.

At one time the district was the centre of considerable tin-mining activities, but it is difficult to conceive that such a large church was at any time necessary to accommodate the parishioners. Extensive although the acreage was, the population must always have been sparse, and it is doubtful if long distances ever encouraged church-going. We know, however, from the Register, now for the first time made; available for those associated with the parish, that from early times parishioners from the outlying districts brought their dead to Widcombe Church for interment. On the old track from Dartmeet to Wideconlhe is the remains of a large block of granite, now in two pieces, but formerly united. On this it was customary for bearers to rest the coffins of the dead who were brought from the district beyond the East and West Dart, and while they rested, the initials of many a dead friend, many of which remain to the present, were carved on the surface of this huge block. One wonders by what means such an enormous mass was placed in position-- or was it a natural outcrop? The surrounding cairns and circles seen in the neighborhood remind us that the ancient inhabitants were not unaccustomed to manipulating heavy weights.

In 1869 Robert Drymond, a well-known local estate agent and antiquary, purchased the manor of Dunstone and the appendant estate of Blackslade, where he died in 1888. In 1876 he published "Things New and Old," which is actually a history of Widecombe. He made careful study of the parish registers and we feel that he cannot do better than quote his observations:--

"The Widecombe registers, are all of older date than the majority of their kind; and, considering the dampness of the climate and place of deposit in the vestry, they are in a very fair state of preservation. The baptisms commence in 1570, the weddings in 1573, and the burials in 1560. There are frequent gaps, some of which extend over several years; and there are some very remarkable variations in the number of entries made in each year, especially in those relating to burials. These were often due to the ravages of epidemic disorders. Thus in 1581 there were but 7 funerals, while in the following year there were 39! Again, in 1589 there were 22 while in the next year the burials increased to 59, the maximum number that occurs in the register in any one year. The 49 burials in 1711 are accounted for by a note inserted in the book thus-- 'This yeare the small pock; rain'd very much'; 8 of these deaths occurred in January, 17 in February, and 8 in March. Of the 57 burials which took place in 1643 no less, than 12 occurred in the month of June.

So far as the testimony of the registers goes, the population of the parish would seem to have been greater than now in the Tudor and Stuart reigns; and there are indications of the presence of numerous 'tinnners' or miners, in the occurrence of names of Cornish origin. One Gabriel Apor, 'who was spoyled (mortally injured) in a tin worke,' was buried in 1617. In 1706 we find 'William Humphry, a tinner, buried ye 27 of June.' The first instance of the mention of the age of the deceased occurs in an entry of 1707-- 'Thomas Hamlyn of Cator buried ye 28th of December in the 88 yeare of his age. Curious little notes are occasionally interspersed among the entries. The year 1597 is noted as 'the Deer yere.' The register of burials for that year is wanting, but the famine does not appear to have diminished the number of marriages, nine of which were solemnized. The christening of an illegitimate child in 1572 has a special record, as follows-- 'Johan daughter of Nicholas Whyte (as Johan her mother sayeth) the which mother was the daughter of one Willm. Randell of Plymouthe discussed, the which Johan came to the house of Knyght ats Edmouds, in the forest of Dartmoore and there was delyvd of a child and the chid christined the first daye of September.' The burial of an unbaptized child in 1700 is entered thus:-- November the 30th. John Hine about that time had a child that did not live half an ower and it was pitt in too the earth about the second day of December.' In the corner of the page recording the christenings in 1725, the churchwarden gives vent to his exuberant loyalty thus: 'William Tremills, his hand and pen; God bless King George and all his men.'

An entry in the book referring to the induction of the Rev. George Lyde one of Prince's 'Worthies of Devon,' as the vicar who bravely conducted the service of the church through the memorable storm of October, 1638, is worthy of record here: 'The seventeenth date of March 1636 George Lyde clearck mr of arts was inducted into actual and real possession of the vicarage and church of Widecombe In the Moor with all rights and members after the readinge of the articles of the convocation hielden at London 1562 by Mr. Robert Ellis clerk nominated in the said George Lyde his induction in the presence of these whose names are subscribed.-- Rob. Ellis clerk, Andrew Tamlin, Clr; Laphorn,-- Hamlyn, Ralph Rouse.' This last witness was no doubt the Mr Rouse whose name is mentioned more than once in the narrative of the great storm. There are several entries in the registers relating to the children of George Lyde. The burial of Sarah, his wife, took place 17th May, 1672; and in the year following, is the entry-- 'George Lyde vicar of this parish was buried on the fower and twentieth of March.'

The civil marriages during the" Commonwealth are entered as taking place before justices of the peace, was usual during that period. Thomas Reynell, Rowland Whiddon, William Bastard and John Elford, esquires, occur as officiating magistrates, also Lawrence Adams and Christopher Farwell, mayors of Totnes. One somewhat special entry occurs in 1658 as follows;-- 'May 9th. An agreement of marriage between Michell Langworthy and Mary ffarwell was delivered unto me and was published three Lord's days following in the close of the morning exercise. June 9th Michell Langworthy and Mary ffarwell were married by George Lyde vicar.'

Among the many curious and in some cases obsolete, Christian names to be found in the register are, Fabian, Quintin or Quintyne, and Sydrach or Sadrach, all common amongst the male names of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. It was a favourite fancy of parents of this parish to have their boys christened Pancras, after the youthful patron saint of their church. Amongst the now rare female Christian names we find Sidwell, Ursula, Audrey, Pentecost, Siblighe or Sibley, Petronell, Bethia, Rogene (1573); of this last there are several varieties of spelling, as Ragenye (1595), Rogena (1613), Rogyney (1657), But perhaps the most remarkable is the lather common name of Rychord or Richoard, which one might hesitate to assign to a female without the ample proofs afforded in the register. The most conclusive of these proofs is the entry of the marriage of Richard Smerdon and Rychord Palke the xxxviii th of September 1588.' Amongst surnames the following are common-- Leyman, Hannaford, Windeatt, Tamlyn, Smerdon, French, Hext, Aptor, Langworthy, Caunter, Palk, and Hamlin. The Man or Mann family were the most prolific race of all. A few of the surnames, as Widecombe, Cator, and Blackslade, are obviously derived from the parish, or places within its limits. Many of these surnames will be recognized as occurring very frequently the parish and neighborhood at the present time; but, on the other hand the now common ones of Langdon and Hern do not appear until a comparatively recent date. '

The following notes appear in Volume IV, immediately after the 1812 baptismal entries:--

The Revnd. James Holman Mason died on the 19th January 1861, having been 45 years Vicar of the Parish of Widdecombe, and was buried at Okehampton his native Town. Aged 81 years.

"The word Chrizam, or chrisom, seems generally employed when a child had no name and therefore had not been baptised: but this was not its original or correct application. In earlier times a 'chrisomer' described a child whose head had received the consecrated ointment, or chrisome in baptism, and thenceforward wore on the spot a white cloth, called the chrisom e cloth until the 8th day: when on ye purification of the mother the cloth, or a money payment in lieu (the appointed fee was 4d.) was paid to the priest."

It is doubtful if any Parish Register, especially prior to 1711, when printed and numbered forms were first introduced, contains a complete record of all the ceremonies which took place. A note inserted in the marriage section of the Widecombe Register (see page 3) tells of missing entries between 1583 and 1588. No Baptism, are recorded in the register after 30th January, 1582, until the 26th March, 1600, and no burials after 6th March, 1596, until 23rd April, 1601, but as Bishops' Transcripts have survived for several of these years, their absence is probably due to the practices mentioned below of using loose sheets of parchment, some of which disappeared before they were bound into volumes. Omissions and variations are more particularly referred to in the footnotes which will be found in the transcripts as printed.

In this transcript we are concerned with eight books, covering the period, 1560--1837. The details of each volume are set out below:--

VOLUME I now consists of 153 parchment folios, the first 127 measuring 15 1/4 inches by ; 5 3/4 inches, and the last 26 (which appear to have been added to the volume subsequent to its being first bound up) 14 1/2 inches by 5 inches.

In 1929 the volume was again rebound in half brown niger leather, the covering and back of the earlier bindings having disappeared.

From the beginning to 1595 the whole of the entries are in the same handwriting, evidently copied from an earlier book (see note by transcriber at commencement of the 1597 Burials, p. 102). Later the entries are in many hands, some illiterate and difficult to decipher. In places the ink is very faded.

On the page following the 1669 Burials is entered the following: " 1709, James the son of James Hamlyn baptized the [blank]"; also the following burials, unfortunately without any indication of the year or years concerned.

"Grace Morgain buried ye 6th of Oct."

"John Langworthy buried ye 17th day of November."

and the names "John Wycott, Richard son of Richard Wycott." The 1604 Burials are signed: Willm. Hill, minister."

Historiography

The Hannaford Coat of Arms illustrated left was drawn by an heraldic artist from information officially recorded in ancient heraldic archives. Documentation for the Hannaford Coat of Arms design can be found in Burke's General Armory. Heraldic artists of old developed their own unique language to describe an individual Coat of Arms. In their language, the Arms (shield) is as follows:

"Sa. a star of eight rays ar.

When translated the Arms description is:

"Black; a silver star of eight rays."

Above the shield and helmet is the Crest which is described as:

"On a chapeau gu. turned up erm. a wivern of the first, wings expanded a."

A translation of the Crest description is:

"On a red hat, ermine brim, a red wyvern, silver wings expanded."

Family mottoes are believed to have originated as battle cries in medieval times.

The Motto recorded with the Hannaford Coat of Arms is:

"MEMORARE NOVISSIMA"

(An Unchangeable Mind)

Individual surnames originated for the purpose of more specific identification. The four primary sources for second names were: occupation, location, father's name and personal characteristics. The surname Hannaford appears to be locational in origin, and is believed to be associated with the English, meaning, "one who came from Handforth or Hanford (cock's ford)." The supplementary sheet included with this report is designed to give you more information to further your understanding of the origin of names. Different spellings of the same original surname are a common occurrence. Dictionaries of surnames indicate probable spelling variations. The most prominent variations of Hannaford are Hanford, Handforth and Handford.

Census records available disclose the fact there are approximately 350 heads of households in the United States with the old and distinguished Hannaford name. The United States Census Bureau estimates there are approximately 3.2 persons per household in America today which yields an approximate total of 1120 people in the United States carrying the Hannaford name. Although the figure seems relatively low, it does not signify the many important contributions that individuals bearing the Hannaford name have made to history.

No genealogical representation is intended or implied by this report and it does not represent individual lineage or your family tree.

THOMAS HANNAFORD

BAPTISMS:

Thomas s/o Henry 8 Nov 1713
Thomas s/o John & Elizabeth 27 May 1733 of Coxlake Family
Thomas s/o Robert & Susanna 28 Oct 1746

Thomas to Mary Harris (Mary Smerdon) 14 Aug 1757
Thomas to Rosamund White (Samuel White) 14 Feb 1762
Thomas to Mary Hannaford (John Hannaford) 25 Apr 1790

BURIALS:

Thomas age 68 21 Jul 1801

Ann 5 Sep 1790

From the above records I have concluded that Robert & Susanna were the parents of Thomas.

Thomas s/o Henry is probably too early to be ours.

Thomas s/o John & Elizabeth is probably the Thomas who married Mary Harris 14 Aug 1757. There is a burial for Mary Hannaford - 2 May 1761. Thomas then probably married Rosamund White - 14 Feb 1762. Thomas and Rosamund had a child the same year that our Robert was born, so we know this is not our Thomas

There is a burial for Rose Hannaford 1 Jan 1782, but the Thomas who married Mary Hannaford 25 Apr 1790 is probably the s/o Thomas and Rosamund who was born in 1763.

The Thomas who died in 1801 is probably the s/o John & Elizabeth. He was born in 1733 and would have been 68 in 1801.

No other burials were found for Thomas and Ann. The Ann who was buried 5 Sept 1790 is possibly the mother of our Robert.

Is it possible that records for Thomas Hannaford of Buckland are in Buckland-in-the-Moor Parish or is there a Buckland in Widecombe? I'm puzzled by not finding other baptisms for Thomas and Ann, also no burial for Thomas.

Dartmoor—spanning the East Dart. There are several of these 'clappers', all constructed in the same way: no arches, but huge granite boulders piled up to form supports for the granite slabs that bridge the gaps between the pillars. Controversy rages about their date, though the balance of archaeological opinion seems in favour of medieval rather than prehistoric construction. Long before the modern road was made a track ran from Tavistock to Moretonhampstead and Chagford, with branches to Ashburton and Widecombe, crossing the East Dart by the clapper and linking the old forest tenements. Both at Postbridge and Two Bridges some cultivation took place and the two hamlets developed first as staging posts and then as tourist centres. A mission chapel opened at Postbridge in 1869; school on weekdays and chapel on Sundays. Both here and at Huccaby, peat fires kept the worshippers warm, and when the Reverend Morris Fuller, who was rector of Lydford and preacher at these chapels, published his sermons—as parsons in those days were prompt to do—he hit upon a wholly appropriate title for his godly addresses: A Voice in the Wilderness.

Not far away, Powder Mills Farm, near another clapper, preserves the memory of the Dartmoor gunpowder factory, opened in 1844 by George Frean and employing a hundred men until Nobel invented dynamite. The fine grinding of the ingredients was performed in circular troughs through which huge water-powered stone wheels revolved. The farm buildings incorporate substantial relics of the mills and at the entrance stands a mortar, once used for testing the product.

The whole length of this road abounds in beauty and history. The Warren House Inn, two miles out of Postbridge, used to be on the other side of the road. It was then called 'Newhouse' and was one of the oldest buildings on the moor. Here 'fayther' got salted down. Disposing of a corpse was always a problem in bad weather, burial grounds being so far away. A traveller staying at 'Newhouse' was sufficiently curious to open a large chest in his bedroom and found 'fayther' there, well pickled in salt and awaiting Christian burial. The weather had been bad and the roads 'cledgey-like' for a fortnight since the old man died.

When the inn was renamed it commemorated the warren on which it stood. This was the house in which the warrener lived and the remains of the artificial burrows and of the old Vitifer Mine—once one of the richest tin mines on the moor—can still be seen. Even now, the light of the 'Warren House' is a welcome sight when the moor is dark and cold. How appropriate, then, the old rhyme that used to hang outside 'Newhouse':

John Roberts lives here,
Sells brandy and beer
Your spirits to cheer;
And should you want meat
To make up the treat,
There be rabbit to eat.

With the 'Warren House' at one end of a two-mile stretch and Postbridge's East Dart Hotel at the other, what more can the traveller want?

He will need the comforts of the 'East Dart' to give him courage to face the Hairy Hand that haunts the road between Postbridge and Two Bridges. I don't believe a word of it myself, but it was one of Dartmoor's best ghost stories, the phantom hand specializing in wrenching at motor-bike handlebars and rapping at caravan windows. Almost certainly, the camber of the road was bad and since that was put right the Hairy Hand has had rather a dull life. It's bound to crop up from time to time, like the Loch Ness monster. Lonely places cherish their 'Nessies'.

At Two Bridges, again at a two-mile interval, where the Ashburton-Tavistock road crosses the B3212, is situated the Dartmoor National Park Information Centre, housed in a caravan. It is open from April to September.

The Tavistock road runs off west and passes through Merrivale where there was once a toll gate. There's a pleasant pub, the Dartmoor Inn, a handful of cottages, some old and some newer, built to house the workers at the Tor Granite Quarries, famous recently for supplying the stone needed to repair old London Bridge when it was sold to the Americans. Merrivale was a popular place for anglers towards the end of the nineteenth century and A. B. Collier—the well known artist—told a good story about it. He was having a day's fishing there and happened to be in the Dartmoor Inn when an inquest was being held on an elderly man who had been drowned in the Walkham. (Inns were frequently used for in which remain, in spite of the efforts of the Victorians, a pulpit and screen dating from the early sixteenth century. The rood loft was 'sacrificed' at the time of the Commonwealth.

The Iron Age 'camp' on the Chase is a fine example of such earthworks, being as near perfectly circular as makes no difference. The superb wilderness of the moorland scenery, the romantic setting and history of Holne, the architectural delights of the Church House Inn, will all ensure the little place its fair share of summer visitors. In winter it is very quiet and certainly at its best. Then, when frost glistens on the Old Dole Stone in the churchyard and on the fantastic hollow yew, when hardly a sound can be heard, and the weight of the brooding moor can be felt—then visit Holne. Test your love of Dartmoor villages when blood is nipt and ways are foul. You will realize then how excellent a site Holne affords for its splendid Outward Bound School.

I have known Dartmoor connoisseurs give the palm to Buckland-in-the-Moor when selecting their favourite moorland village. This tiny place, seven hundred feet up, where, nearby, the East Webburn joins the West and the newly-married pair hurry to lose themselves in the Dart, is full of charm and colour—such harmonious hues of grey and brown—moorstone colours, moorland colours—and all the greens that nature can invent, which means many more than an artist can mix or a film capture.

Since the village received its name many an acre has been won from the moor and many a bare hill has been clothed with trees. Yet it is the blending of moorish wilderness and sylvan delight that, with its human additions of moorstone walls and thatched roofs, gives Buckland so distinctive a character. The little church of St Peter retains some of its twelfth-century work but is mainly fifteenth. Its rood screen is very highly praised. Yet, on the whole I delight to agree with a Dartmoor lover who called St Peter's "charming . . . and comfortable rather than awe-inspiring". It's the compositional effect of the village that is so impressive: that group of cottages by the church, one still a little dishevelled, a bit askew; and the woodland setting lower down, the tidy cots and the cascading stream.

Ponsworthy and Leusden are Buckland's near neighbours. Ponsworthy is a typical bridge settlement sitting astride the West Webburn. The original bridge was probably a clapper: the present one has a stone in it bearing the date 1666. What the village lacks in recorded history it supplements with legend. Though Widecombe's great storm did no damage here, the Devil himself passed through on that great day. He was riding a coal-black charger and struck fire from the stones as he went over the bridge! Then there was Joey Brown who, returning from the Forest Inn in Hexworthy after a merry evening, fell over some obstacle in a lane on the way home. Fortified with alcohol Joey felt brave enough to tackle anything! And there was no doubt in his mind that this ungainly shape which had crossed his path was the famous 'Black Dog' which haunts lanes all over the moor. Fearlessly he took off his scarf, tied it firmly round the animal's neck and led it back to the village with him where he shut it up in a stable for the night. Next morning, he gathered his friends together and told them of his bravery. He led them wondering to the stable and threw the door open proudly. Inside stood—Farmer Smerdon's old black sow, wearing Joey's scarf!

Well, though heroic deeds like Joey's are no longer in vogue, Ponsworthly is quite unspoilt. All the charm of an ancient farming settlement still remains. Ponsworthly is real. And its near neighbour, Leusden ('Leofwine's farm'), over nine hundred feet up, must share in the praise. Hamlet perhaps, rather than village, so we'll get it in under Ponsworthly's wing.

Take the A384 west for a mile or two and come to Poundsgate, a little granite village by the roadside, known to thousands now because of its camping and caravan site—and a marvellous base it is, too. Call at the charming old post office and, for old time's sake, at the Tavistock Inn, for here Old Nick called for his sizzling sup on the night he fetched Widecombe Jan away. The money he flung down to pay his score turned into a handful of dried leaves.

Then on, west still, but off the main road to Huccaby and Hexworthy. 'Crooked bend' they say Huccaby means. Look at the Dart here and it's not so unlikely a tale. It was one of the old Forest tenements and is to this day more notable for its surroundings than for its own pretensions. In fact, it makes none. 'Take me or leave me,' says Huccaby. Its chapel (1868-9) is tiny and dark, and Robert Burnand who once lived at Huccaby House pioneered a systematic inspection of hut circles and stone rows that set the

Widcombe-in-the-Moor is one of the largest parishes in the County. Its present area is nearly 11,000 acres. It is situated about midway between Exeter and Plymouth, on the south-east of Dartmoor. The nearest railway stations are Ashburton, 6½ miles distant, and Newton Abbot, on the Great Western Railway main line, 12 miles distant. Prior to the development of road traffic, Widcombe was one of the most secluded villages in the county. The thousands of motor-cars and the endless procession of charabancs which visit it during the summer months have led to many changes in what was, for centuries, an enchanting collection of cottages surrounding the village church and some almshouses occupying the building which was at one time the Church House. The latter, in its original form, is stated to be coeval with the church tower. A document dated 1608 grants to John Baker the use of the Church House and Butte Parke for one year at a rent of twenty-four shillings. The tenant was to permit the parishioners "to keep ale once or twice a yere and to use the said house as they have been accustomed." Subsequently it became a Poor House, and then a Church School, and latterly a County Council School. It is frequently referred to in the burial section of the register as the "poor house." In the Bishops' Transcripts for the year 1813 it is described as "the Church house," and in the register in several entries "Church House" has been altered to "Poor House." The remains of a number of Church Houses survive in Devon villages, but none, as far as we know, is so architecturally interesting as that at Widcombe. The energy and patience of the present Vicar and Mrs. Wood, aided by subscriptions from residents and well-wishers of Widcombe, brought about its conversion in 1935 into a village hall, a noteworthy return, more or less, to the purpose for which it was erected in the late fifteenth or early sixteenth century. A number of local Church Houses have become "village pubs."

The protection which the surrounding hills afford appears to be responsible for restricting modernity from spreading far beyond the village square, which actually covers little more than half an acre. From the centre of the village radiate several Dartmoor roads, which wind in steep curves "up over" the surrounding moorland. Viewed from the heights of the hills and tors, the most prominent feature of the landscape is the tower of the village church which, were one ignorant of its present-day surroundings, might well be the centre of the picturesque oasis which "Uncle Tom Cobleigh" rode into on his old grey mare when he visited Widcombe Fair a century or so ago.

to have been erected at the cost of those engaged in the once extensive mining industry of the district.

There are some indications of the existence of a much earlier church on this site, and this is supported by documentary evidence. The present building, however, is in the Perpendicular style of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Owing to its unusually large size it is generally referred to as the "Cathedral of the Moor." It is dedicated to St. Pancras. Like so many of its neighbours, it has suffered from injudicious restoration following periods of neglect. Prior to the restoration which took place about 1875, it is stated to have been in a deplorable condition. The upper part of the chancel screen has gone, but the lower panels remain; these contain thirty-one figures of saints and martyrs. There are other remains of interest to the ecclesiologist and the curious. The building is capable of seating many more worshippers than attend in these days.

The parish contains an unusual number of small farms which have for centuries been in the possession of true yeomen. The age-old names by which these farms are known frequently crop up in the register and are interesting for the accuracy of their descriptive character.

At one time the district was the centre of considerable tin-mining activities, but it is difficult to conceive that such a large church was at any time necessary to accommodate the parishioners. Extensive although the acreage was, the population must always have been sparse, and it is doubtful if long distances ever encouraged church-going. We know, however, from the Register, now for the first time made available for those associated with the parish, that from early times parishioners from the outlying districts brought their dead to Widecombe Church for interment. On the old track from Dartmeet to Widecombe is the remains of a large block of granite, now in two pieces, but formerly united. On this it was customary for bearers to rest the coffins of the dead who were brought from the district beyond the East and West Dart, and while they rested, the initials of many a dead friend, many of which remain to the present day, were carved on the surface of this huge block. One wonders by what means such an enormous mass was placed in position—or was it a natural outcrop? The surrounding cairns and circles seen in the neighbourhood remind us that the ancient inhabitants were not unaccustomed to manipulating heavy weights.

In 1869 Robert Dymond, a well-known local estate agent and antiquary, purchased the manor of Dunstone and the appendant estate of Blackslade, where he died in 1888. In 1876 he published "Things New and Old," which is actually a history of Widecombe. He made a careful study of the parish registers and we feel that we cannot do better than quote his observations:—

"The Widecombe Registers are all of older date than the majority of their kind; and, considering the dampness of the climate and place of deposit in the vestry, they are in a very fair state of preservation. The baptisms commence in 1570, the weddings in 1573, and the burials in 1560. There are frequent gaps, some of which extend over several years; and there are some very remarkable variations in the number of entries made in each year, especially in those relating to burials. These were often due to the ravages of epidemic disorders. Thus, in 1581 there were but 7 funerals, while in the following year there were 39! Again, in 1589 there were 22, while in the next year the burials increased to 59, the maximum number that occurs in the register in any one year. The 49 burials in 1711 are accounted for by a note inserted in the book thus—'This yeare the small poock rain'd very much'; 8 of these deaths occurred in January, 17 in February, and 8 in March. Of the 57 burials which took place in 1643, no less than 12 occurred in the month of June.

So far as the testimony of the registers goes, the population of the parish would seem to have been greater than now in the Tudor and Stuart reigns; and there are indications of the presence of numerous 'timners' or miners, in the occurrence of names of Cornish origin. One Gabriel Apton, 'who was spoyled (morally injured) in a tin worke,' was buried in 1617. In 1706 we find 'William Humphry, a timner, buried ye 27 of June.' The first instance of the mention of the age of the deceased occurs in an entry of 1707—'Thomas Hamlyn of Cator buried ye 28th of December in the 88 yeare of his age.' Curious little notes are occasionally interspersed among the entries. The year 1597 is noted as 'the Deer yere.' The register of burials for that year is wanting, but the famine does not appear to have diminished the number of marriages, nine of which were solemnized. The christening of an illegitimate child in 1572 has a special record, as follows—'Johan daughter of Nicholas Whyte (as Johan her mother sayeth) the which mother was the daughter of one Wilim. Randell of Plymouth dissesed, the which Johan came to the house of Knyght ats Edmonds, in the forest of Dartmoore and there was deliuyd of a child and the child christened the first daye of September.' The burial of an unbaptized child in 1700 is entered thus:—'November the 30th. John Hine about that time had a child born that did not live half an ower and it was ptt in too the earth about the second day of December.' In the corner of the page recording the christenings in 1725, the churchwarden gives vent to his exuberant loyalty thus: 'William Tremillis, his hand and pen; God bless King George and all his men.'

An entry in the book referring to the induction of the Rev. George Lyde, one of Prince's 'Worthies of Devon,' as the vicar who bravely conducted the service of the church through the memorable storm of October, 1638, is worthy of record here: 'The seventeenth daie of March 1636 George Lyde cleark m^r. of arts was inducted into actual and reall possession of the vicarage and church of Widecombe in the Moor with all his rights and members after the readinge of the articles of the convocation holden at London 1562 by Mr. Robert Ellis clerke nominated in the said George Lyde his induction in the p'sence of those whose names are subscribed.—Rob. Ellis clerk, Andrew Tamin, Chr. Laptiorn, — Hamlyn, Ralph Rouse.' This last witness was no doubt the Mr. Rouse whose name is mentioned more than once in the narrative of the great storm. There are several entries in the registers relating to the children of George Lyde. The burial of Sarah, his wife, took place 17th May, 1672; and in the year following is found the entry—'George Lyde vicar of this parish was buried on the tower and twentieth of March.'

The civil marriages during the Commonwealth are entered as taking place before justices of the peace, as was usual during that period. Thomas Keynell, Rowland Whiddon, William Bastard, and John Elford, esquires, occur as officiating magistrates; also Lawrence Adams and Christopher Farwell, mayors of Totnes. One somewhat special entry occurs in 1658 as follows:—'May 9th. An agreement of marriage between Michell Langworthy and Mary ffarwell was delivered unto me and was published three Lord's days following in the close of the morning exercise. June 9th Michell Langworthy and Mary ffarwell were married by George Lyde vicar.'

Among the many curious, and in some cases obsolete, Christian names to be found in the register are Fabian, Quintin or Quintyne, and Sydrach or Sadrach, all common amongst the male names of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. It was a favourite fancy with parents of this parish to have their boys christened Panaras, after the youthful patron saint of their church. Amongst the now rare female Christian names we find Sidwell, Ursula, Audrey, Pentecost, Sibblight or Sibley, Petronell, Bethia, Rogene (1573); of this last there are several varieties of spelling, as Regenye (1595), Rogena (1613), Regyne (1657). But perhaps the most remarkable is the rather common name of Ryehord or Richard, which one might hesitate to assign to a female without the ample proofs afforded in the register. The most conclusive of these proofs is the entry of the marriage of 'Ryehard Smerdon and Ryehord Palke the xxviiith of September 1588.' Amongst surnames the following are common—Leyman, Hannaford, Windcatt, Tamlyn, Smerdon, French, Hext, Aptor, Langworthy, Caunter, Palk, and Hamlin. The Man or Mann family were the most prolific race of all. A few of the surnames, as Widgecombe, Cator, and Blackslade, are obviously derived from the parish, or places within its limits. Many of these surnames will be recognized as occurring very frequently in the parish and neighbourhood at the present time; but, on the other hand, the now common ones of Langdon and Hern do not appear until a comparatively recent date."

The following notes appear in Volume IV, immediately after the 1812 baptismal entries:—

"The Revend. James Holman Maason died on the 19th January 1861, having been 45 years Vicar of the Parish of Widgecombe, and was buried at Okehampton his native Town. Aged 81 years.

"The word Chrism, or chrism, seems generally employed when a child had no name and therefore had not been baptised: but this was not its original or correct application. In earlier times a 'chrisoner' described a child whose head had received the consecrated ointment, or chrisme, in baptism, and thenceforward wore on the spot a white cloth, called the chrism cloth until the 8th day: when on ye purification of the mother, the cloth, or a money payment in lieu (the appointed fee was 4d.) was paid to the priest."

It is doubtful if any Parish Register, especially prior to 1711, when printed and numbered forms were first introduced, contains a complete record of all the ceremonies which took place. A note inserted in the marriage section of the Widgecombe Register (see page 3) tells of missing entries between 1583 and 1588. No Baptisms are recorded in the register after 30th January, 1582, until the 26th March, 1600, and no burials after 6th March, 1596, until 23rd April, 1601, but as Bishops' Transcripts have survived for several of these years, their absence is probably due to the practices mentioned below of using loose sheets of parchment, some of which disappeared before they were bound into volumes. Omissions and variations are more particularly referred to in the footnotes which will be found in the transcripts as printed.

In this transcript we are concerned with eight books, covering the period, 1560—1837. The details of each volume are set out below:—

VOLUME I now consists of 153 parchment folios, the first 127 measuring 15½ inches by 5½ inches, and the last 26 (which appear to have been added to the volume subsequent to its being first bound up) 14½ inches by 5 inches.

In 1929 the volume was again rebound in half brown niger leather, the covering and back of the earlier binding having disappeared.

It contains Baptisms 1570—1709, Marriages 1573—1707, and Burials 1560—1707.

From the beginning to 1596 the whole of the entries are in the same handwriting, evidently copied from an earlier book (see note by transcriber at commencement of the 1597 Burials, p. 102). Later the entries are in many hands, some illiterate and difficult to decipher. In places the ink is very faded.

On the page following the 1669 Burials is entered the following: "1709, James the son of James Hamlyn baptized the [blank]"; also the following burials, unfortunately without any indication of the year or years concerned:

"Grace Morgain buried ye 6th of Oct."

"John Langworthy buried ye 17th day of November."

On the page preceding the marriages for 1653 is written: "Richard Cook buried the late end of April 1717012."

There are several gaps in the register, some of which are probably due to the loss of sheets before they were bound together or perhaps at subsequent re-bindings. It appears to have been the practice when records were first kept to make the entries on loose sheets which were subsequently bound into book form.

VOLUME 2 measures 13½ inches by 7½ inches, and was rebound in dark brown buckram in June, 1936.

In the front of the book are two white paper fly-leaves, on the second of which is pasted a half-sheet of paper, contemporary with the rest of the register, bearing the following, in ink :—

“ Withycombe
from 1706—1762.
Contents of this Register
Baptisms 1707—1762
Marriages 1708—1753
Burials 1708—1762.”

Next follow 102 parchment pages all of which contain entries, with the exception of the last page which is covered with meaningless scribble, most likely attempts to get the ink to run off the pen before making an actual entry and equivalent to the shakings which in these days we often have to employ with some fountain pens.

VOLUME 3 measures 16½ inches by 10 inches, and was rebound in dark brown buckram in June, 1936.

from 1754 to 1786.”

Then follows a printed parchment title-page and 60 parchment pages, each ruled into 4 forms for marriage entries.

VOLUME 4 measures 13 inches by 8½ inches, is bound in rough brown calf and was repaired in June, 1937. The covers are blind tooled and the front one bears the following, in ink : “ No. 4. 1763.” On the spine are two red leather lettering pieces, the first bearing the words “ Widecombe Parish Register,” and the second “ Baptisms, Burials 1763—1812.”

This volume consists of 50 parchment folios, and contains Baptisms and Burials for the period 1763—1812.

VOLUME 5 is bound in rough brown calf, measures 14½ inches by 10 inches, and was repaired in June, 1937. Both covers have panels of blind tooling and written on the front one in ink are the words : “ No. 5. Withycombe in the Moor. From 1786 to [blank]. Registrar [sic] of Marriages.” On the spine are two red leather lettering pieces, the first inscribed “ Widecombe Parish Register,” and the second “ Marriages 1786—1812.”

The book consists of 142 pages, each bearing three printed marriage forms. Only 67 pages have been used ; the last form on the last page has been cut out. On the third fly-leaf at the front of the book is written : “ Tithe Days. First Tuesday in January and the first Tuesday in July. Withycombe in the Moor 1786 Marriage Register Book from 1786—1812.”

VOLUME 6 measures 15½ inches by 10½ inches. It was re-bound in half rough brown calf in June, 1937. On the spine are two red leather lettering pieces reading respectively “ Widecombe Parish Register ” and “ Baptisms 1812—1893.” The volume consists of 200 paper pages, each page having eight printed baptismal forms on it. It contains Baptisms for the period 1812—1893.

VOLUME 7 was also re-bound in half rough brown calf in June, 1937, and also has two red leather lettering pieces on the spine, the first marked “ Widecombe Parish Register,” and the second “ Marriages 1813—1837.”

It measures 15½ inches by 10½ inches, and consists of 200 paper pages, each page containing three printed marriage forms. Only pages 1 to 64 have been used ; these contain Marriages for the period 1813—1837. The others are blank. On a fly-leaf at the front of the book is written : “ Register of Marriages from 1813—1837.” On a fly-leaf at the end of the book is written : “ Widdicombe in the Moor Devon 25th October, 1850. We the undersigned were present at the first Fair, this day established in this Village, and dined with the Rev^d H. Mason, at the Vicarage House to celebrate the same as a Free Fair. John Tozer for Solomon Tozer agent for the Rev. T. Fry Lord of the Manor of Widecombe, Thomas Estcourt-Cresswell, Jno. German Morton, Chairman, James Woodley, Halselhaage—bought 34 sheep. John Sparke Amay [Amery?], Druid, Ashburton, Willm. White, Solicitor, Moreton-hampstead. Wm. A. Cockley [?], Solicitor, Ashburton, H. C. Creagh, Surveyor, Ashburton. Robt. Nosworthy-Ford, Manaton. Henry Hals Scagell, Farmer. John May, Yeoman, Moretonhampstead, W. B. German, Yeoman, Moreton [?], John Pearce, Butcher, Ashburton, John Coaker, Yeoman, Bellaford.”

VOLUME 8 is also bound in half rough brown calf, measures 15½ inches by 10½ inches, and has two similar red leather lettering pieces on the spine. It consists of 200 paper pages, each containing eight printed burial forms, covering the period 1812—1928.

The transcription now published does not extend beyond the year 1837.

The Bishops' Transcripts. By the courtesy of Mr. H. W. Michelmore, the Bishop's Registrar, we were permitted to compare the Bishops' Transcripts with the parish register. From 1597 onwards, the incumbent of each parish was required to send to the Bishop a copy of the entries made in the parish register during the previous twelve months. In the Society's Report for 1930 were included some details of those Bishops' Transcripts at Exeter which have survived and mention was made of the deplorable condition to which many of them have been reduced as the result of neglect, etc. The list printed below shows that Widecombe has suffered severely. The earliest Widecombe transcript is dated 1597, but from then onwards there are many gaps.

It is difficult to determine who kept the register and who made the Bishops' Transcripts. For instance, the christenings in 1724 are generally in a poor hand, which differs from the Bishops' Transcripts, and some of the entries in this year are in yet another hand.

The entry of the baptism of John, the son of Quintin Tremills, 31 May, is in the hand of an educated person, a good writer, whereas the majority of the other entries in this year are in the poor hand referred to above. In the Bishops' Transcripts the name Quintin is spelt "Quintane," but in the register itself it is spelt "Quintin." It would, therefore, appear that the person who wrote out the so-called Bishops' Transcripts did not even use the Register for the entries, but must have made up his return from some other source or from memory, or perhaps from notes kept by either the Parish Clerk or by the Incumbent.

But the value of these transcripts is considerable. They often assist in deciphering obscure or mutilated entries. Occasionally they supply additional information and sometimes include entries which are not in the original and thereby belie their pretence to be actual transcripts. The most conclusive evidence for this statement is provided in the case of the year 1813, for which two so-called transcripts exist, neither of which tallies exactly with the register and each differs in detail from the other.

Take for instance burials for the years 1597-1600, for which period the Register is void, but fortunately the transcripts fill in the gap. Sometimes such gaps have been deliberately caused by persons desirous of obliterating information for a nefarious reason. The evidence of the Bishops' Transcripts has been known to nullify such wickedness.

A study of the footnotes added to the printed copy of the register emphasises the great value of the Bishops' Transcripts and the need for taking care of those which have survived. Unfortunately, many of them are in a decayed and fragile state and in too many instances only fragments remain. A considerable number are so far gone that they disintegrate on being touched. They should all be copied, or at any rate the more dilapidated should receive immediate attention to prevent their ultimate total disappearance. Modern methods of photography, whereby photostats and other forms of reproduction are possible, might well be considered.

Below is a list of the Bishops' Transcripts for Widecombe which have survived; these have been collated with the original Register and important variations have

Orthography. It is, perhaps, hardly necessary to remind our readers that phonetic spelling, as met with in parish registers, is often so freely employed that names become almost unrecognisable. Consequently, when using a register for genealogical purposes, all possible variations of a name should be borne in mind. Such instances in this register do not appear to be particularly flagrant, but examples which we have noted can be mentioned. On page 123 the name Senell for St. Hill occurs, and on page 122 we have Hannar for Hanaford, and on page 176 Hannerer. On page 62 Thounson for Townsend, which is recorded as Tunsend on page 89. In 1758 (page 194) the name Wickel occurs in the Register—in the Bishops' Transcript we find Wycolt. The names Coker, Cocker, Coaker and Crocker are indiscriminately used for members of the same family. A careful scrutiny of the register would reveal many similar instances, which should warn the amateur genealogist of snags to be avoided. And here it might be as well again to remind pedigree makers to heavily discount the belief so tenaciously held by some families, that because they and their immediate forebears used a favourite form of spelling their name, all other forms must necessarily appertain to families with which they "have no connection." This conceit has been the cause of much trouble and waste of time. We recall with amusement and pity the case of an ardent searcher after ancestors who spent several years avoiding all the Michels because his family were Michels. At last he sorrowfully realised his mistake and had to retrace his tracks in order to pick up the numerous Michels whom he had left by the wayside.

Memorial Inscriptions. As Robert Dymond remarks in his "'Things New and Old' concerning the Parish of Widecombe-in-the-Moor" previously mentioned, the interior of Widecombe Church contains no monumental effigies and but few inscriptions. Three manuscript records of inscriptions in the church are known to us. The earliest record was made by James Davidson. Next comes the record by Dymond, and lastly that of Miss Beatrix Cresswell. For various reasons, such as different dates on which they were recorded, losses and additions, the three lists differ one from the other.

James Davidson, a well-known antiquary, lived at Axminster. He visited all the Devon churches and made notes of the monuments and inscriptions which he found within them. He was at Widecombe in 1847. After his death his manuscripts came into the possession of Joshua Brooking-Rowe, of Plympton, by whom they were bequeathed in 1908 to the Exeter City Library.

Miss Cresswell has also visited each Devon church at least twice. In 1926 she presented a copy of her notes to the Exeter City Library. They fill 24 volumes, and in addition to church inscriptions include a description of each parish and many genealogical details of the principal families.

The schedule of inscriptions printed below has been compiled from the three sources mentioned, augmented by a visit paid to the church in March of this year, which enabled us to revise the list and to include recent additions. The letters C : D : Dy : have been added to indicate the list in which the respective inscriptions are to be found.

"The Elford of Sheepstor (now Sheepstor) were probably as closely connected with Widecombe as any of our county families, and that this connection lasted in their case to a comparatively late period is testified by the extracts from the parish registers in another page. John Elford married four wives, viz., Elizabeth, a co-heiress of the ancient race of Coplestone, 2ndly, a sister of the first Sir John Northcote, 3rdly, Mary Gale. His last wife was probably a Wollocombe. The death of the third, a year after her marriage, is commemorated on a tablet in the north wall of the chancel, and the inscription is reproduced below as nearly as the form of modern type will allow. By substituting the letter v where u is employed, the reader will readily trace the sentiment intended to be conveyed, in spite of the obscurity of the composition. The anagram and chronogram were favourite conceits with our forefathers in their monumental inscriptions. The letters of the name Mary Elford form the words Fear my Lord. By taking out the larger capitals in the Latin sentence at the foot, and adding them together as Roman numerals, we find her age—25. The remaining large capitals will add up to 1642, the date of her death. Over the tablet is a sculptured shield, on which are quartered the arms of Elford and Scudamore, an heiress of which race had brought the Sheepstor property. Shields on either side of the tablet bear the arms of Elford and Gale respectively, and below is one displaying Elford impaled with Coplestone, Northcote, Gale and Wollocombe."

Davidson describes the heraldry on this tablet as below ; it is now very indistinct :—

Miss Cresswell says :—

18 Feb. 1641. Mr. John Elford and Mrs. Mary Gale.

No explanation seems forthcoming as to why this Crediton lady was buried here. John Elford of Sheepstor was a gentleman noted for his adventures during the Parliamentary wars and also for his matrimonial experiences. He was four times married, and in three instances erected elaborate and lamentable monuments to the deceased, with anagrams, chronograms, and coats of arms. There are five shields on this monument, the colouring gone, and charges becoming obscure ; they display :—

1. (at the top) Gules 3 stirrups or. Scudamore.

Regarding a floorstone previously in the Chancel, Dymond says : " In repairing the Chancel of this Church, in 1868, a tombstone was broken in pieces. It was of rotten slate, past preservation, and the fragments now lie in the churchyard against the east end of the church. Its curious inscription was fortunately copied by the Rev. P. Carlyon, then Vicar, and recorded by him on a page of the old register book as follows :—

Here lyeth Richard Langworthy of Lyztwill, Gent., he was buried the xviiith daye of July in the year of our Lord God 1617.

The man whose Bodye
Here doth lye
Began to live
When he did dye
Good both in life
And death he proved
And was of God
And man beloved
Now he lyveth
In heaven's joye
And never more
To feel annoye.

The prose portion of this inscription is cut in a border round the four sides of the stone, while the rhymes occupy the central part. The Langworthys of Lizwell appear to have been an offshoot of a family seated at Hatch Arundell. That they were persons of mark in this parish is manifest from the designation of ' Esquire ' or ' gentleman ' amongst the plain names of other feepees in the ancient parochial trust deeds, and from the shield of arms on their seals affixed to these documents."

Just inside the Tower Door are four large painted wooden tablets fixed close together and containing the following inscription. Davidson describes them as being " Against the north wall of the north aisle near the eastern end."

" It is of the Lords merces, that we are not consumed because his compassions fail not. Lam. III. 22.

The merciful and gracious Lord hath so done his marvellous works that they ought to be had in remembrance. Ps. CXI. 4.

In token of our thanks to God these tablets are erected
Who in a dreadful thunderstorm our persons here protected
Within this church of Widecombe 'mongst many fearful signs
The manner of it is declared in these ensuing lines
In sixteen hundred thirty eight October twenty first
On the Lord's day at afternoon when people were addrest
To their devotion in this church while singing here they were

A psalm distrusting nothing of the danger then so near
A crack of thunder suddenly with lightning hail and fire
Fell on the church and tower here and ran into the choir.
A sulphurous smell came with it and the tower strangely rent
The stones abroad into the air with violence were sent ;
Some broken small as dust or sand some whole as they came out
From of the building and here lay in places round about Men so perplex'd were they knew not one another's faces
They all or most were stupefied with that so strange a smell
Or other force whateere it was which at that time befell.
One man was struck dead two wounded so they died few hours after
No man could think on his son or mother mind her daughter.
One man was scorcht so that he liv'd but fourteen days and died Whose cloaths was very little burnt but many were beside
Were wounded scorcht and stupefied in that so strange a storm
Which who had seen would say 'twas hard for to preserve a worm
The different affection of people then were such
That touching some particulars we have omitted much
But what we have related here is truth in most men's mouths
Some had their skin all over scorcht yet no harm in their cloaths
One man had money in his purse which melted was in part
A key likewise which hung thereto and yet the purse no hurt
Save only some black holes so small as with a needle made Lightning some say no scabberd hurts but breaks and melts the blade
One man there was sat on the bier that stood fast by the wall
The bier was torn with stones that fell he had no harm at all
Not knowing how he thence came forth nor how ye bier was torn Thus in this doleful accident great numbers were forborne
Amongst the rest a little child which scarce knew good from ill
Was seen to walk amidst the church and yet preserved still
The greatest admiration was that most men should be free
Among so many dangers here which we did hear and see
The church within so filled was with timber stones and fire
That scarce a vacant place was seen in church or in the choir
Nor had we memory to strive from those things to be gone
Which would have been but work in vain all was so quickly done
The wit of man could not cast down so much from of the steeple
Upon the church's roof and not destroy the people
But He who rules both air and fire and other forces all Hath us preserv'd bless be his name in that most dreadful fall
If ever people had a cause to serve the Lord and pray
For judgement and deliverance then surely we are they
Which that we may perform we beg th' assistance of his grace
That we at last in heaven may have with him a dwelling place
All you that upon these lines of this so sad a story
Remember who hath you preserv'd ascribe unto his glory
The preservation of your lives who might have lost your breath

When others did if mercy had not stept 'twixt you and death
We hope that they were well prepar'd altho' we know not how
'Twas then with them its well with you if you are ready now.

Amos. IV. II. Ye were as a fire-brand pluck'd out of the burning.
1786. Peter and Silvester Mann, Churchwardens." ¹ [D., C.]

In addition to those persons already mentioned the Society desires to acknowledge its indebtedness to the Vicar of the Parish, the Rev. E. C. Wood, M.A., for permitting the Register to be published and for raising a substantial sum towards the cost of the printing.

CORRIGENDA ET ADDENDA.

p. 91. Footnote No. 1. See also footnote on page 139.

p. 153. Since the baptisms for the year 1733 were printed, an entry belonging to this year has been found on the verso of the page containing the 1708 records. It records the baptism of Mary, the daughter of Caleb and Rachel Cub; the day and month are not entered.

p. 140. On the page following the 1669 Burials in the original Register is written "1709 James the son of James Hamlyn baptised the "; "Grace Morgan buried ye 6th of Oct "; "John Langworthy buried ye 17th day of November." The Morgan and Langworthy entries are also entered in their proper order under 1709 but there is no other record of the burial of a James Hamlyn in 1709.

p. 196 et seq. The names enclosed within parentheses () are the names of the witnesses. Those printed within brackets [] from 1597 onwards are copied from the Bishops' Transcripts.

⁵ This entry does not appear in the Bishops' Transcripts, and in the next entry the surname of the bridegroom is given as Hannaford instead of French, but as Robert Hannaford appears in the entry of 29 Oct. this would appear to be a mistake. Many of the entries in the Bishops' Transcripts are carelessly made, and provide yet another instance that what purport to be Bishops' Transcripts often take the form of separate records, in some cases written up from memory and in others copied from rough notes.

The first of these is the Journal of the Proceedings of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, which is published annually in the month of May. It contains a full and complete account of all the proceedings of the Assembly, from the opening of the Session to the closing of the same. It is a most valuable and interesting work, and is highly recommended to all who are desirous of becoming acquainted with the internal history of the Church of Scotland.

NEW PREMISE APPEAL

From:
HRH Prince Michael of Kent
President of the Society of Genealogists

I was delighted to hear that larger premises have at last been found in which to house our magnificent collection of books and manuscripts. The search for new premises was close to the heart of my predecessor as President, Lord Mountbatten of Burma, and I am sure that he would have taken great pleasure and satisfaction from the exciting prospects now opening up for the Society.

Naturally the costs of the project are going to be considerable and I would ask each Member to contribute to this Appeal in one of the ways mentioned in this leaflet. I can promise that whatever you donate will be very gratefully received.

Michael

March, 1984

New premises for the Society

We moved from Bloomsbury to 37 Harrington Gardens thirty years ago. At that time there were 1,200 members and it seemed we had found a permanent home.

The freehold was purchased in 1968 but with an ever expanding library and membership we have quite outgrown the space available.

For some years we have sought larger premises and have now found a suitable freehold building and at the same time a purchaser for 37 Harrington Gardens.

Our new home at 14 Charterhouse Buildings, EC1M 7BA was built in 1968 and is a large, strong, open plan building of concrete-frame construction on four floors with good natural lighting.

Charterhouse Buildings is a quiet cul-de-sac, just outside the City boundary, half way between the Greater London Record Office and Guildhall Library, at the junction of Clerkenwell Road and Aldersgate Street. There are regular bus services and Barbican Underground Station is within easy walking distance.

The purchase will be completed at the end of March, 1984, when the necessary building work will start. The Library at 37 Harrington Gardens will close on Saturday, 7th July, at 6 p.m., and the new rooms will open on Wednesday, 1st August, 1984, at 10 a.m.

Refurbishment of 14 Charterhouse Buildings

As the new building was constructed as a still warehouse, considerable adaptation will be necessary to provide the facilities required for Society.

The two upper floors will house the Library with space for shelving in a logical order and within easy reach. A security system will be installed. There will be ample room for seating and for new acquisitions.

On the ground floor there will be better accommodation for staff and for the display and storage of publications. Our publishing and bookselling operations will be extended. An adequate microfilm and microfiche area will make open access to the films possible.

On the lower ground floor there will be a meeting hall for lectures and courses, a separate Members' Room, and additional general storage space.

The Cost

This is a large building with exciting possibilities for the Society's future development.

The sale of 37 Harrington Gardens and other reserves will go some way to provide improved facilities. But if we are to have the comfortable and modern library we require, we must have active financial support of all our Members.

We need to raise at least $225,000 to achieve all our aims.

ENGLAND'S ROMANTIC W

The wild beauty and cultivated pleasures of Devon's Dartmoor National Park

NTI WEST COUNTRY

Riders survey the stark moors and patchwork farms that mingle within Dartmoor.

In Buckland-in-the-Moor, a cluster of cottages with deeply thatched roofs seems to grow out of the landscape.

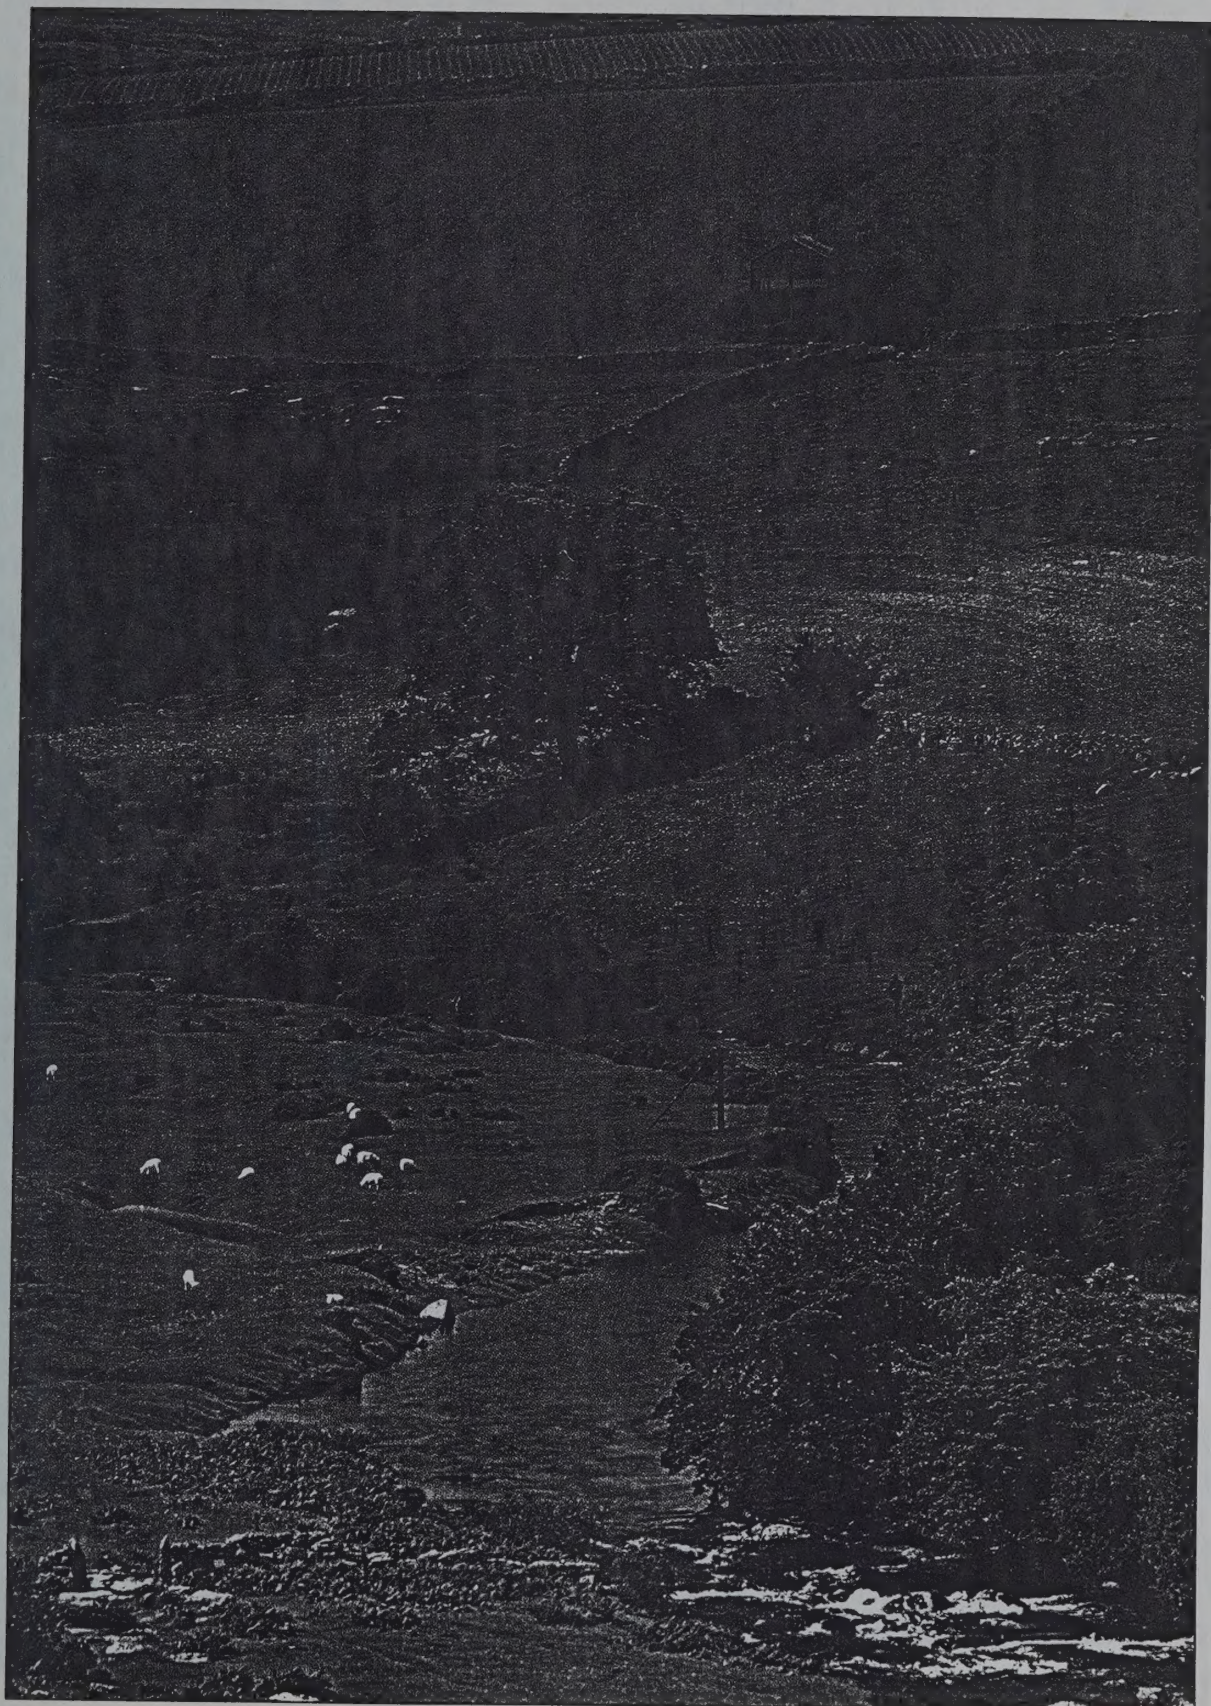

Dartmoor National Park, in all its mystery and majesty, lies within the county of Devon in England's West Country. Devon's sweep of landscape is as various as it is striking; spread along the north and south coasts are seaside resorts, rich farmlands and stately cathedral towns. But Dartmoor, 365 square miles in the heart of Devon, is a vivid world of its own, a concentration of scenic magnificence—from empty moors to cozy villages—just 3½ hours west of London.

Standing on one of Dartmoor's high and windy hills, sheltered under a jagged outcrop of granite, you can turn full circle and not witness the same scene twice. In one direction there might be wild ponies cantering across a meadow of wildflowers; in another you might see a circle of stones from an Iron Age settlement, and then on the horizon a Celtic cross. Or you could look down on a peaceful huddle of thatched cottages, see a church tower lifting the landscape or gaze across desolate moors. Rivers run placidly past orderly towns built around market squares, then thunder over rocks through forests of oak.

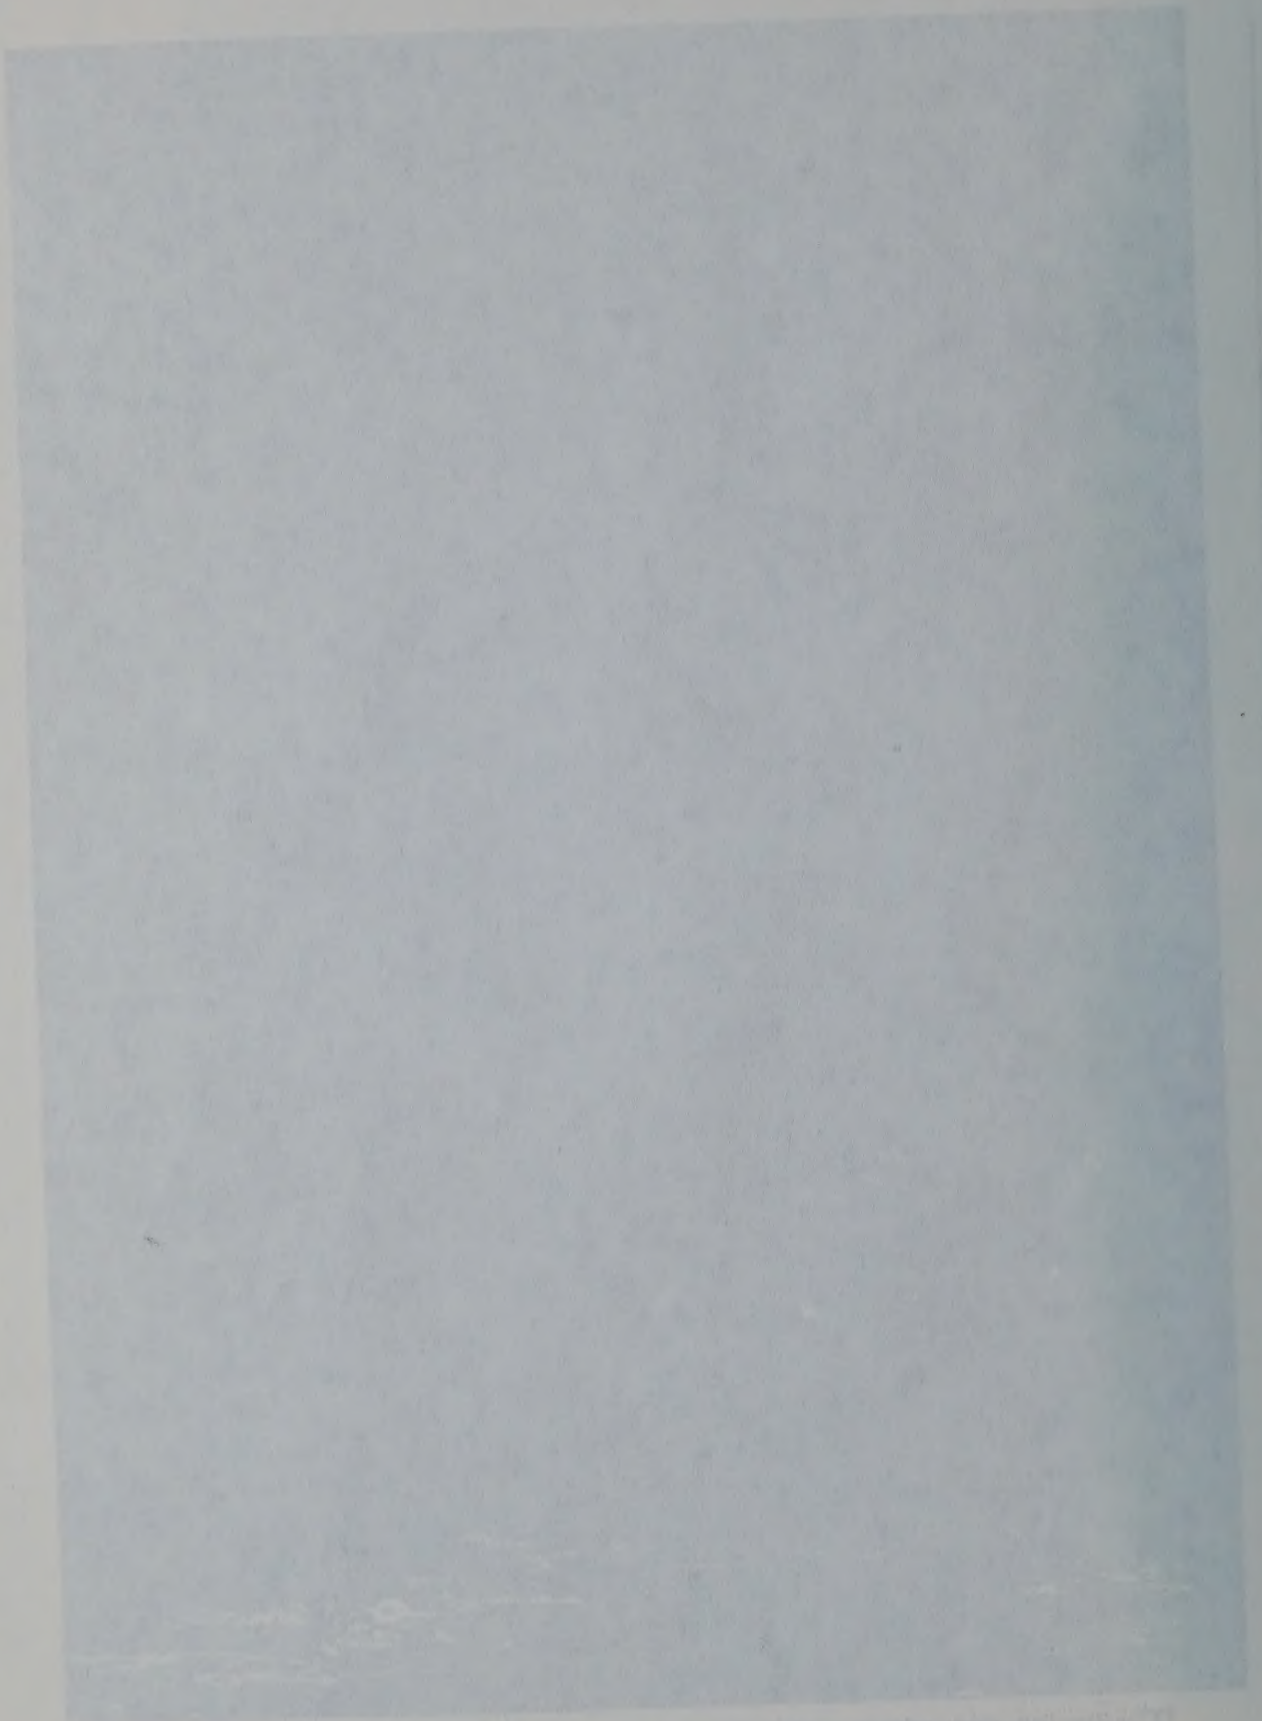

Dartmoor's palette encompasses that unmistakably British, rain-nourished deep green, patches of red earth, purple heather, golden broom, a sky that flashes from bright blue to cataclysmic orange and gray. Within a moment on Dartmoor a hiker can glimpse the chaotic splendor of nature at its most elemental and exhilarating, and then wander down a footpath to a tiny village for the age-old comforts of a cup of tea. For the park also contains towns whose names ring with a pastoral English music. Widecombe-in-the-Moor, Ashburton, Okehampton and Chagford, within walking distance of the open moors, are small oases from ages past, centuries of continuous and quiet prosperity.

Yet these towns have seen but a small segment of the long and eventful history of Devon. Parts of the roads the Romans built still link Exeter with London. William the Conqueror's realm after 1066 encompassed the land that is now Devon. During the height of the Elizabethan Age, Sir Francis Drake hid the English fleet from the Spanish Armada in the natural harbor at Plymouth. Later came the manufacturing and mining eras and a thriving commerce in wool products—and then, in the 18th century, Devon began to fade as a center for trade. No longer a focus of the empire, it retreated into its own rural life, most markedly in Dartmoor. There the towns and villages, moors and meadows seem cut off from the modern world—an island within the island of England. CONTINUED

The River Dart, which snakes its way through south Devon, takes a lazy turn in this green patch of Dartmoor.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS

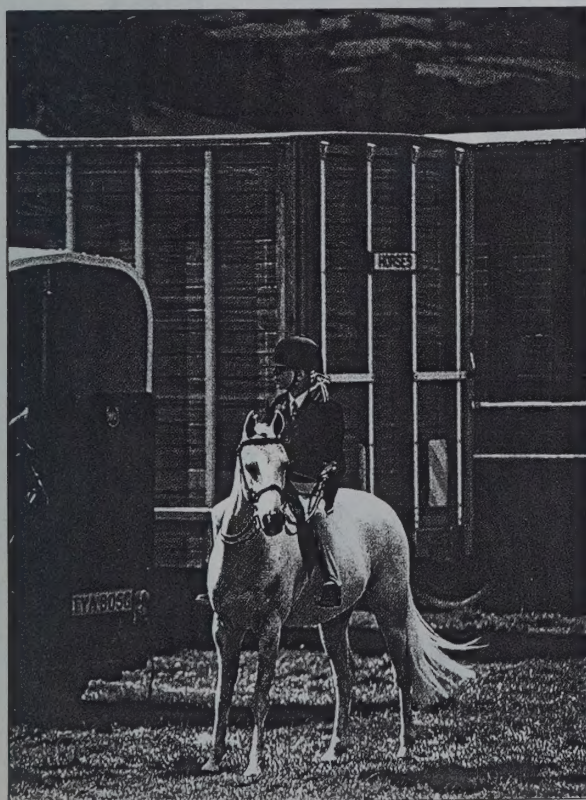

Amid the primeval splendors of Dartmoor are towns like Widecombe-in-the-Moor, whose 14th-century spire rises above the valley.

A farmer and his show horse at the village fair are as typical of Dartmoor as stone villages and wild moors.

One young rider displays country charm at the fair.

Village fairs in and around Dartmoor seem to take place in some seamless span of time in which the only reminders of the 20th century are the cars that bring bystanders. Otherwise, life is as it has always been. On these pages are closeups of the gentle action at livestock shows that center in Okehampton and Chagford, both centuries-old market towns that evoke visions of civility and country charm.

The fertile farmlands that exist side by side with (and in astonishing contrast to) the empty, windy moors support herds of horses, sheep, cows and ponies that wander in peaceful coexistence with the hikers and random explorers who walk the hills and valleys of Dartmoor.

Although the scene suggests an agricultural Eden with an air of innocence and freedom, the animals are property of Devonshire landowners and are part of a lively commerce. The fairs, which crowd the Dartmoor calendar from spring through autumn, are where this livestock is assessed, then bought and sold. This medley of events, like chapters from a country diary, affords intimate views of rural England with its ruddy farmers and tweedy squires. Visitors from London and the curious from everywhere realize that they are looking, perhaps for the last time, at a disappearing way of life. ■

ENTRANCE AT GILFEIGH PARK

The drawing room, all polished woods and upholstered comfort, is a magnet for guests seeking conviviality or a quiet corner.

Deep in the Devon countryside, cushioned by green woodlands, surrounded by windswept moors, fronted by a rushing river, is the unlikely country-house hotel in Great Britain. Unlikely because this sort-of-Tudor building, the very model of a modern English country manor, is the creation of two Americans. Paul and Kay Henderson—he a refugee from the corporate world, she an inspired chef—followed their dream to this remote western corner of the island in 1977. In the few years since, Gidleigh Park's reputation has soared, on the pages of travel guidebooks and through word of mouth, the mouths being those of connoisseurs of British country-house hotels, an ever-growing band of enthusiasts for this version of the good life. Since I count myself among that happy band, I was curious to see for myself. So, on an April day, a friend and I set out for a weekend in the country—a phrase full of meaning for any Anglophile who, like me, has read one too many English novels and has followed Masterpiece Theater into one too many reruns.

The 3½-hour drive from London was undramatic at the start, but gradually the placid countryside at either side of the road gave way to deeper greenery and then to the starker shapes and red earth that are the signs of Devon. An occasional cottage with a heavily thatched roof hove into view along the highway that eventually leads to Cornwall and the westernmost point of England.

As we neared our target, in Chagford, we began meandering down the narrow, overgrown lanes that would take us to Gidleigh Park. We snaked through denser and denser woods, sure that we had taken the wrong turn, until there it was: a half-timbered oasis of civility on a gentle rise.

We left the car among other metal aristocrats of differing breeds and nationalities. Make no mistake, the surroundings are rustic, but the hotel and its guests are decidedly not—although this manor house is not the sort of steeped-in-history stately home featured in the recent "Treasure Houses of Britain" exhibit. It was built a mere 50 years ago by a shipping magnate. The walls may not reverberate with eons of history or even with the social rituals of Upstairs, Downstairs, but the portal opens onto a tranquil world of blazing fires, English chintzes, and reception rooms aglow with burnished oak paneling.

Masses of wildflowers arranged by Kay Henderson set a tone of informality throughout the hotel and bring the outdoors in.

Paul Henderson, owner and wine aficionado, in the hotel bar.

We stepped into a small anteroom with Wellingtons left at the door and then into the lobby of the hotel, which masquerades as the hall of a private house with a fire in the hearth. A quick glance to the left revealed a drawing room of noble proportion that becomes the social center of Gidleigh before and after dinner, when guests sink into voluminous couches or into leather wing chairs and converse by the light of ginger-jar lamps. At more contemplative times of day—or when it is raining too hard even for England—this is where people come to read Country Life, The World of Interiors or The New Yorker.

At the top of the stairs are 12 bedrooms of different sizes and shapes. Ours, for instance, was spacious, light and airy, and devoted to comfort. Books in discreet little piles and vases of cut flowers sat atop antique furniture. The large closet held enough hangers, a hair dryer awaited in a dressing-table drawer, and king-size bottles of Crabtree & Evelyn shampoo and foam bath lined the sides of the tub in a well-equipped bathroom. Within moments, a knock at the door brought a tray with tea and shortbread on flower-sprigged Wedgwood.

So began a perfect English weekend in the country.

I don't know whether it was the tea or the surroundings (or a combination of both) that had such a lulling effect. The only untamed notes were the panda on the ashtray (Paul Henderson was once an executive of the World Wildlife Fund) and our sense of the wilderness that lay beyond the gardens of the hotel's 30 acres. For the moment, though, we let the wide world wait outside as we lounged on the window seat and watched the river rush by on its path just below.

That set the pattern for the next days: the outdoors in all its rough splendor, and the indoors in all its shameless luxury; an afternoon hike followed by an evening that began with a glass of golden but uncharacteristically dry Château d'Yquem, only one of the many surprises on the renowned wine list at Gidleigh.

I did finally pull on my waterproof boots and wrap myself in layers, and we drove to town for an ordnance map of Dartmoor National Park, the rocky heart of central Devon. Armed with the map and high spirits, we left the car by the side of a road and began a walk through this domineering, craggy landscape of moors and high tors that look as if they were sculpted by Barbara Hepworth. That afternoon and the next day we

The first stage of the process is the preparation of the material. This is done by cutting the material into small pieces, which are then placed in a container. The container is then sealed and the material is allowed to react for a period of time. After this time has elapsed, the material is removed from the container and the reaction is stopped. The material is then washed and dried, and the process is complete.

The second stage of the process is the analysis of the material. This is done by using a variety of techniques, including spectroscopy, chromatography, and mass spectrometry. These techniques allow the researcher to determine the chemical composition of the material and to identify any impurities that may be present. The results of the analysis are then used to determine the effectiveness of the process and to make any necessary adjustments.

The third stage of the process is the synthesis of the material. This is done by combining the material with other substances in a controlled environment. The reaction is then allowed to proceed for a period of time, and the material is then removed from the reaction mixture. The material is then washed and dried, and the process is complete.

The fourth stage of the process is the purification of the material. This is done by using a variety of techniques, including distillation, extraction, and recrystallization. These techniques allow the researcher to remove any impurities that may be present in the material and to obtain a pure sample of the material. The results of the purification are then used to determine the effectiveness of the process and to make any necessary adjustments.

wandered among immutable rocks hewn by wind and rain, and spring daffodils that swayed in the breeze with the gentle toughness that keeps them alive. Baby lambs with black faces and knee socks made a fresh white contrast to their cream-colored elders. Foals of the wild horses that roam the moors pranced and circled on this land that supports only the roughest grazing.

We walked nearly alone on footpaths that led up to Stone Age settlements and surveyed the horizon: a beautiful bleakness spreading out in one direction, and green farmlands in the other. We went where fancy took us, knowing that the next day we would traverse these grounds with an expert, Chris Chapman, whose passion for the area shows itself in two rather diverse ways. He leads guests of the hotel on vigorous country walks, but by profession he is a photographer, a remarkable one who is recording the vanishing life of this pastoral corner of England in black-and-white pictures that seem full of color. I had seen his work in New York the year before, and the images were indelible. I conjured them up again as, back at Gidleigh Park, I soaked in a well-earned hot bath before dinner.

Downstairs, there was a happy buzz in the public rooms as guests recounted their day's forays into the country. Some, like us, had sought the barren peaks of Dartmoor; some chose the tamer parts of South Devon, where the Dart River flows in a valley lined with resort towns, and others explored North Devon, with its 18th and 19th-century stone villages and a coastline that looks across the Bristol Channel to South Wales.

At Gidleigh, it's boots and turtle-necks by day and simple silks and cashmeres by night. In the evening everyone unwinds in the drawing room, where the log fire glows and the house cats are as sybaritic and sociable as the guests. The small bar, with its languid garden room, and the two adjoining rooms hold the key to a great part of Gidleigh's renown.

The wine list is impressive just for its range—about 400 offerings from Europe and California—but it is also good reading, with lively and tart comments by Paul Henderson, who often quotes Kay, the culinary genius of the house. Kay, a Cordon Bleu-trained chef, has always presided over the kitchen. In the early days she cooked alone (while Paul did everything but the wiring). In the years after, she worked side by side with John Webber, who has since moved on. These days Kay cooks with Shaun Hill, one of England's celebrated young chefs, whose last stint was at Hill's, his own restaurant in Stratford. But no matter who collaborates, the menu will always carry Kay's individual stamp—French without fussiness, using the best local and seasonal ingredients.

Dinner that night, for instance, began with a salad of warm quail, smoky bacon and croutons, and went on to blushing-pink lamb, farm-fresh goat cheese, nuggets of walnut bread, kiwi sorbet. I know just what you are thinking about quail and kiwi, but I can assure you that in these skilled hands, trendy ingredients are turned into classics. In the dining rooms that night was a mix of English and Americans, couples and families (with beautifully behaved children), guests of the hotel and well-heeled locals. Diners were, understandably, reluctant to leave the table, but eventually they did get up to wander with balloons of brandy or glasses of eau-de-vie. An aura of sweet satisfaction filled the sitting room, which glowed with firelight.

The next morning, when dawn broke, we forgot our vows never to eat again, telling ourselves we had to have a little something to sustain us on our planned hike. Of course, we all knew the truth. There is a just-in-from-the-hunt feel to breakfast at Gidleigh, and who is a visiting American to resist freshly made croissants and marmalade, fragrant herby and-pork sausages, eggs from a nearby farm, slabs of bacon and fresh orange juice, accompanied by copies of The Times and the Observer? Not the least bit ashamed of our indulgence, we piled on the woolens and waterproof jackets to meet the rainy day with our fellow travelers and Chris Chapman.

I was by far the least fit of our little pack. The man I was with keeps in shape by cycling. The wife of the BBC commentator along competes in the London Marathon. My friends at home either snickered rudely or just turned away in disbelief when I told them later of my 15-mile walk, because they know my most strenuous outdoor pursuit is a stroll to a boutique or bookstore. But I found it a day filled with wonder as we were in the rain, soaked with rain, pelted with hail, warmed by the sun. We edged along a rampaging river, stepping over trees uprooted by a storm, in a setting so primeval that all that was missing were dinosaurs. We encountered a few other hikers trekking over the brown bracken, purple heather, and broom that gives the earth a bronze glow. But more often, we walked next to bellied wild ponies or shaggy cattle.

At noon we sought shelter in the shadow of a high tor, where we dove into a lunch packed by the hotel. Only our exhilaration could account for the extravagance with which we extolled the simple jam and chutney and cheese sandwiches, the mineral water that tasted better than any Château Margaux, the apples that surpassed ambrosia.

After that respite we set off again amid the romance of desolate moors, seeing in the far distance the quiet green order of farms and gray stone villages rooted in another century. Our day wound down in one of those hamlets at a tea shop called Barton's, which dispensed tea and scones with strawberry preserves and Devonshire cream as thick as enamel. As we sat, replete with food and adventure, rosy-cheeked and not a little bit smug, the luxuriant quality of the cream reminded me of what lay waiting back at Gidleigh Park: upholstery that is plump and inviting, fires crackling in the hearths, the unpretentious staff that makes you feel you're being tended by a kindly and noninterfering nanny. The refinements of English country life in a wild and wonderful landscape.

How and Where

It is about 3½ hours west of London by car to the village of Chagford, from which (with the hotel's specific instructions) you wend your way to Gidleigh Park. You can also go by train from Paddington Station to the town of Exeter; the hotel will send a car for you.

The hotel is small, so if you want to go in spring or summer, you have to reserve fairly far ahead. But Gidleigh is open year-round, with slightly lower rates in the winter. Rooms range in price from about $240 to $275 for two, including breakfast and dinner. You can make reservations in the United States through David B. Mitchell & Co., Inc.; telephone 212-696-1323. Or you can contact Gidleigh Park direct: the address is Chagford, Devon, England; phone (06473) 2367.

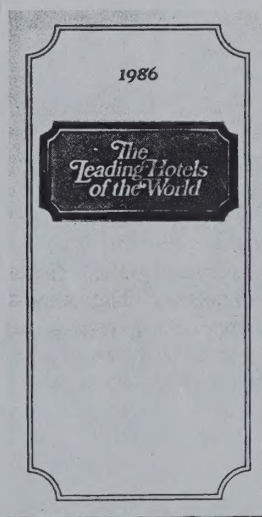

Pack sturdy boots or waterproof hiking shoes and warm socks. Even if you don't think you're the type to trek over hill and dale, you should be warned that almost everyone succumbs. I also brought along a Shell Guide to Devon, which is stocked by many London bookstores. And it's not a bad idea to consult The Good Food Guide or Egon Ronay's Lucas Guide—as well as the hotel staff—for tips on good restaurants in the vicinity, such as The Carved Angel in Dartmouth. ■

Dear Mr. Hannaford,

Thank you for your letter of 23rd May. There is indeed a Hannaford in Widecombe parish to which you refer but there are places of the same name in Swimbridge parish and in Kenn parish all in Devon, and by the late nineteenth century there is no reason to believe that families of the name Hannaford were necessarily living in any of the three parishes.

I would advise you to contact the General Register Office, St. Catherine's House, Kingsway, London for the Hannaford-Tooley marriage in 1882 as they hold records of all post 1837 births, marriages and deaths in England and Wales. Then if the South Devon location is confirmed, you should know the parish records to search where hopefully the names of their ancestors are recorded.

I enclose details of our opening hours and of Search Room charges. As you will see we are not open on 27th September (nor on the Sunday!).

I hope you are successful in establishing the link with South Devon.

Yours sincerely,

FAMILY HISTORY

BASIC SOURCES

1. Parish Registers

These registers of baptisms, marriages and burials are available in the Devon Record Office for most, but not all, Devon parishes, in some cases going back to the 16th century. The majority of the original registers deposited are at the Headquarters Office in Exeter but those for Plymouth and some West Devon parishes are at the West Devon Area Record Office. The registers of the remaining parishes are in the hands of the incumbents. The Record Office will endeavour, where possible, to direct enquiries to the present custodians of a parish's registers. Most pre-1837 registers are now available on microfiche only but both offices have a set of the microfiche.

2. Bishop's Transcripts

These are contemporary copies of the Parish Registers. They are available at the Devon Record Office for almost all Devon and Cornwall parishes, but they do not generally give coverage for every year. They are most complete during the second half of the 18th century and at the beginning of the 19th. There are large gaps in the series of 17th century transcripts. After 1812 individual sheets may be in a severely damaged condition, often unusable. There are no transcripts before the late 16th century, and none after about 1850. The pre-1812 transcripts are available on microfilm at the Exeter and Plymouth offices. Transcripts for most Cornish parishes between 1742 and 1771 are at the Cornwall Record Office, County Hall, Truro.

3. Wills

The vast bulk of the Devon wills were destroyed during the last war. E.A. Fry's "Devonshire Wills and Administrations" lists some of the wills destroyed in the Probate Registry, but gives no details of the terms of individual wills. Before the 19th century there is little chance of an individual will's survival, though there is in the Devon Record Office a card index of copies of wills deposited, together with a series of abstracts of selected wills and of testamentary disputes. There are 75 wills, 1555-1765, among the records of the Orphans' Court of the City of Exeter, and some earlier wills are included among the City Archives. For the period 1796-1812, copies of Devon wills are available at the Public Record Office, Chancery Lane, London WC2A 1LR. From 1812-1857, there is a complete series of copies at the Devon Record Office. Since 1858, wills have been registered at the Principal Registry, Somerset House, London WC2R 1LP and Calendars are available at the Probate Registry, Eastgate House, Exeter. For other surviving wills and finding aids see "Wills and their Whereabouts" by A.J. Camp, or "Wills and Where To Find Them" by J.S.W. Gibson.

4. Freemen's Lists

These can give useful information about Freemen of the City of Exeter from 1266 to the present day, especially those admitted "by succession". They have been published as "Exeter Freemen, 1266-1967", by M.M. Rowe and A.M. Jackson.

5. Census Returns

Detailed individual returns for all available censuses are kept at the Public Record Office. There are no detailed returns at the Devon Record Office, but there are microfilm copies of the Devon returns for 1841, 1851, 1861, 1871 and 1881 in the Westcountry Studies Library, Castle Street, Exeter. Please telephone Exeter 273422 for an appointment on the microfilm readers.

6. Voters' Lists

A full series for Devon is kept at the Devon Record Office from 1832 to the present day. They are arranged by parish and are not indexed. It is important to remember that until 1928 the vote was limited to men who owned property of a certain value. See separate "Guide to Sources" sheet available.

7. Civil Registration

The registration of births, marriages and deaths by civil authorities began in 1837. Birth, marriage and death certificates after this date are available from the General Register Office, St. Catherine's House, or from Local Registrars' Offices. The Devon Record Office cannot supply copies of certificates.

AVAILABILITY

8. The Search Room

The records and indices in the Devon Record Office are open to public inspection in the Search Room during office hours. Some classes of records are not kept in the Headquarters Office in Castle Street, and in these cases orders should be submitted before 11 a.m. for inspection the following day. It is advisable to check the availability of records by letter or telephone before visiting the office.

9. Postal Enquiries

Exeter There is a professional genealogist on the staff, who has access to sources both in the Record Office and the Westcountry Studies Library. The fee is £5 for 30 minutes' work or £9 for one hour's work (both sums include V.A.T.).

Plymouth For a fee of £1 the Record Office can make a limited search in parish registers held there (up to 10 years for rural parishes, up to 2 years for larger towns) for a baptism, marriage or burial, provided that the parish is known.

The office cannot guarantee to answer a lengthy series of enquiries from any individual person.

10. Photocopies

Confirmatory copies of entries in parish registers or bishop's transcripts may be obtained by post, where the exact date is known, for 50p. each. Copies of other documents may be obtained, in person or by post, provided that photocopying will not damage the documents, at a cost of 15p. per A4 or foolscap sheet, 25p. per A3 sheet, or 15p. per print-out from microfilm or microfiche. An application form and copyright declaration must first be obtained from the Office and completed.

Ancestry Research In The South-West Of England

By Michael Wickes, M.A.

Woodend House, Mount Raleigh Avenue, Bideford, Devon, ENGLAND EX39 3NR
Telephone: Bideford 78862 (02372)

The South west of England is an area of great interest to many American families, since a large number of immigrants to the New World originated from the three English counties of Devon, Cornwall and Somerset. Leading gentry families in Devon such as the Grenvilles and Raleighs promoted some of the first colonising expeditions to set sail from England in the early seventeenth century, while waves of later emigrants left from the Cornish tin and copper mines as well as from the rural hinterland of the three counties.

I am writing this article from the viewpoint of a professional genealogist living in Bideford in North Devon, but covering all three counties of Devon, Cornwall and Somerset. This region has several peculiarities which distinguish it from the rest of England. Geographically, the region combines both upland and lowland landscapes, varying between the bleak tree-less upland moors of Dartmoor, Exmoor and Bodmin Moor, and the lush green pastures and woods of the lowland areas. Devon is one of the largest counties in England, and used to be one of the wealthiest prior to the dawn of the Industrial Revolution in the mid eighteenth century. The county town is Exeter with its magnificent cathedral, city-walls and guild-hall, the latter dating to the twelfth century and reputed to be the oldest of its kind in England, Exeter has now been outstripped in population terms by the naval city of Plymouth, which grew from a cluster of tiny fishing villages from the sixteenth century onwards. Truro is the county town of Cornwall and is dominated by a gothic cathedral built during the nineteenth century. The county town of Somerset is Taunton, although this county does boast several other historic cities such as Bath with its Roman ruins and Wells with its beautiful cathedral, bishop's palace and cathedral close.

The South West of England also has several sociological peculiarities that affect the studies of anyone interested in ancestry research. Cornwall used to be a bilingual county until the eighteenth century, and even now the Cornish language is being revived by local people. Several Cornish surnames can be found written in Cornish in one source and in English in another source of the same date. The classic example is "Angove" which is Cornish for "Smith". The Cornish used to follow the Celtic surname custom whereby a son adopted the christian name of his father as his second name. This accounts for the large number of Cornish surnames such as Rowe (originating from Ralph), Phillips, Williams, Davy and Jenkins (a diminutive of John). This Celtic naming custom became fossilized at different dates depending upon locality and social status, but it need only seriously worry a genealogist covering the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

The main documentary source for English genealogists is the church registers of baptisms, marriages and burials that were first introduced in 1538. Only a small number of South West churches, however, have registers that cover the whole period between 1538 and the modern day. Many churches did not introduce registers until many decades after 1538, and many of the earlier registers have been lost or destroyed. Church registers are now generally deposited at the county record offices at Truro, Taunton, Exeter, and Plymouth (covering South West Devon), where they will hopefully be able to survive the vagaries of fire, war and parochial carelessness. Some registers are still retained at their churches, however. Great Torrington, a North Devon town, still keeps its registers in its church safe, although there is a transcript of them currently being prepared. Visiting churches to view registers can be both expensive and frustrating, because of petrol costs, search fees and due to the need to make an appointment beforehand with the parish priest.

The English genealogist usually has to turn to bishops' transcripts when he discovers that a register of a certain date is not available. Bishops' transcripts were contemporary copies of the registers that were supposed to be sent to the bishop every year after 1597. In practise, they only cover isolated years and are sometimes found in an illegible condition. The county of Cornwall used to be located within the diocese of Exeter, so Cornish bishops' transcripts can be found at the record offices at both Truro and Exeter, depending on the date in question.

Modern copies of the parish registers of the South West exist for a large number of towns and villages. The best copies are the printed and indexed editions published by the Devon and Cornwall Record Society. There are also a large number of manuscript copies kept at Exeter, Taunton and Truro, of varying degrees of reliability. The Ilfracombe copies, for instance, are notorious for the errors found in them. Several printed transcripts of marriage registers also exist such as Boyd's Marriage Index and the Philimore collection of printed marriage registers. Several index systems such as the Computer File Index (the Mormon index) and the Royal Institute of Cornwall index to Cornish marriage registers are based upon these modern transcripts and so have taken on board most of the errors found in them. Where possible, a genealogist should use the original registers to avoid the mistakes of past generations of researchers. The most outstanding introduction to the parish registers and related sources of the South West is the Guide to the Parish and Non-Parochial Registers of Devon and Cornwall written by Hugh Peskett. A copy of this book travels with me on all my genealogical expeditions.

The Church of England was not, of course, the only English church that maintained registers. Nonconformist churches appeared in the South West after the Civil War and Protectorate period that ended in 1660. The earliest nonconformist registers found in Devon were those kept by the Treville Street Presbyterian chapel in Plymouth which opened its registers in 1662. Other pre-1700 Presbyterian registers were kept at chapels at Moretonhampstead (1672), Exeter (1687), Tavistock (1692), Cullompton (1693) and Honiton (1697). The earliest nonconformist registers found in Cornwall commenced after 1700, but Somerset has several early examples. Most English nonconformist registers were sent to the Public Record Office in London in 1837, but microfilm copies of them are located in Exeter, Taunton and Truro.

Nonconformist churches could not legally conduct marriages until after 1837, so one has to search for marriages involving couples of a nonconformist persuasion in the registers of a local Anglican church. Nonconformist burial grounds were not very common and were generally opened at a late date, so dissenter burials should also be searched for in the records of the established church.

Probate sources are of great value to a genealogist. Devon has been unfortunate in the preservation of its collection of wills, because most of them were destroyed in the German air-raid on Exeter in 1942. Copies of some of them do survive, however, in transcript collections made before the last war, and one can also use the estate duty copies made for the purposes of taxation during the early nineteenth century. Cornwall has a fine collection of wills kept at Truro that were proved at the court of the Archdeacons of Cornwall. The wills of Somerset have not survived so well and have been badly sorted by the Taunton record office. One often has to search through a large box containing one or two hundred documents in order to find one will. Probate sources are one of the few sources that can provide positive evidence that members of a certain family had emigrated to America. I have certainly located many wills that refer to relations living overseas. Some people in the past made wills before setting sail for the New World. One example is the will of John Tucker of Dittisham, a village on the south coast of Devon, who wrote his will in 1663, being "a sailor bound for the parte of Newfoundland."

Civil parish documents can be another useful source for the English genealogist. Bastardy bonds and related documents can help one trace illegitimate children. Apprenticeship indentures made to provide work for pauper children can sometimes prove the survival through infancy of a certain child, especially when the age of the child is given. Apprenticeship indentures from Hartland in North Devon once helped me decide between two children, both called by the same names and baptised at about the same date, who could have both been the ancestor of the family in question. Settlement documents have also survived from some parishes. After 1662 pauper families could be sent back to their parishes of origin when they became dependant upon poor relief. One can therefore trace the movements of some families, often over considerable distances. Accounts left by parish officials such as churchwardens, overseers of the poor, and surveyors of highways occasionally give useful information on labourers hired for church repairs or pauper families given parish relief. Some officials maintained very detailed accounts that stated the items of clothing, shoes and food given out every year to poor families.

Nineteenth century censuses held once a decade are another valuable source for the English genealogist. The original documents are kept in London but microfilm copies of them are stored at Taunton, Exeter and Truro. The first census was held in 1801, but the 1841 census was the first to note down individual names and occupations. The censuses between 1851 and 1881 yield some very useful information on family relationships, ages, occupations, and places of birth. The censuses held after 1881 are not yet available due to the hundred year confidentiality rule.

I would now like to devote a few words to sources that are not universally used by genealogists. Manorial surveys made by the agents of a landlord can sometimes be of immense interest. The classic example of a useful manorial survey for the South West was that made for the Dynham family in 1566. This survey related to manors in different parts of Devon, and it gives a great deal of information on the property rented by each tenant. Family relationships can be discovered due to the practise of leasing land to the tenant for three or four lives.

The names of the tenant farmer, his wife and one or two of their children were thus invariably given in these leases.

Another source little used by most English genealogists are church pew-lists. Churches did not usually provide pews until after the sixteenth century, except for stone seats built into the walls. The latter were reserved for the sick and infirm; hence the expression "the weak being sent to the wall". Churches installed wooden pews during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and these were usually rented out to specific individuals. Church plans were sometimes drawn up at different dates between the sixteenth and early nineteenth centuries to illustrate which pews were rented by each family. The rich and privileged families were allocated the pews in the front of the church, so these pew-lists are often fascinating guides to the social structure of a certain community. The earliest pew-list that I have yet found for the South West is one from Kilkhampton in north east Cornwall, dated 1597. Another early pew-list, dated 1613, can still be seen at Hartland Church in North Devon. The original 1613 pews are also to be found inside this church, and so one can actually point to the pew rented by someone's seventeenth century ancestors. A few of these pews have bench-ends carved with the initials "H.P." Some people argue that this stood for Hartland Parish, but I believe that they were the initials of Hugh Prust, the church treasurer in 1613 when the pews were installed.

Most documentary sources, or copies of them are now kept in the county record offices, but memorial inscriptions obviously remain as one source that can only be found at the church in question. Devon and Cornwall have a good collection of memorial inscriptions due to the widespread use of slate tombstones, a material that survives the onslaughts of weather to a remarkable degree. Most tombstones found outside church buildings date after 1800, but a sizable minority date to a period when parish registers do not give the ages at death that one usually finds on tombstones. Memorial inscriptions can also yield up other items of information. A gravestone in the churchyard of West Putford in North Devon refers to the burial of Mary Frost in 1846 at the age of 76. The rhyme on the stone reads:

"From Bristol I came down,
My daughter for to see.
Before one week was out,
The Lord had called for me."

This indicates that anyone interested in the ancestry of the Frosts of West Putford should turn to sources located at Bristol, a city about 100 miles away from North Devon.

Many memorial inscriptions have long since disappeared, of course, but one can sometimes find references to them in one or two documentary sources. One book, that exists only in manuscript form and kept at Exeter, is Davidson's "Church Notes", written in 1843. Davidson visited most of the churches of Devon before many of them suffered from excessive restoration work carried out later in the nineteenth century. He copied down all of the memorial inscriptions that he could find inside church buildings, many of which no longer exist. Several churches in Exeter, for instance, have disappeared since 1843, partly as a result of the air-raid of 1942, and so the memorial inscriptions once located inside them now only exist in the pages of this one book.

There are many genealogical sources available to a researcher that I have not covered, but I would like to conclude this article by referring to one aspect of the trans-Atlantic emigration story that is not often considered. Many ships filled with people sailed over to America from the ports of the South West, but a few of the descendants of these emigrants were to inadvertently return to be buried here in Devon. Dartmoor Prison was first built in 1806, and by 1813 it had become a POW camp for some 1,700 Americans captured during the Anglo-American war of 1812. These prisoners had all left Dartmoor by 1816 except for 218 of their number who had died from disease. It would be fascinating to discover how many genealogical cases in America have been blocked because an ancestor ended his days in the dank confines of Dartmoor Prison.

The coasts of Devon and Cornwall have long been the graveyard for shipping, especially during the days of sail. Several ships with American crews have been wrecked off these rocky shores, and the crews are still lying in unmarked graves. One American ship, the name of which is not known, was wrecked off the north coast of Devon near Bideford during November 1764. The name of the captain is known, however, as an entry in the burials register of Northam church refers to the burial of Captain John Green from New York on November 17th 1764.

Genealogical Research In England and Wales

By Frank Smith

Born in England, 1917, emigrated 1953. Former Associate, Institute of Mining Engineers, Great Britain. Fellow, Society of Genealogists, London, England. Supervisor of Research Services, Genealogical Department, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints since 1961. Professional Genealogist since 1944. Special Instructor, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah since 1954. Author, co-author and co-compiler of 13 genealogical texts. Married, has seven children.

CIVIL REGISTRATION

This began 1 July 1837 but some births may not have been recorded for periods prior to 1875. The records are all in St. Catherine's House, London, and the public is only permitted to search indexes. These are arranged for each quarter of a year - March, June, September and December. The only thing the index shows is the person's name and the district and the reference numbers as to where the original entry can be found.

As a general rule, the death indexes after 1866 show the age at death and recent birth indexes show the mother's maiden name in addition. A birth certificate shows the person's birth date, place of birth, father, trade of father, and mother, including her former name.

The marriage certificate shows the full name of both parties, their abode at time of marriage, their exact age if under 21, their occupation and their father's name and occupation also the witnesses of the marriage and where the marriage took place.

A search for a marriage cannot usually be undertaken until the names of both mother and father are known and a birth certificate of one of their children will give this information.

A death certificate shows the person's name, trade, age at death and informant at death. The records are now at St. Catherine's House, Kingsway, London, W.C. 2.

Local Registrars in the various registration districts throughout the country can be very helpful as they also have a copy of most of the records at St. Catherine's House that relate to their particular district.

The indexes are on microfilm in Salt Lake City, 1837-1865. In 1976 a certificate cost approximately $9.00 by correspondence.

The first genealogical usable census was taken on the night of 7 June 1841 and is open to the public for searches. This census simply lists the names of the persons in the house and states whether born in the county or not by recording "Yes" or "no", that is "born in county" or "not born in county". If a person is born in Ireland, the census will show a letter "I" and a "S" for Scotland. The age of every person under 15 years is recorded correctly. For persons over 15 the last term of five years within which the age is given is recorded.

for persons aged 15 and under 20 the age is given as 15.

for persons aged 20 and under 20 the age is given as 20.

for persons aged 25 and under 30 the age is given as 25.

for persons aged 30 and under 35 the age is given as 30.

These are mostly written in pencil and are fairly difficult to read, particularly on microfilm.

b. 1851, 1861 and 1871 census returns

They are open to the public. These are usually written in ink and show the relationship of each person in the house to the head of the house. They also show ages and full birthplaces, parish and county as given to the enumerator.

1841 through 1871 census returns are on microfilm at the Genealogical Department. The originals are at the Public Record Office, London.

c. 1881 and onwards

They are not open to the public. Searches can be made by correspondence to Somerset House, London, for 1881, 1891 and 1901.

Fees are approximately $11.00 for limited information from one house enumeration.

PARISH REGISTERS

The earliest of these date back to 1538. The country is divided into ecclesiastical parishes, some large, some small, and in 1812 there were eleven thousand of them and the number now is considerably more.

Some country parishes cover a large area embracing several townships and hamlets, but in some parts of the country each little community had its own church and therefore its own registers.

Some towns and cities have one main church and, therefore, one set of registers, e.g. Bradford Cathedral, whereas other towns and cities have a number of parishes, e.g. Norwich has 39, all with separate ministers.

A person may live in one parish and find it more convenient to worship in a church of a neighbouring parish perhaps 100 yards away.

The registers were very imperfectly kept in the Cromwellian period 1649-1660. They were also imperfectly kept on occasions when various taxes were imposed on the parishioners.

The age at burial in the registers is not usually recorded in entries until after 1812.

Search fees have to be paid to parish ministers.

The Statutory rule is not very clearly defined and, therefore, ministers can charge varying prices for such searches. He can also insist on giving certified copies only and he can charge separately for each surname looked for. Usually, ministers are most helpful.

Approximately 50% of the English parish registers have been microfilmed for the Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City but many ministers refuse to give permission for this to be done. In Wales very few have been filmed because of ecclesiastical opposition.

BISHOP TRANSCRIPTS

A copy of the parish registers was supposed to be presented to the Archdeacon or the Bishop each year and many of these still exist and are a valuable asset where the parish registers have been lost or destroyed and where the ministers will not permit a personal search to be made of his registers. Approximately 60% are on microfilm at the Genealogical Department for England and 100% for Wales generally speaking, Welsh Bishops Transcripts are a poor collection.

NON-CONFORMIST REGISTERS

Non-Conformists so far as this article is concerned, are persons who were of denominations other than the Church of England, e.g. Quakers, Wesleyans, Independants, Methodists, etc. Many of these groups kept their own registers and when civil registration began in 1837 the registers they kept were collected and housed at Somerset House. A list of these is available but it should be remembered that a number of groups refused to submit their registers. A few of these found their way to libraries but many may have been lost. The main collection has been filmed for the Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City.

WILLS

All wills proved after 1858 are at Somerset House. Before that time they are stored in various registries throughout the country.

There are calendars of most wills which show the name of the person making the will, his place of abode and the date the will was made and/or probated. Abstracts from these wills can be made, sometimes by using skilled agents who live close at hand. The majority before 1858 have been microfilmed for the Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City.

MISCELLANEOUS

The foregoing are the main sources of information but there are many other sources such as Customs and Excise records, Military Records, Apprentice and Freeman's Records, Poor Law Records, Manor Court Rolls, Marriage licenses and others. All are valuable.

It should be remembered that especially in England the records are in many different depositories. In addition, many records are ill cared for and badly kept, many of them suffering from damp, decay, faded writing and are written in English and Latin script, usually difficult to read.

The Birmingham and Midland Society For Genealogy and Heraldry

By F. C. Markwell, B.A., F.S.G.
48 Howard Rd., Kings Heath
Birmingham, B14 7PQ, England

This society, which was founded in 1963, has in recent years experienced a very rapid growth in membership in common with other regional family history groups in England, where tracing one's ancestry is becoming an increasingly popular hobby.

In 1969 there were only 3 such societies in being; now there are about 20, effectively covering most areas of the country. The Birmingham Society had a membership of 90 in 1969. It now has 1,000 members all over the world and continues to expand.

The 'Midland' area of England which it covers comprises the former counties of Warwickshire, Worcestershire, Staffordshire and Shropshire and it specialises in helping and advising genealogists who have ancestral roots in those areas.

An invaluable feature of all English Family History Societies is the publication of a quarterly magazine (issued free to members) which specialises in publicizing the research being undertaken by members.

This can result in helpful correspondence with others interested in the same surnames in a given area and in the exchange of information. Often this can lead to the discovery of a common ancestor and life-long friendships develop.

Extracts from letters are a popular feature of these magazines and here may be gleaned much useful advice and information about lesser known genealogical sources.

Articles are all written by the members themselves and record the successes - and failures - in their family history researches.

Most societies publish a 'Members' Directory' which contains a list of the names and addresses of members and extensive indexes of surnames and a geographical index of parishes, each entry being followed by the reference number of the member interested in that name or place. Supplements or new editions appear from time to time.

The Midland Society - and some others - offers a free advice service to its members.

The annual subscription is 5 dollars, and all correspondence should be addressed to F. C. Markwell, Honorary Secretary, The Birmingham and Midland Society for Genealogy and Heraldry, 48 Howard Rd., Kings Heath, Birmingham, B14 7PQ, England. A specimen copy of the magazine will be sent free by sea mail in exchange for 2 International Reply Coupons to cover postage. (One dollar note to send air mail).

Regional societies work closely together, and three years ago the Federation of Family History Societies was formed to facilitate co-operation. Representatives meet from time to time to discuss projects and to organize conferences.

By means of The Federation Newsletter, news is exchanged between Societies and publicized in their magazines - hence, if you join one society you get to know about the publications and activities of others.

Much valuable work is done by societies by transcribing local records such as parish registers and memorial inscriptions. There are useful local publications and the price of these is often quite low.

One of the publications of The Birmingham and Midland Society is entitled 'This Ancestry Business - a beginner's guide to genealogy'. It explains simply how English ancestry can be traced, each chapter being written by a different member of the Society. There are also chapters on tracing Scottish, Welsh and Irish ancestry and on keeping records. The book has proved a best-seller, and the latest edition is right up-to-date. This new edition costs 3 dollars post free by sea mail or 4 dollars by air mail. Copies are available from the Secretary.

A list of all other regional societies with the addresses of the secretaries is in this book, together with addresses of County Record Offices and other useful practical information.

Alternatively - to find out about other regional societies, you can purchase a booklet by sending a dollar note to Mrs. Elizabeth Simpson, Secretary of the Federation of Family History Societies, Peapkins End, 2 Stella Grove, Tollerton, Notts, NG12 4EY, England. A leaflet with just names and addresses of societies is available in exchange for two International Reply Coupons - also from Mrs. Simpson.

The Birmingham and Midland Society will send you a free copy of one of their magazines for a dollar note to cover postage - but by sea mail.

Membership of a society in the area in which your ancestors lived could well be your best genealogical bargain - for it could lead to your making a most useful contact with a fellow enthusiast living in that area.

One final word about money! Our banks charge up to a dollar to cash a cheque on a Canadian or U.S.A. bank. Hence the value to us of sending dollar bills for small amounts. It would save you money, too, to get from an English correspondent a supply of 11p English stamps for return postages. At present it costs 11p to send an air mail letter across the Atlantic (weight not over 15g.) Up to 30g the cost is 22p.

Immigrants To America Appearing In English Records

David E. Gardner
and Frank Smith

Between the settling of Jamestown in 1607 A.D. and 1700 A.D. 275,000 persons emigrated from Great Britain to North America. Even by 1790, based on information taken from the census returns, 75% of mainland Americans said they were of British origin.

Without some clue from an American record giving a reasonably precise place of residence or birth in the old country it is very difficult to prove the overseas pedigree connection.

But if mention is made in British genealogical sources of relatives, creditors or debtors living in North America a starting point has been gained on the origin and ancestry of the immigrant.

For example Phillip Mallory had property in Virginia, moved back to England and died there. His will is proved in the Prerogative Court of (the Archbishop of) Canterbury 27 July 1661. He is residing in London and names his nephew Roger Mallory, his mother Elizabeth, his nephew Thos Mallory, his niece Frances Pigeon, nephew Richard Mallory, cousins John Whittie and William Mallory, estates in England and Virginia.

Your ancestor may not be Roger Mallory but one of the other named in his will and possibly not appearing in any other English record.

The book has drawn mainly from such original records and as well as quoting an abstract of the will, has included in the index the name of each person mentioned in the will.

The book contains 948 such references not appearing elsewhere naming more than 2,000 individuals.

There are other books in print naming other immigrants from Britain and their place of origin. The more references that are found in British records and put in print the easier will be the problem of crossing the Atlantic genealogically.

Examples of English Alphabets

(Taken from Genealogical Research in England and Wales, Volume III, Smith-Gardner, available from The Everton Publishers, Inc., published by Bookcraft.)

It is essential to learn the various forms of each letter, and particularly the capital letters of the alphabet, but the mere memorizing of alphabets is only one step in the understanding of handwriting. While practicing on these

hands and a "General Alphabet of the Old Law Hands" illustrating a variety of forms of letters, mainly but not entirely from the 16th and 17th centuries' Legal and Chancery Hands.

MAJOR GENEALOGICAL RECORD SOURCES IN ENGLAND AND WALES

In identifying ancestors, genealogical researchers need the answers to four key questions regarding record sources:

1. What types of records exist that will aid in the identification of ancestors?
2. What periods of time do the existing records cover?
3. What genealogical information appears in the existing records?
4. What is the availability of existing records for searching?

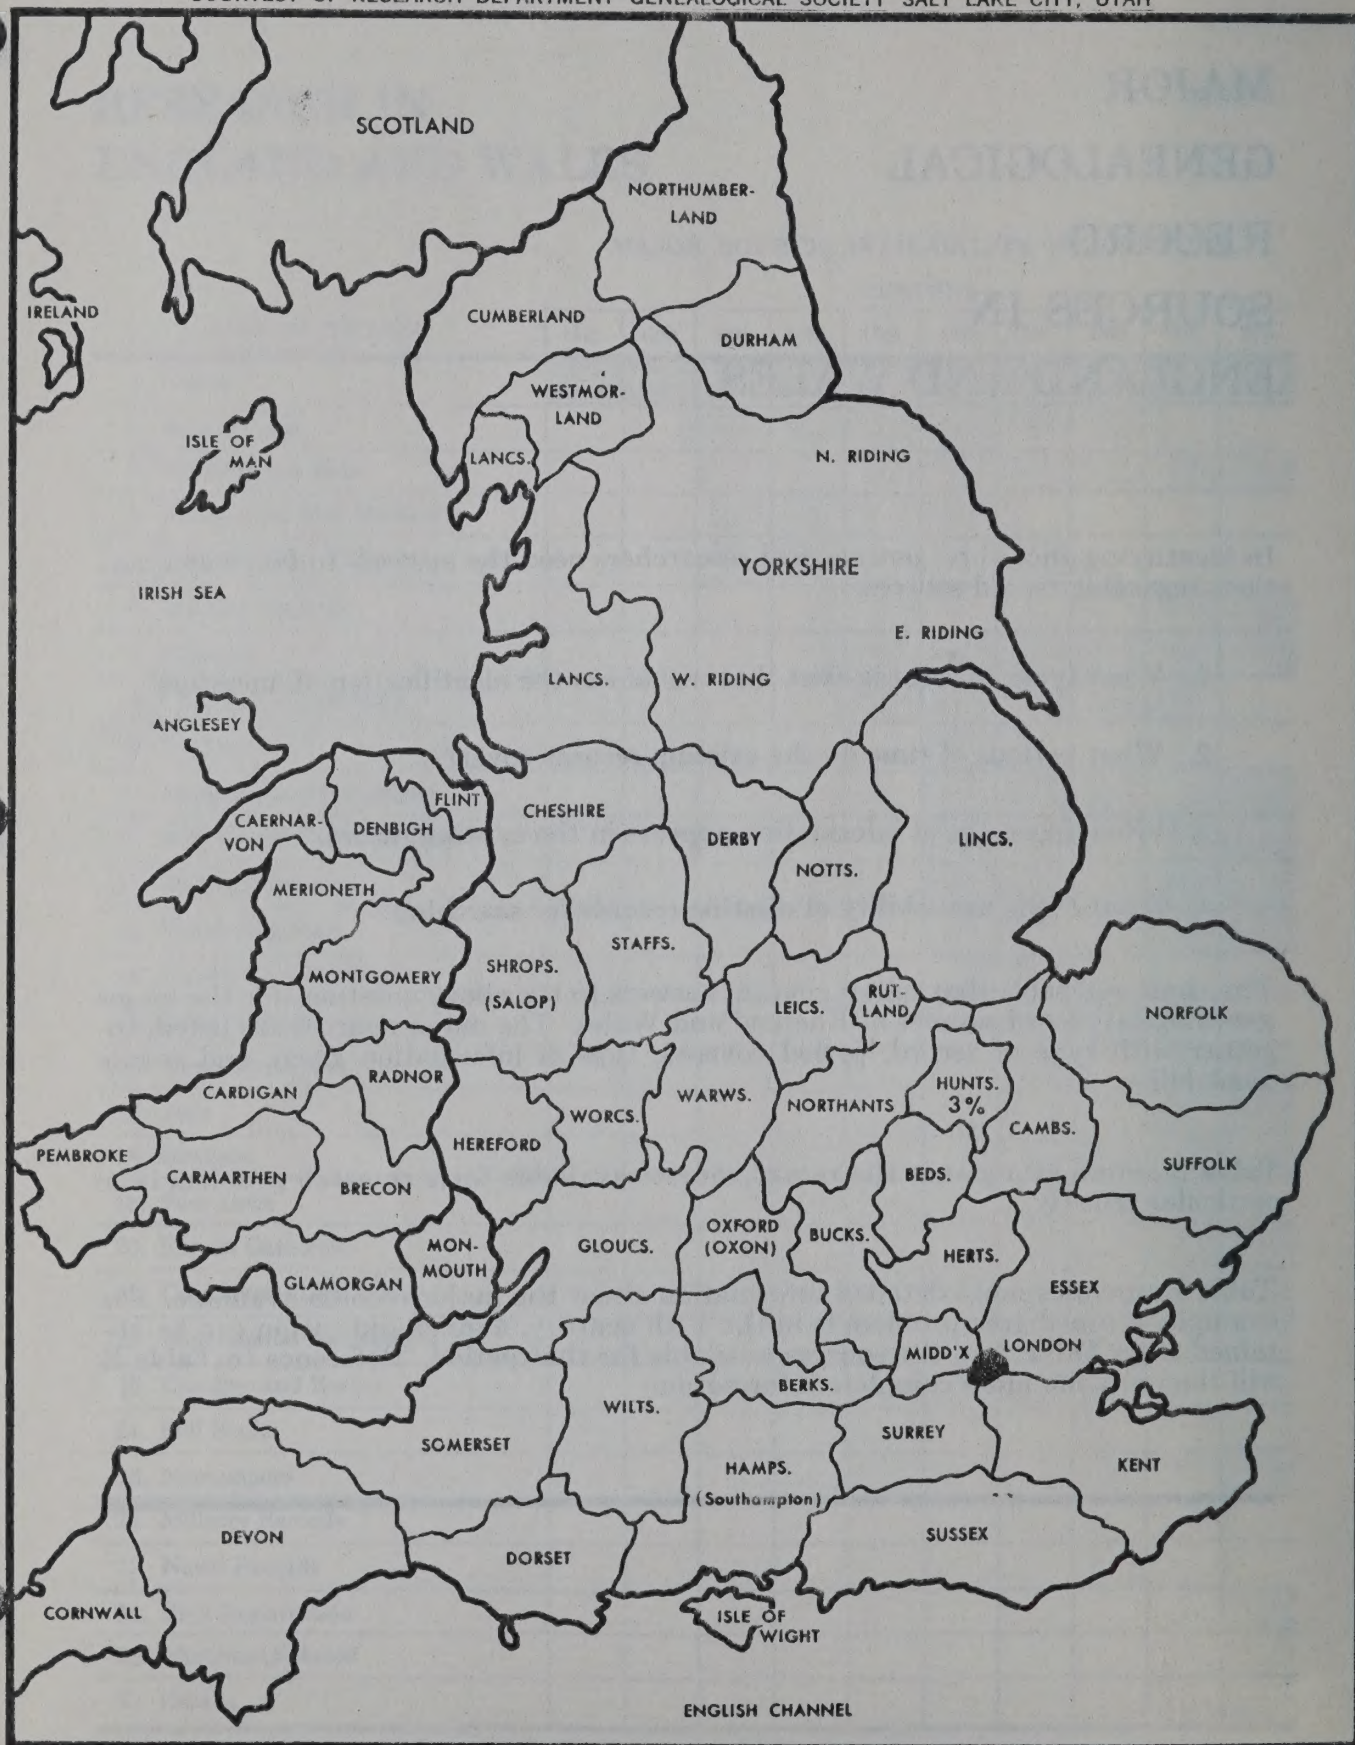

The chart and table that follow contain answers to the above questions for the major genealogical record sources of England and Wales. The major sources are listed, together with type of record, period covered, type of information given, and source availability.

Table A shows at a glance the record sources available for a research problem in a particular century.

Table B provides more detailed information about the major records available. For example, if a pedigree problem is in the 17th century, a quick indication can be obtained from Table A of the sources available for that period. Reference to Table B will then provide more complete information.

Perhaps some British genealogists may have heard of county boundary changes in Britain. Maybe you've received mail with a Liverpool, "Merseyside" return address. Everyone knows that Liverpool is in Lancashire, or at least it was.

As of 1 April 1974 some counties of England and Wales were done away with or changed for administrative purposes. An outline map of them is at the end of this article.

Some county boundaries are nearly the same as what they were before, and there are also new counties and some older ones with extensive changes. The following chart will perhaps be of interest.

New administrative county	Takes in old counties of ENGLISH COUNTIES as of 1 April 1974
Avon	county of Gloucestershire county of Somerset
Bedfordshire	county of Bedfordshire
Berkshire	part of the county of Berkshire and part of Buckingham
Buckinghamshire	county of Buckingham except the part in Berkshire
Cambridgeshire	the counties of Cambridge and Huntingdon plus the Isle of Ely and Peterborough, Northampton
Cheshire	county of Chester, except the areas in Derbyshire, Greater Manchester and Merseyside and part of Lancashire
Cleveland	parts of Durham and of the North Riding of Yorkshire

Greater London	those areas in and around London including the former county of Middlesex
Greater Manchester	areas of and around Wigan, Bolton, Bury, Rochdale, Salford, Manchester, Oldham, Trafford, Stockport, Tameside, which would include parts of Cheshire, Lancashire, and the West Riding of Yorkshire
Hampshire	county of Hampshire, except the areas in Dorset

A WORLD SERVICE

We have been tracing ancestors since 1769 and John Debrett began, studying pedigrees when George Washington was still a loyal subject of King George III. Debrett's Peerage has become the definitive guide to the British aristocracy, and our name so much a part of the English language that it is in the Concise Oxford Dictionary.

To honour our Queen's 1977 Jubilee, Debrett Ancestry Research will give the same expertise to investigating the ancestors of red-blooded commoners anywhere in the world as we have given in the past to blue-blooded aristocrats. We are proud to announce a worldwide service using the traditional skill and experience we have accumulated over 200 years.

For a copy of the 12-page booklet we send to enquirers, we ask that you remit $1.00. We shall be delighted to hear from you.

Rutland	Leicestershire
Shropshire	Salop
Westmoreland	Cumbria
Worcestershire	Hereford and Worcester
Yorkshire	Humberside, Greater Manchester, Lancashire, Cumbria, Durham, Cleveland, North Yorkshire, West Yorkshire, South Yorkshire

Caernarvonshire	Gwynedd
Cardiganshire	Dyfed

Radnor	Powys

How does all of this relate to genealogy? For the near future it will not affect things at the Genealogical Society (officially called the Genealogical Department of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints) in Salt Lake City or any of its branch libraries. Records will still be found in the card catalog under the former county names with the exception of Middlesex records which for some time have been filed under London and Isle of Wight records which are still filed under Hampshire. The various genealogical forms submitted to the Genealogical Society will still come in with these former counties as well.

What have been affected are the British record offices. In some cases new offices were created. In others the area covered by the old office was changed. Those interested in using or corresponding with these offices will want to be aware of the inexpensive guide called Record Repositories in Great Britain. This publication is available from the HMSO (Her Majesty's Stationery Office). Correspondence should be addressed to: Government Bookshop, P.O. Box 569, London, SE1 9NH. There is also a branch office in America at the following address:

Pendragon House, Inc.
2595 East Bayshore Road
Palo Alto, California 94303

In addition to addresses given in this above mentioned publication, the following changes should be noted, most of which are taken from The Journal of the Society of Archivists, vol. 5, no. 3, April 1975:

Centers may want to inquire about District and local archives when they write.

Those who may wish to purchase maps of what has happened can, by writing to the HMSO obtain a large detailed map showing both old and new boundaries. The address of where to write was mentioned earlier in this article. There are two maps each about 33" x 42" called "Ordnance Survey Administrative Areas, North" and "Ordnance Survey Administrative Areas, South". They are on a scale of about 1½ miles to the inch.

There is also a nice colored map called "Geographers' County Map of Great Britain" which would be suitable for hanging on a wall or general teaching purposes. The scale is 16 miles to the inch and this map measures 30" x 40". It could be obtained from Geographers A-Z Map Co. Ltd., Vestry Road, Sevenoaks, Kent, England.

There are other maps available showing almost everything you could desire. A catalog of maps is obtainable from John Bartholomew and Son Ltd., Duncan Street, Edinburgh EH9 1TA, Scotland.

Although some may wonder about all these changes, it is important to not be overly concerned. Addresses of record offices may change but correspondence will usually find its way to the proper place with an older address. Likewise, boundaries may change and even names of counties but for some time to come Britishers will still know where Cumberland, Monmouthshire, etc. are located. And for those who might have occasion to use some libraries including that of the Genealogical Society in Salt Lake City, Utah, it will be quite awhile before any major changes are made.

Emphasis On English Research

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical texts is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. We have asked him to provide for our readers (in all forthcoming issues) material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country. The articles will supplement the four volumes of Genealogical Research in England and Wales (the fourth volume will be in print soon) that he and David E. Gardner have written and will consist of short-cuts, warnings of pitfalls in accepting pedigree connections and peculiarities in different parts of England.

Social, Economic & Historical Background in England & Wales

Anyone who has done genealogical research will agree that a successful genealogist must have a knowledge of the types of records available for the time and locality of a particular pedigree problem.

It is true that information which will extend a pedigree is obtained by the use of these genealogical records. And it is also true that it is essential to know where such records can be obtained and what information they are likely to contain. Before genealogical research is carried out however; before searches are made in the records of the past, a great deal of preparatory work is necessary. A genealogist must know something about the history and geography of the area in which the research is to be carried out. This knowledge will suggest the use of certain records based on the geographical and historical conditions which affected the life of the ancestor in question.

In this presentation we will study an important part of this preparatory work — we will discuss some of the social and economical events; events which had a pronounced effect on the people who lived in the periods of time in which our research is to be carried out. It is of course obvious that the lives of our ancestors were influenced greatly by the people, places, and events of the time and locality in which they lived.

This brief introduction to the social, economical and historical background of England and Wales cannot cover every aspect of this extensive subject. It is hoped however to emphasize strongly the importance of becoming acquainted with this type of background if research is to be successful.

Let's start off by looking at the counties of England and Wales as they were in the sixteenth century. One of the things we must first learn in doing research — and this is sometimes difficult — is to place ourselves back in time and view living conditions as they were then. We must remember that if we are doing research in the 1600's the conditions under which people lived were vastly different in many respects from those which surround us today. Agreed? Alright. Then first we must understand that the England and Wales of the sixteenth century was mainly agricultural and there were very few large towns. The many villages were virtually self-sufficient, producing almost all of their own needs. Later centuries, however, saw the rise of town dwellings, and not only did the number of towns increase but their size grew rapidly as the rural dwellers were attracted to these new towns for various reasons.

In 1700, for example, the population of England and Wales numbered only about six million, and only a few of these six million lived in towns.

By 1800, however, the population had risen to over nine million, and of these, over two million were townspeople. Thus you can see that as early as 1800 the move had begun to the towns. Only 50 years later, in 1850 the population had grown to over 21 million — a remarkable growth — and of these nearly half, that is over ten million, were townspeople. We should mention that this increase of population was not due solely to an increase in birth rate, but rather to a sharp decline in the infant mortality rate due of course to the increased and more effective medical and sanitary facilities and better clothing.

Now, of course, the increased population and the emergence and growth of the towns caused a great change in the economic operation of the two countries.

One of these was the problem of food. The country as a whole was still for the most part dependent on what food it could produce from its own soil. For centuries each village had followed a system of strip-farming, a method which judged by modern agricultural methods was extremely wasteful.

Obviously, improvements were needed to meet the demands of the growing population. It became increasingly apparent that an enclosed field farmed by one individual or family was decided improvement over the strip-farming method. But this change-over in farming methods led to a considerable adjustment in the villages scattered over the countryside. Those villagers who could not afford to buy enough land were compelled to work as laborers for other farmers in the village, or were forced to find employment elsewhere. Now this seemingly simple adjustment caused quite a social upheaval in certain segments of the population. Many persons had to hire themselves out as day laborers, moving from village to village as work was available. Tracing ancestors as they moved from one village to another in search of work stretches the imagination and ingenuity of the researcher.

Editor's Note: The "Social, Economic and Historical Background In England and Wales" in the 19th century will be presented in our next scheduled issue, the November-December 1980 issue. Please watch for this continuation.

Emphasis On English Research

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical texts is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature will contain material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

Social, Economic & Historical Background in England & Wales

By the 19th century the change-over to this enclosed field type of farming was still in progress. Many of those who had no land of their own were attracted or even forced to work some industrial pursuit. And so the movement from the rural areas to the industrial towns increased. It was at this very time period and under these very circumstances that my Smith ancestors moved many miles from agricultural Suffolk to industrial Yorkshire.

Sheep farming required far less man power than did the raising of crops and whenever the economy showed it to be more profitable, such changes caused great unemployment and consequential shifting of the population to other areas where work was available. So you can see how important it is to have a knowledge of background such as this when doing genealogical research.

Now let us consider some of the industrial changes in England and Wales and the resulting genealogical effect.

Before the harnessing of steam which was used in the driving of machinery, much of the clothing and furniture was produced as a result of "home industry." This "domestic system" provided a welcome and almost necessary supplementary income for the family of the agricultural laborer. In 1765, James Hargreaves introduced the spinning jenny, which of course could be used either in the home or in the factory. This invention curtailed but did not entirely cut out the domestic system of production. Then in 1769, Sir Richard Arkwright patented a water driven spinning frame which could be used only in the factories. With the further development of steam power and the growing demand for more cotton and woolen goods, the factories became part of the English industrial scene.

Factories were built near the coal deposits necessary for the production of steam. The domestic system was unable to compete with the speed and economy of factory production and so a large number of "home" industrial workers moved into the factory towns.

Further inventions all but eliminated completely the home production and the growth of the industrial towns continued.

In 1769 James Watt perfected the steam engine. Edmund Cartwright's automatic loom appeared in 1785, and George Stephenson introduced his railway locomotive in 1829.

Such inventions and the development of canals made possible speedier transportation of raw materials, development of more economical coal mining, and an increased production of finished factory goods. The Bessemer system of steel production in the 1870's just about completed the industrial revolution.

There is ample evidence of the growth of these industrial and factory towns in the population returns of 1851. Look at this example: "The increase of population in the township of Little Chester is ascribed to the erection of manufactories on the banks of the river Derwent."

Now let's look at the effect historical events had on our English and Welsh ancestors. I will only be able to mention some of these important events and strongly recommend that every person doing research in England and Wales have access to a reputable book outlining the history of these countries.

From a genealogical standpoint, the Civil War (1642-1649) and the resulting commonwealth period of 1653-1660 were of great importance. During these periods many of the parish registers were either badly kept or in many cases not kept at all. Other examples of national events which had a great influence on genealogical success include the emergency of the non-conformist religions in the 1700's, the Napoleonic Wars from 1793-1813 and the periods of colonization during the reign of Queen Victoria.

A knowledge of events of local historical and economic interest is also of great importance in genealogical research. Thus, it would be an advantage to study the history not only of the county but of the immediate locality in which research is to be carried out. County and town histories and topographical dictionaries will provide this important information. Such a study may well explain the movement of an ancestor from one parish to another, and may even suggest the actual path of such a move. Here is an example of this. Frome in the county of Somerset is famous for the manufacture of woolen cloth. Now Frome is situated in the center of an area which is principally agricultural. About 15 miles to the northeast of Frome is another famous woolen producing town, Trowbridge, which is in the neighboring county of Wiltshire. This occupational connection between these two towns may well suggest that earlier generations of a weaving family in Frome may have originated in Trowbridge or vice versa. Certainly consideration should be given to such a possibility.

So you see that genealogical research is more than knowing what records are available for a certain period of time. In many instances the use of genealogical records will only be suggested by a knowledge of the social, historical, and economical events which affected the people and the area in which they lived. In the next article geography, and topography, maps and gazetteers will be discussed for the same reasons.

Remember then that in genealogical research such information is essential and success can be achieved only by groundwork such as this.

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical texts is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature will contain material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

Geography, Topography, Gazetteers, Maps

Geography and topography are two of several subjects to be considered before and along with the "last resort" method of mechanical area searching.

Geography is a study of land surface including its physical features, its political divisions and even its social customs. Topography places special emphasis on physical features and a description of places. Gazetteers provide a written description of the natural and political divisions of an area including rivers, towns and other political divisions.

Maps provide a birds-eye view of the area and greatly assist in planning searches.

In effect, then, we would be studying maps, gazetteers and topographical dictionaries to determine the geography of a chosen area.

Genealogically, as we study these reference books, we would be watching for clues to possible movement of the family in a particular direction, meshing this with known occupations and possible movement because of occupation. At the same time we would be keeping an eye on historical events that could affect the record keeping in the area and also cause movement of the family. Social and economic conditions will also be affecting the family both as to their appearance in a variety of records and their possible movement from the place they lived.

All this, lumped together is called "background." A genealogist, amateur or professional, must take time to study this background.

It helps to make decisions as to where and what to search and can provide supporting circumstantial evidence when it is needed.

Physical features

On pages 207-211 of volume 2 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales (Bookcraft, Inc., Salt Lake City, 1959) an example is given of how the research approach will be different if there is a bridge across a wide river (the Mersey as the example) as against the approach if there is no bridge (the River Severn as an example).

Thus, topography creates recording problems -- some winter roads in the mountains were impassable in the winter. Children were born and when summer came, the official recording of the event may have been overlooked.

On coastal pedigrees, a marriage could have taken place in another port a long way from the "home" parish.

A bridge over a wide river creates a different research procedure from a wide river with no bridge.

It also explains that in some counties in the north of England and certain counties in Wales, the land features were such that the people lived in the valleys along the roads and rivers and their popular direction of travel would be along those roads. Recorded events of birth, christening, marriage, death, and burial would also be at parishes along these roads.

Geography

Market towns also feature importantly in genealogical work as places where farmers took produce to market or purchased needed commodities not found in their own small village. The market town would become the meeting place for future brides and grooms, for news as to possible better farms or better farm laboring jobs since newspapers are of fairly modern origin.

A soldier, during service in England or Wales, yet on active duty, could have been billeted in one of the villages near to his regimental headquarters (see the William Hopewell example on pages 149-151 of volume 2 previously cited).

The sailor, whether merchant navy or British navy could have found his bride and had children christened, at ports along the coast. Even Royal Navy shorebased personnel (plumbers, carpenters, etc.) could be transferred from one base to another some considerable distance away.

Certain counties are famous for certain commodities -- Staffordshire for pottery, Northamptonshire for boots and shoes, Bedfordshire for hats (see Chapter 9 of Volume 2 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales where the main occupations are given for each county). Topographical dictionaries list specific trades and manufactories for the larger communities.

The Tools

1. A modern gazetteer such as those printed by Bartholomew only have value in pin-pointing a place. Its modern printing date can mislead you as to population and a description of the place (village, parish, town, etc.).

2. Topographical dictionaries such as those printed by Samuel Lewis and Company in the 1830's and 1840's are good, not only because the date of printing is nearer to what you would be needing but they also provide the ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the place. Thus a parish is said to be in the archdeaconry (diocese, etc.) of . . . telling you which likely diocese, archdeaconry or peculiar parish had jurisdiction for probate purposes or for granting marriage licenses. Chapter 9 of volume 2 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales gives these details by county and is designed to be used in conjunction with a topographical dictionary. However, such dictionaries are now rare but the items of genealogical value for England have been digested into A Genealogical Gazetteer of England compiled by this author and printed in 1968 by the Genealogical Publishing Company of Baltimore. The date of commencement of those places that are ancient parishes of the Church of England are an additional bonus to the Gazetteer. The topographical dictionaries give the "hundred" (a civil division) in which each ecclesiastical parish is situated. This is useful to know if you intend to use such civil records as tax records which are grouped by parishes in the civil divisions called hundreds."

3. Commerical directories sometimes have to come to the rescue when topographical dictionaries fail. These directories often mention extremely small places not always found in a topographical dictionary. A chapter on commercial directories and how to use them will appear in volume 4 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales.

4. There is a variety of maps available, each geared to its own particular purpose. Those appearing in Lewis' topographical dictionaries, and reprinted as part of volume 2 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales have some omission of places. The + by the name of a place cannot always be relied upon to indicate that that is an ecclesiastical parish. A more accurate set printed by Samuel Lewis and Company around 1840 was found in a book shop in London and now appears as A Genealogical Atlas of England and Wales by Gardner, Harland and Smith, originally printed by Deseret Book Company in Salt Lake City, but lately reprinted (1974) with an index to each parish by Stevenson's Genealogical Center, Provo, Utah. This atlas ignores county boundaries, the country being divided into sections. There are very few inaccuracies. Other county maps will be found in libraries printed as early as the seventeenth century. Their main value is not so much for genealogical reference but for illustrating a family history or as a general visual aid.

Ordinance Survey maps printed by the government are available in most large libraries. Because of their scale, they provide minute details of an area not possible on the maps previously mentioned. The names of small places within a parish are given, the footpaths, the groups of trees, buildings, etc., clearly give a valuable look at the parish for family history purposes. Street maps of towns and cities can be found in books about those towns and in the respective local libraries. From the 1840's to the 1890's Ordinance Survey printed town maps as large as five feet to one mile. The more popular and readily available Ordinance Survey maps are one inch to the mile printed generally between about 1800 and 1850.

Tithe maps are sometimes available for specific parishes and show who owns the land and the amount. These are to be found, when they exist, in county record offices. They were made in the late 1830's and 1840's and have more family history than genealogical value.

A few years ago, the Genealogical Society of Utah printed a probate jurisdiction research paper for every county in England and for groups of counties in Wales. The maps in these research papers are extremely well done and are color coded to the probate jurisdiction together with a decision table showing the order in which the different probate jurisdictions should be searched. Another valuable addition to the field are the county maps printed by the Institute of Heraldic and Genealogical Studies in Canterbury, Kent and available as a book of maps through Everton Publishers, Logan, Utah as Parish Maps of the Counties of England and Wales. These county maps show the boundary of each parish, the date of commencement of the registers of each parish and the probate jurisdiction for the area as stated in earlier topographical dictionaries.

Never before has so much reference material been available to the genealogist for these two countries. Each reference source has its peculiar value and the genealogist should consider carefully the value of each. A thorough understanding of them is as important as a musician becoming familiar with all the notes on a piano.

Places and People – Problems With Names

This article will deal with the problem of misreading names, abbreviations, phonetics and other name problems that arise in English / Welsh research procedures.

NAMES OF PEOPLE

One of the first things we ask about an individual is, "what is his name?"

Have you ever thought what it would be like to try to do genealogical research or write a history if your ancestors had not had names? You would say this is just about impossible. But even with names and other identifying features, there are still many problems when research is undertaken. One of the obvious ones, of course, is that many persons have the same given names and surnames as other persons. Think of the confusion this can and does cause!

For example, during the period 1936-1964 the surname Smith appeared most frequently in American social security records. Of the 60 most common surnames more than 90% were English.¹ In England in the fourteenth century 64% of all males born received the given names of Henry, John, Richard, Robert or William.² With such frequency of the same given names and surnames being applied to different individuals, genealogy becomes more challenging than hunting and fishing.

The real intent of this article, however, is to draw attention to some of the lesser known circumstances connected with English names.

MISREADING OF HANDWRITTEN NAMES

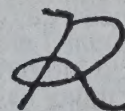

Faced with reading the handwriting of someone else who lived hundreds of years ago, one has to be very careful. Abbreviations were used for given names that can be misinterpreted; phonetic spellings were sometimes used for surnames that might not be recognized. What we now consider as established surnames may also have been used as given names; and some surnames are spelled the same way as others except for the initial letter.

The correct interpretation of the initial letter then becomes of paramount importance. The capital letters "K" and "R" look alike in the old scripts and are often confused. An error in the interpretation of that first letter can thus produce an entirely different surname, which may not be the surname of the individual in question at all.

For example, the surname Kay is very common in Lancashire, England. The surname Ray occurs in the same county though with much less frequency. With care, these two surnames can be segregated and interpreted correctly most of the time, although occasionally even the experts are baffled and a Ray becomes a Kay or vice versa.

K's

The wrong interpretation of that capital letter may mean a wrong pedigree connection is made, or a correct pedigree connection is missed.

Study the infant baptism entries as shown in the example on the following page as they appeared in the Church of England parish of Leigh, Lancashire.

Note the baptism (christening) of Margaret daughter of Edmund and Anne Kay. This took place 4 July 1784.

The entry immediately following it took place 10 July 1784 and is for Thomas son of John and Betty Ray.

1. Assisted by the fact that many Continental European emigrants anglicized their surnames for simplicity after they arrived.

2. The Lives and Times of Our English Ancestors, Volume 1, Page 88, by Frank Smith (Everton Publishers, Logan, Utah, 1969).

Note the similarity of Kay and Ray. Thus, if someone was searching for the surname, Ray, they need to be alert to the fact that Kay is a common name in the locality and great care must be exercised in extracting correctly.

Edward Son of Samuel & Ellen Barret of Tyldesley
 Esther Daug. of John & Ellen Sherfoot of Bedford
 Margaret Daug. of Edmund & Anne Kay of Hindley Wigan Parish
 Thomas Son of John & Betty Ray of Lorton Winwick Parish
 Peter Son of Thomas & Margt. Garrard of Abram Wigan Parish
 Joseph Son of Samuel & Mary Page of Lorton Winwick Parish
 Anne Daug. of Thomas & Betty Alfred of Atherton

The handwritten versions of David and Daniel are as challenging as any to interpret even as we write them today as well as when written in handwriting of hundreds of years ago.

David

DAVID - EARLY

DAVID - "MODERN"

A misinterpretation of this given name means a possible pedigree connection missed. Great care in interpretation must, therefore, be used. In fact the adage "haste makes waste" is well applied here.

After a marriage of 29 July 1911, the local registrar sent to the Registrar General's office in London, a handwritten copy of the certificate of Albert Fuguel to Eleanor Elstub to be indexed and filed in that central repository. The clerk in London, when interpreting the surname Elstub, wrote it in the index as Elstick. If you will write both spellings in longhand you will easily see how a misreading could take place. This may not seem serious until it is recalled that the spelling in the index is the key to finding the actual marriage entry.

In another civil registration example, some of the children of James Brabban and his wife Ann Tamms were born after civil registration started in 1837. On the birth certificate of one of them the name of the mother is wrongly interpreted as Ann JAMES. Again, one can readily see how a handwritten Tamms can wind up as James. Yet, if you were to rely solely on this birth certificate to look for a marriage of the parents, you would be looking for the marriage of James Brabban to Ann James -- and never find it. Thus, it becomes a good practice to get more than one birth certificate of the children in a family if only to make comparisons.

Informant errors

One example of this nature will suffice although there are hundreds of others. Thomas Nightingale married his wife Rebecca Streeton 28 July 1834 at Yaxley in Huntingdonshire. They had several children born after civil registration commenced. On one of these birth certificates the mother is called Elizabeth Nightingale formerly Stretton and on another one she is called formerly Rebecca Speechley. Try to remember that on civil registration certificates, names are not always correct. A neighbor, for instance, may be the registrar's informant of the birth of a child. She, appearing at the registrar's office, may not know what type of information the registrar will ask. Sometimes a guess is made, sometimes the information is twisted around but it has to do with names as the example shows.

Phonetic spelling of surnames

Much has been said of such popular examples as Cholmondley pronounced Chumley. Perhaps Maughan pronounced locally as Maffan and Mainwaring pronounced locally as Mannering may not be as well known to the reader. Everyone (or almost everyone) knows Leicester is pronounced "Lester" and popular songs help us with such pronunciations as "Barkley Square" which is written Berkeley Square.

Always remember that there was no accepted way of spelling any word until comparatively recent times. Thus, with many dialects to contend with, a name can be spelled in a variety of ways. In fact, the same surname repeated several times in one probate document can appear spelled several different ways, thus demonstrating that there were no established rules.

For example, Eleanor Barker married John Johnson at Weaverham, Cheshire, England 29 October 1707. In the will of Eleanor's father, Richard Barker, proved in the Episcopal Consistory Court of Chester 22 Jan 1715-6, she is referred to as Eleanor Joynson.

When Thomas Snowden's will was recorded 19 January 1696 in the Episcopal Consistory Court of Durham (England), he signs as Snawden. In the same probate court records appears a will for Renald Stoker proved 28 Nov 1700. In the inventory of his goods the name is spelled Staker.

In an alphabetical index a researcher must learn to watch for these and other spelling variations.

Mishearing of names.

This is closely allied to phonetic spelling of names, though a little different. For example, in the parish of Hatfield, Lincolnshire in 1760, William Gravill married Alice Outwin. At least, this is the way it is recorded in the parish registers, but in the marriage banns book her surname is recorded as Houghton. This is not as far removed from Outwin as one might first think. In the first place, the letter "H" can be added before a vowel at will. Secondly, the letter 'W' in the middle of a word is often silent as in Warwick (Worrick), Norwich (Norrich) etc.

This is invaluable knowledge when analyzing pedigree problems and using indexes. Nicholas Champlin and his wife Joan had children back to 1734 at Egguckland, Devon. The compiler of Mr. Boyd's marriage index to some of the Devonshire parishes calls him Nich Chamberlain (taken from the printed registers) while the actual marriage entry in Plymstock parish registers in 1731 calls him Nicholas Champerlin. One can readily see the relationship to all three spellings, probably a combination of mishearing and misreading the surname.

Local dialects can cause some wild spellings as a result of mishearings. The local parish minister need not be a native of the area and thus may not speak the local dialect. Thus he may have to write simply what he hears. Its no good asking the parishioner how he spells his name. He wouldn't know. Nor is the minister likely to condescend to ask the question anyway. Take for example the case of Thomas Ostler's christening in a parish in Devon in 1792. The bishop's transcripts give his surname as Ostler (probably written by the native parish clerk) whereas the parish registers (probably written by the minister) spell the name Worsler which is no doubt what the 'foreign' parish minister heard when spoken in the broad local dialect. Indexed under Worsler, this could cause quite a problem because the pedigree surname is Ostler.

Numerous other examples could be given, many having individual characteristics all their own. Some others could be standardized into name ending groupings such as -ford, -forth and -fork as in Pitchford, etc., but to which must be added Pick as in Pickford, Pickforth, etc.

With a name like Hawood being synonymous with Hayworth in a place like Lancashire, one can get completely lost. When do you stop thinking this might also be this? For example, do you ignore Harwood and Harworth? These might be distinctly different families related to other spelling variations. All I can suggest is that you try to watch for every reasonable possibility.

I must mention one more tricky one that appears in Wiltshire with the surname Yates (or is the surname Yeates?). Both these spellings occur but often the surname is written Eates, possibly misheard from the local dialectic pronunciation.

Surnames used as given names and vice versa

This is not a discussion on naming systems, of which there are many varieties, but rather on the use of regular given names as surnames and vice versa.

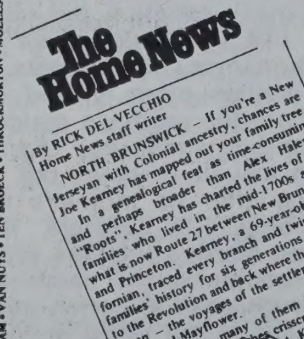

Families often wished to perpetuate the mother's maiden surname by naming one of the children (usually a male, but not always) after its mother's maiden surname. For example, if John Jones married Frances Willerton, the couple might name one of their children Willerton Jones. If the sex is not given in the birth or christening entry of that child, more time is needed to study the problem in order to determine the NORTH BRUNSWICK — If you're a New Jersey with Colonial ancestry, chances are Joe Kearney has mapped out your family tree. In a genealogical feat as time-consuming as "Roots", Kearney has charted the lives of families who lived in the mid-1700s along what is now Route 7 between New Brunswick and Princeton. Kearney, a 69-year-old Californian, traced every branch and twig of the families' history for six generations, forward to the Revolution and back where the Colonies began — the voyages of Dutch interlopers and Mayflower.

New families, many of them crisscrossed over the map, are also contained in the issue.

In 1766 Azariah Dunham made a map of the road that served as the dividing line between Somerset and Middlesex counties in New Jersey. He marked down two churches, four taverns, and farther down the road at Prince Town, the college. He even indicated the location of apple and hickory trees.

More importantly, at least to later generations, he recorded the names of 50 farm families.

Two hundred years later, Joseph N. Kearney of Port Hueneame came across Dunham's map—and began a project that lasted nine years and isn't over yet.

Kearney, using tax records and wills, passenger lists from sailing ships, church and cemetery records, has researched the 50 families who lived along the road from Princeton to New Brunswick.

Various Methods of Indexing Names

Indexes are great research tools, but they must be used carefully. Always take the time to learn how the index is arranged. For example, Mr. Percival Boyd's marriage index covering several million Church of England marriages pre-1838, uses a phonetic system so that when using it you will find Knight marriages under the letter N for Night. This system is explained at the beginning of each volume of the index, but many people are in too great a hurry and they do not take time to grasp the system.

In the International Genealogical Index (IGI) of millions of births, christenings and marriages owned by the Genealogical Society of Utah, one method of indexing is employed for given names and a different method is used for surnames.

a. Given Names -- No attempt has been made to combine spellings so names like Betty and Elizabeth appear separately and even Isabel and Isobel appear separately, strictly alphabetical.

Likewise, all the variations of William, Wm., Willm and several Latin variations of Guillelmus all appear strictly alphabetical under their respective surnames. Thus, with thousands of entries appearing for any one surname, the various spellings are pages away from each other and could be overlooked if one did not study the system first.

For example, if a search was made in the IGI for the birth or christening of William Banks 1720-1740, there may be a group of Guillelmus Banks chronologically arranged according to the recorded date of the event, then many pages further on you might find a group of Williams chronologically listed and so on. At this point, a list of Latin / English given names becomes important and one appears

b. Surnames -- These are combined under an arbitrary "principal spelling" with which you may not agree. However, there is a reference to each actual spelling. For example, Joynson see Johnson. There is no guarantee, however, that all variations have been combined and no guarantee that all variations listed together actually belong to that surname. For example, for some strange reason Baxter and Baker are filed together, but it certainly cannot be assumed that these surnames are synonymous.

It should always be remembered that indexes are generated from an original entry. For example, Alred Ellerby was born in Bradford, Yorkshire in 1848, but the name is spelled Helloby on his birth certificate and appears as Helloby in the birth indexes of the Register General. Another example, Elizabeth Gibb died in Somerset and her death entry appears in the civil registration indexes under Gabe which is the way the registrar heard the name from the dialect spoken.

Problems With Common Surnames

Certain surnames are common to certain areas. Contrary to what some people think, the surname Smith can even be uncommon in certain English areas. It is obviously uncommon in Wales.

Reversely, what may be thought to be an uncommon surname can be very common in the area in which it is found. I once went to a parish in Gloucestershire thinking it would not take me long to extract the Burford surname I was looking for. When I opened the registers about every tenth entry was either Burford, Burfoot, Barefoot, etc.

The greatest difficulty in tracing ancestors in south Lancashire and west Yorkshire is the small number of different surnames, plus the fact that the population is high and the christening entries often do not give the mother's given name.

It is common to find in Lancashire that you have eight likely Betty Ogden christenings (a surname found seldom anywhere else) to choose from. You may eliminate perhaps four of these, but unless a will is found after Betty married, mentioning her by her married surname, the line could stop right there. This is true of thousands of Yorkshire and Lancashire pedigree surname lines. The surname, Lee (Leigh, etc.), is just about impossible to search in Lancashire. I have lines of Brooks, Dyson, and Sugden in Yorkshire which I have not been able to develop before 1800 because the names are so common and wills are absent. Other people have surnames such as Hirst, Bottomley, etc. in the same area and they receive the same negative results. There are many more examples. Each geographic area has its own surnames which are common to that area in particular.

Illiteracy

The following statement, by a minister, was copied from a Northamptonshire nonconformist register and it tells it all:

"Remarks that may be requisite, or at least, of Service, should this Register be called for upon any Occasion after my Decease.

vis .1. There are Some Persons whose children I have Baptized so very Ignorant and uninstructed as to be unable to give me their names in writing, or by spelling them to me; and sometimes so faulty in their pronunciation that I am unable to say positively that the names are exactly and literally

Right; but these are very few, and I have taken the utmost care to be as exact as possible.

2. The same Difficulty has attended me in setting down the Names of the Places of Residence of Persons whom it has been thought requisite to insert vis. the Residence of the Wife's fathers - these Places being pronounced very different from the Manner in which they are written, and having no Map at hand, I have used my best Judgment in following the vulgar Pronunciation, but cannot therefore be answerable for it that I have spelt those Places right. --

3. As to the Time of the Children's Birth; I have been obliged to depend intirely upon the Parents, or some Persons who were present at that Event. All I am answerable for, is the Time when they were Baptised; (the phrase 'Time when they were Baptised' was in larger writing then the remainder of remarks) and as to that I can declare I have been conscientiously and scrupulously exact; and am persuaded in my own Mind it is absolutely free from Error, and what I could attest with Confidence in any Court of Judicature."

Thomas Porter

Living Families Make Errors Too

In the parish registers of East Retford, Nottinghamshire appears this infant baptism entry:

"21 July 1755 Elizabeth, by the Godmother's mistake -- should have been called Mary daughter of John Palfreyman alias Ward. They already had a daughter Elizabeth."

For every such explicit entry how many others appear without an explanation and thus the infant baptism, which is perhaps the only record of that child, is recorded under a different given name than the name they used as they grew up and married and died. These human situations make connected pedigrees just a little more difficult to come by.

Human nature being what it is, there must be many children recorded at birth one way and then known later another way. Tying the two together can be a problem. I had a sister registered at birth as Hannah Maria. She grew up as Annie and then later she was called Ann.

Name Errors Perpetuated Through Manuscript and Printed Registers

Anything in print has to be correct! This is not so! The accuracy of a printed record or a transcribed record is only as accurate as the transcriber and proofer. Vincent and Mary Saxton had children at Papplewick, Nottinghamshire dating back to 1720. In the printed marriage registers of Arnold, nearby, appears, "22 April 1718 Vincent Jackson to Mary Denison."

The original register has Sackson (not Jackson or Saxton) for the marriage and the bishop's transcripts have Saxon as the surname at time of marriage.

Indexes derived from the printed registers would perpetuate Jackson, the wrong name. This is a good argument for working closely with the original records.

The Human Error Side of a "Reliable" Recorder.

Everyone makes mistakes. Mistakes even occur in official records, admissible in courts of law. We need to remember that mistakes in recording do occur so watch for them.

One of the more common errors occurs when a parish minister is recording a christening, a marriage, or burial and is either distracted at the time of recording or finds his notes are not complete and he makes a guess at part of the entry.

Take as an example the christening entry of Elizabeth, daughter of William and Elizabeth Smith. When other supporting records were found for this family, the child, Elizabeth, was actually given some other name. This occurs often enough that it can be assumed that the minister had his mind on the name of the mother, Elizabeth, and mistakenly wrote Elizabeth as the name of the child instead of the actual name the child was given. The reverse is also true. Elizabeth may be the name of the child and absentmindedly, the minister or his clerk, repeats the name of the child, Elizabeth, as the name of the mother, while in actual fact, the name of the mother might have been Sarah.

In 1720 at Burton Joyce in Nottinghamshire, John Stone is shown as marrying Deborah Palethorpe. When all the children were christened at the parish of Beeston, nearby, the father is written as George in every instance. One can only guess at the origin of the error. The real issue is in recognizing that a recording error did take place and that George (or is he John?) may have been christened as either John or George.

Confusion With Abbreviated Given Names

Common to certain areas of England is the custom of abbreviating given names, particularly in church records. It cannot always be assumed that the abbreviation, Geo., is meant to be George. It could be Geoffrey, although Geoffrey as a given name does not occur as often as George.

In the north of England, abbreviated given names are quite common in parish registers and they often cause confusion. Jos. is a nasty one because it could refer to Joseph, Josiah or Joshua. The popular use of biblical given names in that area means that Eli. could be Elisha, Elijah or just plain Eli. The possible alternatives when Jo. is written should be obvious.

Confusion With Abbreviated Surnames

In some church records surnames have been abbreviated and the intent is not always obvious. P'ker (sometimes without the apostrophe) could be Parker, Packer, Porker, etc.). Correct assumptions of the intent of the writer can often be made by studies of other entries of these surnames in the same time period where the surname is written out in full. For example, in Rothwell, Yorkshire the only version of P'ker that is written out in full is Parker. Comparisons can be made with the given names of the parents where christenings and burials are concerned. This will help to identify the correct version of the abbreviated surname.

Even more confusing is the case where the surname has been abbreviated but that abbreviation is also a recognized surname in its own right. I have a Cope Line in Derbyshire which is often written Coap or Coop because of the dialect. In the same parishes the surname Cooper occurs sometimes abbreviated to Coop. or Coop without the period. Thus, great care has to be taken in the use of indexes and in an analysis of the pedigree problem.

In one case I worked on in Bedfordshire, the surname Goodbody

Church Records: Tips, Limitations, Things To Watch For

Definition of Church Records:

Those records of births, christenings, marriages, deaths and burials generated by a religious body such as the Church of England, Roman Catholics, Wesleyans, etc.

Origin: For the origin and background of the records created by these religious bodies, see Chapters 10, 11, 12, 13, 15, 16 and 17 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales, Volume 1.

Omission of Entries: Modern studies that have been made in church records prepared around 1800 come up with a varying omission factor ranging between 15% and 25%. This omission factor took into account families that by this time had turned nonconformist. This study used 1800 as a focal point so that the census returns of 1851 and 1861 could be of use.

Let's take a look at the average parish minister of past centuries. Very often he had farm land with which he spent a lot of time. In such cases his ministerial duties took second place because there was more money to be had looking after the farm. When he was conducting christenings, marriages, and burials, he would almost out of necessity note on a piece of paper the details of the christening or the burial, and before 1754, the marriage. (After 1754 the register format called for the signature of the parties being married and the signature of witnesses, so these would have been written directly into the marriage register in order to record signatures.)

marriages reduced. But for births, a study that was made in 1861, some time after the 1861 census had been taken, showed that in civil registration there was an omission factor of between 2% and 5% from the different samplings.

In Church of England christening registers after civil registration commenced, the omission factor is higher than previously, for two reasons. One is that people were moving to nonconformist chapels in increasing numbers; two, some people had lost interest in any kind of church affiliation. Thus, after 1 July 1837, civil registration has to be relied upon, and I have already shown that there was omission factor there.

Records of Nonconformists (Baptists, Independents, etc.):

The Church of England was somewhat like the civil service in that it provided certain services, take it or leave it. The average minister gave no hope for the future. Even little children who were not baptized went to purgatory, they said, and that was the end of it. The nonconformists, on the other hand, gave the working class population a hope for the future, and they certainly needed one when one considers the conditions under which they had to live out this existence.

Even as early as 1725 when Daniel Defoe made his recorded tour of England, he reported that the nonconformist meetings were crowded and the parish church meetings were poorly attended. Yet most of our nonconformist chapel registers do not go back that far. In 1837 and again in 1857, the Registrar General in London issued a call to all ministers of nonconformist chapels to send in their registers for safekeeping, with a guarantee that they would be not only preserved but considered as private records. Many nonconformist groups sent in their registers; some did not. Particularly lacking are the Catholic registers, understandable because of the penal law under which they lived for centuries. An example in point is Lancashire, where only one Catholic register found its way to the Registrar General's collection. Whereas the Catholic Record Society has located and printed more than seventy sets of Catholic chapel registers for that county.

It is not really possible to come up with an omission factor within the nonconformist register itself because many families shuttled back and forth between that preacher and the parish minister of the Church of England. Doubtless some were missed.

By 1850, about 50% of the population were nonconformist (based on 1851 census statistics), so the christening omission factor in parish registers varies according to the period of time in question. Certainly by 1800, when the nonconformists were gaining in popularity, the christenings of many persons will not be found in parish registers of the Church of England. Some of these will be found in the registers of the nonconformist chapel, but many will not. By 1800, as has been said, there was a great lack of interest in attending church services at all. This contributed to the omission factor.

Church Records: The Information They Can Give You

The first of these is the fact that church records are a valuable source of information for the researcher. They can give you a great deal of information about the lives of your ancestors, and they can help you to find out more about the history of the church itself. For example, you can find out when your ancestors were baptized, married, and buried, and you can find out what church they belonged to. This information can be very helpful in tracing your family history, and it can also be useful in understanding the social and cultural context of your ancestors' lives.

Another important fact is that church records are often well-preserved and easy to access. Many churches have dedicated staff members who are responsible for maintaining their records, and they are often happy to provide information to researchers. In addition, many churches have made their records available online, which makes it even easier for you to find the information you need.

Church of England Records and the Omission Problem: Here are some examples showing that omissions did occur together with some reasons for the occurrences:

Parish registers of Kirk Heaton, Yorkshire; memorandum in registers:

The registers 1711-1712 are very imperfect. We have been forced to gather the names from loose papers found in the study of the late curate after his decease.

Bishop's transcripts of Mellor, derby; note dated 20 May 1756:

My immediate predecessor, Mr. Hadfield continued to celebrate marriages here long after ye Mar. Act was in force, ye greatest part of which mar. were never entered in ye register.

Printed parish registers of Wing, Bucks, page 286:

From 1753-1769 they [bishop's transcripts] are of some value as they reveal many errors and omissions in the Register, which was badly kept during this period.

Parish registers of Ludgershall, Wilts.:

In 1778 the Rector stated that in future he would keep the registers as the parish clerks were illiterate and ignorant and they had made omissions.

Another omission factor is the cloud surrounding the birth of children born out of wedlock. In the latter half of the eighteenth century, one in twelve children born in industrial areas, and one in fourteen born in the country, were illegitimate. For obvious reasons, many of these would not be christened.

Another interesting point about illegitimacy not generally known: be careful when using printed or copied registers just in case the copyist had strong feelings about illegitimate children. They have been known to have been left out of the copy because of the private feelings of the copyist.

In summary, it is very clear to me that many omissions of christenings occur for one reason or another. Having used probate records extensively for many years, it is amazing how many times in the direct line families I have worked on that a will of a parent or other relative is found which names the living children in a family, and an additional child or children is listed whose christenings cannot be found.

Late Christenings in Church Records: Closely allied to the problem of omission of entries is the problem of late christenings. These can be as bad as omissions if one is not aware of such a habit so that wide period searches can be made accordingly. Sometimes, just before a marriage, will appear the christening of an adult. Presumably the minister refused to perform the ceremony until a baptism and confirmation had taken place. At these christenings, usually no parents' names are given.

Sometimes, one sees a whole family baptized at once. Presumably the minister has gone around the parish and roped in a family here and there where no previous christenings had taken place. This is not confined to whole families, however. Of course, the only reason we know they are late is that the date of birth is also given or an age at christening. The parents are given when the children are living at home; otherwise, an entry might state:

John Jones, an adult

Here are some examples:

Parish registers of Blackrod, Lancashire:

John Brindle of Blackrod now thinking it may sometimes be Convenient to have his Children registered has this day applied to have them registered Accordingly. The reason why they are not regularly registered before is because they were born of Decenting [sic] Parents

Duplicate Records--Which is Accurate?: First, we need to be aware that in the case of the Church of England, there are duplicate records created near the time the event being recorded took place. Let's imagine that we are about to witness an infant baptism. We see the parish minister (or his non-conformist counterpart) hold the baby over the baptismal font and sprinkle it with water. The Baptists were the exception to this rule. How did the minister make the first recording? Did he take the family into the vestry before or after the ceremony and write the information directly into the christening register? He may have done in some instances. But there is ample evidence to show that oft times the first entry was on a piece of scrap paper which he placed in his pocket. Alternatively the parish clerk, if he had one, could make the entry directly into the register or on a scrap of paper. These scraps of paper have been found. In fact, there is on record the fact that a certain parish minister walking home along the canal bank from the church, found a piece of paper on the ground. On examination, it carried the details of the christenings he had performed that day. He says he returned to the church and faithfully recorded the information.

Then there are day books that are compiled before a recording in the parish register. Some of the medium- and larger-sized parishes kept a day book recording details of the events of the day. These might not be just christenings, marriages and burials, but other events having to do with the repair of the church, etc. Many of these paper day books are still in existence.

From these day books the further copies of parish registers and bishop's transcripts were then prepared. This was not necessarily done daily. It is very apparent when looking at an 'original' parish register that the color of ink and the handwriting is the same for a month or several months, indicating that the entries were all recorded at the same time.

When it comes to parish register recordings and bishop's transcript recordings, there are instances when it is evident that the bishop's transcript was recorded before the parish register, sometimes at the same time. In fact, sometimes the bishop's transcript was the only recording of the two, and vice versa. I think it would be safe to assume that generally, the parish register was the first recording of the two, though not always.

Thus an important point emerges: there could be as many as four recordings of a christening, marriage, or burial. (Marriages after 1754, however, called for the signing of bride and groom and witnesses, though this was not always done.) Comparisons of the information contained in the different recordings show that the information differs in the different versions. At best, writing was laborious in those days, and there were strong temptations to edit and use abbreviations. Editing of information from one copy to another was common. Here are a few examples to demonstrate that ideally, an examination ought to be made of all contemporary copies of the recording of such events:

1. Henry Edwards and his wife Elizabeth have children recorded in the parish registers of Pyecombe, Sussex, back to 1791, but the couple was not married there. In the bishop's transcripts of a nearby parish (bishop's transcripts were often easier to search because they were grouped in one repository either for a diocese or an archdeaconry) called Newtimber, appears a marriage in 1790 of an Henry Edwards to a Mary Pellen. A check of the parish registers of Newtimber shows that Henry Edwards was of Pyecombe and his wife was Elizabeth Pelling of Newtimber, making it much easier to accept the entry as the ancestral marriage.

2. Richard Lawson had children christened at Aughton, Yorkshire, back to 1700. The minister could find no marriages 1690-1698 in the parish registers. The bishop's transcripts, however, show that on 17 November 1698, Richard Lawson married Jane Painter.

3. The parish registers of Brampton, Derbyshire, show Charles Revill married to an Elizabeth Hodkin. In Maltby, Yorkshire, a Charles and Elizabeth Revill have children which fit this marriage, even though some distance separates the two parishes. Fortunately, the bishop's transcripts state Charles Revill to be of Maltby, Yorkshire, the clinching factor not shown in the parish registers.

4. At Little Barford in Bedfordshire, Henry Tingey was buried 14 October 1781. The parish registers say he was aged 49. The bishop's transcripts have age 49 written, then crossed out and age 58 substituted. Henry was christened at Little Barford in 1723, showing the corrected age in the bishop's transcripts to be correct.

In summary, then, it may be safely said that we do not know which, if any, of the recordings is accurate, because in addition to copying errors, we have to consider dialect problems, mishearing and other human factors.

The best we can do, then, is to be aware of the facts and consider checking other copies of the entry if they exist, as well as using other sources.

Damaged Records, Lost Records, Gaps in Records: Parish registers have been burned, damaged by flooded churches, stolen by vandals, eaten by rats and insects, become illegible through old age, and destroyed during World War II air raids. During the last war, some ministers even gave them up in the paper drives! Over the centuries they were popular with the minister's family for use with hair curling tongs. Bishop's transcripts have deteriorated because they are in single leaves which get damaged at the edges and at folds. They too, suffer from old age. Many were not sent in at all by parish ministers. In fact, the minister of a 'peculiar parish' was not obliged to send them in at all. In some sets of bishop's transcripts, certain years are missing for ALL parishes in the diocese, indicating that they were all thrown away for that period or all misplaced and never reached the main collection. In Yorkshire, a whole cartload fell into a swiftly moving river as the horse and cart were crossing a small bridge. They were being moved from one registry to another.

Sometimes a minister was sick for a long period and without a parish clerk:

Bishop's transcripts of Glossop, Derby; note:

Deficiency in the Register from June ye 24th 1726 to ye death of ye late vicar Mr. Warnshaw decd. upon account of his neglect. Feb. 1729.

Sometimes after the death of a parish minister, a new one was not inducted into the living for months or even years. Ministers of neighboring parishes would have to perform marriages and burials for the parishioners in the 'vacant' parish, but many christenings would be neglected or else performed and not recorded.

Death in Infancy -- A Factor not always Appreciated in Research: Lack of good medical care, poor sanitation and poor nutrition resulted in a high death rate among children in past centuries.

Some statistics are available for the eighteenth century, and these are typical of all periods prior to about 1850. In London in the first part of that century, only one child in four survived birth. In the cities and towns generally, 50% of the children born died under the age of two, and another 11% died under the age of five. In the outlying communities it must have been about the same.

Obviously, a person dying so young cannot be an ancestor, so great care must be taken to make sure that a person whose christening has been found and who appears to be a possible ancestral connection did not die before marriageable age. Unfortunately, the burial registers in many parishes leave much to be desired. Sometimes the burial entry does not indicate parentage. The burial might say 'John Smith' or 'John Smith infant.' In the case of the 'John Smith' burial, this could refer to a child or an adult unless the habit of the recorder can be determined. If, in the same time period, the recorder is giving parents' names in many of the burial entries, it could be assumed that the 'John Smith' burial was that of an adult. Parents' names were only given at all if the child was young and unmarried. Many pedigrees have, unfortunately, been built on a person who died before marriageable age and could not have sired children.

On many family group records compiled on families that lived during these centuries, it is not possible to show accurately 60% of them dying before marriageable age. Add to this the fact that the burial could have taken place and been recorded in another parish, and one should soon realize that when using church records alone (use of other supporting sources having failed), one has to be extremely cautious in accepting any christening record as ancestral.

An example of the high infant mortality rate is well demonstrated in a tombstone inscription in the churchyard at Buxtead, Sussex: Elizabeth, wife of William Newnham of Framfield, died 16 Oct 1792 in her 37th year, left nine children dead, viz, John, William, Benjamin, Elizabeth, Sarah, Anne, Mary, Henry and Robert

It used to be thought by many of us that if there were several children in a family all bearing the same given name, that the earlier children bearing that given name had died before another child in the family received the same given name. Experience has shown that this is not so. Some examples from probate records of couples who have children living and having the same given name appears on page 134 of Volume 2 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales. Numerous other examples have since appeared in articles in various magazines.

There is great value in realizing this, because assuming that you have three children named William in a family, and it appears that all survived to marriageable age, the youngest William may have been born too young to be your ancestral connection. But the first or second William may be eligible candidates for the pedigree connection when it is realized that they may not have died young and be eligible by age. Of course; proof of this should be sought through the use of probate and other records.

Recording of Birth, Christening, Marriage, Death or Burial in the 'Home' Parish not to be Assumed: There were no rules in England and Wales that such recordings were to be made in the registers of the parish in which a person lived (marriages by banns post-1753 were excepted), or in which he was said to have been born.

It is doubtful if many laboring families not owning land actually knew where the parish boundaries were. Thus the tendency would be to go to the physically nearest or most convenient parish church. This would be sometimes true even though parish boundaries were known. Doubtless, some christenings of children took place even further away than adjacent parishes, perhaps in the parish where the parents of the husband or wife resided.

In addition, there were times when the parish church was completely closed down for repairs or re-building. This could result in a gap in the register. Sometimes explained in writing and sometimes not explained. Business transacted in a nearby parish by members of the closed church might record that they were of the parish or might not.

Where one parish minister was preferred over another, there was nothing wrong with the family going to his parish church for their christenings, etc. A popular nonconformist minister might establish himself in the neighborhood and attract some families away from the Church of England, maybe for one christening, or several, or for generations. Many family groupings show some of the children recorded christened in a nonconformist chapel and others in the Church of England, sometimes alternating, as the family shuttled back and forth in their religious leanings. Nonconformity in one generation is not necessarily proof that the succeeding generation would follow suit. Families looking for the religion that suited them would switch from one denomination to another, too.

The point to be noted out of all this is that we cannot always expect a complete family to be christened and buried in the one parish. We need to consider other parishes in the area unless there is enough evidence to show that this effort is not warranted.

Emphasis On English Research

Civil Registration – Tips, Limitations, Things to Watch For

Omission of entries: Although official civil registration of births, marriages and deaths began 1 July 1837, it took some time for it to become nationally known in the minds of the public at large.

In the case of marriages it is likely that very few went unrecorded because of the very nature of the routine of getting married. In the case of deaths, again very few would escape the recorder because of rules that did not allow an undertaker (mortician) to conduct a burial without a death certificate having been issued.

Birth recordings, however, were different. The mere fact that the birth index volumes for the quarter years in 1837 are very thin and then get fatter each succeeding year for several years is an indication that many births were not recorded, even allowing for the gradually increasing birth rate. With communications as they were in those days it would take time. The fact that the government, in 1875, placed a penalty on the non-registration of births would indicate that not every birth was being registered.

In 1865 the Statistical Society made a report which, in part, said "the registration of births is very imperfect in some places".¹ However, even though we may be talking of an omission factor as high as 10% in some places, this is sometimes used as a crutch when a desired birth entry cannot be found. In actual fact, the birth index entry is often "hidden" in a place or period of time or alphabetical listing not known to the searcher. The "hidden" entry principle also applies to marriage and death entries. Factors that cause an entry to be so "hidden" have been talked about and written about many times—false traditions, false personal statements, deliberate falsifying of ages, arbitrary change of given names, lack of knowledge of the given names of an individual, unfamiliar dialect when an entry is verbally reported, mishearing, etc.

The filing arrangement in the civil registration master indexes in London (strictly alphabetical) could lead a searcher to think an omission has been made, whereas in actual fact the searcher has not looked in the place where the entry is actually filed.

As certificates were received in London from the registration districts throughout England and Wales, the three monthly indices were prepared by clerks interpreting the handwriting as they thought it to be. Thus, Elstub, translated from the long hand becomes Elstick when misinterpreted and so on.

The final index for each three monthly period of each year of births, marriages and deaths is strictly alphabetical as deciphered by the London clerks. So, if you are looking for record of someone surnamed Simmons, where would you look? You could begin in the index by looking under Simmons but you would need to look at the many other variant spellings of this surname. Some begin with "Sy," some have only one m, some have no d some have no s, etc. This variation is because the local registrar did not ask the informant how the name was spelled. Likely the informant did not know because so many could neither read or write. Thus, the spelling became the decision of the registrar and we are left to guess what that decision was. Whatever it was, it became the position in the master index as to where it will be found. This is one reason why I say an entry is often "hidden" in the indexes rather than omitted.

First letters of a surname are sometimes difficult to decipher from the long hand. Thus Jennison was transcribed as Tennison. Obviously the clerk was familiar with Tennison but Jennison, although a surname, is much more unusual.

The given name Catherine may wind up as Katherine. The list is a long one, requiring imagination to think of them all.

Name changes cause problems too. Volume 1 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales cites a Mary Ann in the census who is civilly registered as Esther (page 65). Also, the 1841 census return enumerators were instructed to only record the first given name of a person. Thus, if you were searching for a birth certificate of a child named William in the 1841 census, his full name might have been William Henry, appearing much later in the master index.

Other things to watch for:

1. When you are using birth certificate information to guide you to the marriage certificate of the parents of that person, you may not find the marriage. If this happens, get one or more additional certificates of other children in that same family. The information on the parents can vary quite widely. This may surprise you but you have to place yourself in the circumstances surrounding the birth of that child. Was the informant a friend or a neighbor who simply made a guess at some of the information asked by the registrar? Multiple marriages of the mother can also cause confusion because of mix ups in recording in column 5 of the birth certificate—"Name and Maiden Surname of Mother" (see page 76 and 77 of above volume for an example).

2. When the information about the parents on a birth certificate seems to be "normal" (that is, the parents were married before the birth of the child) it is not necessarily so. Parents have been known to marry after the births of several children, the children's birth certificates appearing to be normal 'after marriage' certificates.

3. Always try to put yourself in the chair of the registrar. He asked all the questions and received answers. Thus, on a marriage certificate, with some of the spaces left blank, perhaps the questions were not asked. Or, in the case made in item two above, maybe the registrar simply asked what was the father's name and what was the mother's maiden name. He was not about to ask if they were married or ask them to show him their marriage certificate. When an illegitimate child marries and is asked for the name of its father, rather than be embarrassed in front of an intended spouse he or she may pull a name out of a hat. It may be the name of a brother, or the name of a grandfather or other person having the same surname. Sometimes, in such cases, the space for the name of the father is left blank but it should not be assumed that because of that, that the child is illegitimate. The father could have died and the registrar failed to write "deceased" and the father's name.

4. A bigamist, marrying again, is going to tell a lie at his unlawful marriage and style himself as a bachelor or widower, as fits his whim. There seems to have been little regard for the penalty for providing wrong information for documents that supposedly were valid in courts of law.

Emphasis On English Research

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature will contain material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

Probate Records - Limitations, Tips, Things To Watch For

Limitations

1. Not every adult left a will. In fact, on an average it is less than 10% of the total population.

2. Wills are disappointing inasmuch as they refer to 'my wife and children' without giving names. The beginning genealogist may also expect the will to give dates of birth and birthplaces but this does not happen in England and Wales.

3. Obviously, children who died young before the will was drawn up will not be named in the will. Deceased adult children, especially married children may be mentioned as also will their spouses.

4. It should not be assumed that even when a testator is naming children in a will that all the living children will be named. There will be instances that one or more children have already received their portion and thus not named. Family feuds may preclude the naming of some members of the family also.

5. It should not be assumed that the children are named in order of birth. Some wills name the males first and then the females. There is no firm pattern.

6. Even when you have an indication from other sources that a family had property, there is no guarantee that a will was ever made. In some cases the disposition of the property was understood beforehand and it was felt that the cost of preparing a will was not needed. In some other cases, although a will was made, conspiring relatives who felt that they would fare better through later Letters of Administration may steal or 'lose' the will. Thus, it was never turned over to the probate court.

7. Sometimes a will appears in the calendar (index, list) of wills for that court but the will cannot be found either in the Genealogical Society's filmed collection or in the original collection in England. The will may still exist, but if it was among loose wills it could now be out of place. Sometimes a will that cannot be found in the filmed collection can be found in the original collection. Possibly the microfilm camera operator missed filming it or it has been replaced in the collection since then.

Tips

1. Wills of spinsters are very valuable inasmuch as they tend to name all their living brothers and sisters, leaving something to each of them. They often name nieces and nephews too.

2. The will of a relative mentioning a female relative in her married surname is a real clincher for a pedigree connection. For example, suppose John Fuller married Ann Smith in 1680. A Smith will proved after 1680 naming Ann Fuller or Ann wife of John Fuller is a thrill to discover. That is why, in English research particularly, it is usually easier to extend the female line than it is the male line. In the case of the male, the fact that a Fuller will mentions a John Fuller is no real proof that it is your John Fuller the will is referring to unless there are other supportive statements. So the chances of extending or proving the female line is much greater.

3. Don't cancel a possible search of wills because you have learned that the father was a miner or a laborer or even a pauper. Such statements do not necessarily preclude that a will was not made. Terms such as laborer and miner, can at best be very deceiving and that person may still choose to dispose of property by will.

4. you need to be aware of the fact that the clerk of the probate court occasionally omitted to record a granted will in the probate calendar (index, list). Where printed probate calendars have been prepared and that calendar has been prepared from the wills themselves, often as many as 5% have been known to have been omitted from the original working calendar. Thus, you may have to be prepared especially if you are looking for a will of an individual whose death date you know, to look for a few years through the wills themselves.

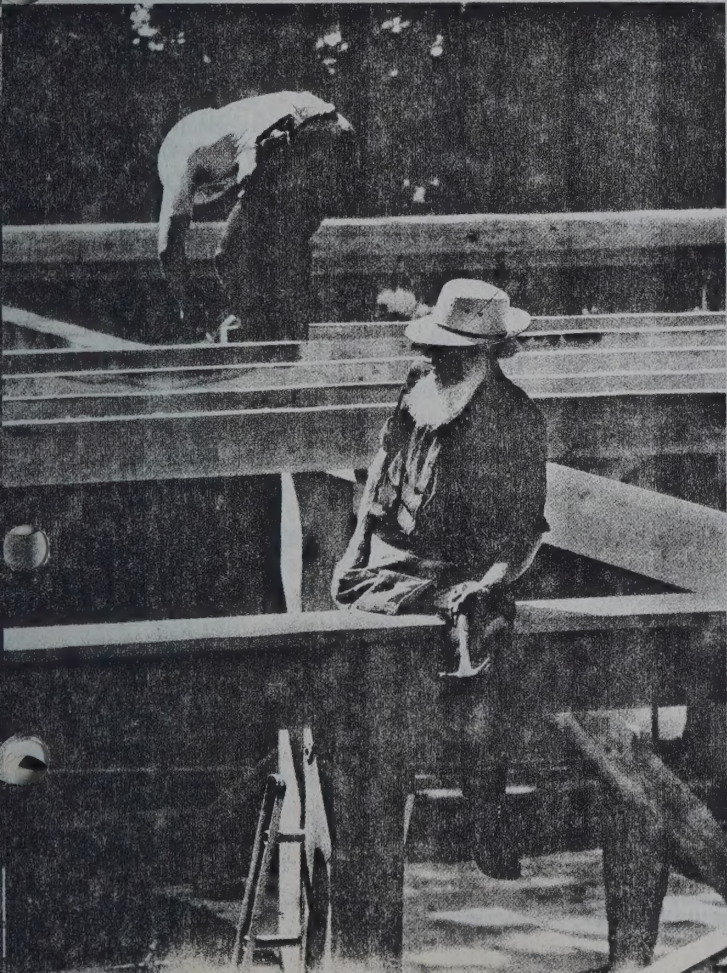

5. An interesting procedure to follow, when all else has failed, is to make a study of all wills for a given period of years proved from the known places of residence of your ancestor. For example, if you have urgent need of support from a probate record and your family lived, in say Stowmarket in Suffolk, lists from the probate calendars of likely probate courts, three in this case, all wills proved from Stowmarket for the period of years you feel would be valuable to the problem. Then examine each of the wills you have listed, watching for mention of your family surname. You see, normally, you have been looking for the wills of persons of your pedigree surname but that would not disclose a Smith will in which is named a niece Mary Twelvetees. Mary may be the girl about whose pedigree you are anxious to trace. Be prepared for some hours of work and some disappointments but you will also have some successes. It would be nice if all wills were indexed by the names of the persons named in the wills but that would be expecting too much.

6. In Chapter 6, Volume 2 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales, Mr. Gardner and myself give a number of examples of the value of wills. These can be summarized as tips as follows:

Susannah Hinton was already given her part of the property outside of the written agreement in the will.

In the Kingdon and Hillier wills there is proof that several children having the same given name can be alive in the same family at the same time.

The Barker will demonstrates that many times proof of the correct connection on the female line is possible.

The Rishton example shows how, through the use of wills, the wrong pedigree connection can be avoided.

The Geer example makes the pedigree connection when support from church records is lacking.

The Heap example shows how, by keeping in mind family tradition, excellent supporting evidence can be found in a will.

The Appleby will gives a clue to a second marriage.

The Bailey will adds additional children and will be emphasized later in this article.

The Meek will proves that what appears to be two generations of children to a John Meek, they are in fact two separate sets of children to one man. Without this will one might have had added one too many generations to the pedigree.

Letters of Administration granted to Eleanor Woodhouse compared with church records showed that she was a widow in 1729 although the parish register did not say so. Such tips to correct marriages that took place before the 1754 marriage act cannot be overestimated. Letters of Administration, although generally extremely brief, are very good in clarifying second marriages.

Among my files of other examples of the value of probate records are the following which give additional tips.

Hopefully they will encourage you, the genealogist, to always use probate records.

A. Proof of a late christening though the church records do not indicate that. Mary Richardson married 16 November 1721 at Wigton, Cumberland to James (Jacobus) Finlinson. There is a likely christening for her at Wigton in 1689, this Mary being the daughter of Robert and Frances Richardson. While examining Richardson wills proved from Wigton, a will was found for a Jacob Richardson proved in 1731 in which he names his daughter, Mary wife of Jacobus Finlinson, and four of their children. This Mary Richardson was christened at Wigton 15 November 1721 ONE DAY BEFORE HER MARRIAGE but without the usual indication that she was an adult.

B. Disproving a likely pedigree connection through the use of two related wills.

Mary Tennant was married in 1752 at Coniston, Yorkshire, to William Beecroft.

In searching for her christening, the only one at Coniston is one which took place in 1720, she being the daughter of John Tennant, a gentleman. William Beecroft is described as a laborer and a miner. Although Mary Tennant is 32 years old when she marries, the fact that William and Mary Beecroft had only two children might indicate that she is ancestral. The will of her father was proved in 1765 at which time he mentions, among others of his large family, his daughter Mary. He does not describe her as Mary Beecroft and so we are left wondering whether she married Beecroft or is still single. Another will, that of her brother John, proved in 1790, mentions his sister, Mary Lang, and this led to the finding of the marriage in the registers of Linton, the next parish to Coniston, of the marriage of a Robert Lang to Mary Tennant in 1767. Robert Lang is a gentleman and the witnesses to the wedding are John Tennant and Giles Tennant, her brothers. This indicates that Mary married when she was 47 and is not the wife of William Beecroft.

C. Avoiding a search for a marriage that you would never find. John and Jane Bate had children christened at Old Swinford, Worcestershire, between 1786 and 1803. One of these, the direct ancestor, Mary Bate, christened in 1786, married in 1803 to Benjamin Moody.

The will of the father, John Bate, was proved from Old Swinford in 1817. Properties were left to two persons named Evan Edwards and William Webb "on trust" for Jane Cox who now lives with me, in case she does not marry. At the marriage or death they are to dispose of property, etc., and divide between my seven children by Jane Cox all who have been baptized in the name of Bate." Then follows the names of the children. In the administration attached is the statement that "one of the dwelling houses was occupied by a Benjamin Moody."

This will shows that although the children were christened as if they were born in wedlock, actually John Bate was living with Jane Cox and the marriage was never solemnized. The will now allows searches to be made for the christening and ancestry of Jane Cox, and this would otherwise have been impossible because the correct marriage would never have been found.

D. Not all children are shown in church records. This happens hundreds of times. Often it is the direct ancestor that is not recorded in the church records, making the probate record a valuable find.

Morris Dunford was married in 1755 at Longbridge Deverill in Wiltshire. From his age at death it was determined that he was born about 1715, but his christening could not be found in the area although there was an Edward and Jane Dunford having children there in 1721, 1725, 1729, and 1733.

The will of a Jane Dunford, a spinster of Longbridge Deverill, was found proved in 1764 in which she mentions children of her brother Edward and his wife Jane. Among them are Morris and Thomas neither of whose christenings were found in the area.

Sometimes three, four and even more additional children can be added to a family group in this way.

E. Proof of the use of patronymics in Welsh families.

David Thomas of Wern in the parish of Llanfrothen in Merionethshire made a will in 1835. His sons are named as follows:

eldest son William Thomas son Thomas Davies son David Thomas son John Davies son Evan Thomas youngest son Morgan Thomas

Thus, it is apparent that some of the sons took their father's given name as a surname (David and Davies being the same name) and others took their father's surname as their surname. The choice was theirs to do so. The girls in the family were allowed to do the same.

E. All searches are positive even though you may not have found what you were looking for. Before you made the search you didn't know that what you sought was not there. That makes the search a positive one. Some wills are of this nature. They do not provide the correct connection but they do eliminate a likely connection. William Tasker married Ann Knight in 1758 at Rotherfield, Sussex and their children were christened at Withyham nearby. In a search of the area two likely christenings were found for Ann Knight, both in a parish called Frant. Both were christened in 1733, one daughter of Richard and Ann, the other daughter of George and Frances. The will of this George Knight was found and names his son-in-law, Thomas Start. Thomas Start married Ann Knight at Frant in 1759 so that Ann is eliminated as the ancestor but there is still no proof that the other Ann, daughter of Richard and Ann, is ancestral.

F. Proof through naming the grandson. Charles Holindrake was christened in 1787 at Bradford Yorkshire, the son of John Holindrake and his wife Mary Thompson who married there in 1784. There are many Mary Thompson christenings that would "fit." An examination of Thompson wills located one for a Jonathan Thompson proved in 1807 from Bradford in which he names HIS GRANDSON CHARLES HOLINDRAKE. Thus we know that Mary's father is named Jonathan.

G. How To Choose from Eleven Likely Christenings. John Oldham married Alice Duckworth in 1783 at Haslingden, Lancashire. At Haslingden there are eleven likely christenings for this Alice. This is a typical situation in Lancashire pedigree work and obviously proof from a will is sorely needed. Fortunately (and one is not always this lucky) there is a will of an Edmund Duckworth made in 1797 in which he names "my daughter, wife of John Oldham." Ironically, none of the other ten likely Alice Duckworth christenings had a father Edmund!

H. How do you know the only likely christening found is the one you should accept as ancestral? Here is an example of how, without the use of a key will, the wrong connection could be made. Mary Newman married Robert Cliff in 1724 at Minchinhampton, Gloucestershire. Looking for her christening, there is one in that parish in 1707 daughter of Richard Newman. Richard has other children christened there too, but there is no other likely Mary. However, at the same time there is a Daniel Newman having children christened in the parish in 1701, 1704, 1706 and 1709 but he does not christen a child Mary, or at least there is no record of one there or nearby. But this Daniel Newman left a will in 1733 in which he names a daughter Mary. So he did have a daughter Mary after all. Both must now be considered as potential pedigree connections.

Things to watch for --

1. Relationships were often a puzzle to the one who wrote the will. This is often gotten around by use of the word 'kinsman' but sometimes a closer relationship is attempted with erroneous results.

2. In which probate court shall I search for a will I need? The recognised procedure is to start with the most likely local probate court and move up through other courts. The research papers on probate jurisdiction in England and Wales, published by the Genealogical Society of Utah are a useful and simple tool to use to determine the order in which searches should be made.

Marriage Banns and Licenses - Tips, Limitations, Things to Watch For

Tips

1. Banns of marriage have always been proclaimed in the Church of England, but it was not until after the marriage act of 1754 that a record was kept that gave information which might be supplemental and helpful to what the actual marriage entry in the parish register said.

After 1754, parish ministers had a choice of either purchasing a printed separate banns book (in which a record would be made of all banns proclaimed from the pulpit) or a printed combined marriage and banns book (in which space was allowed for both the proclamation of the banns and the marriage taking place). Usually the busier town churches purchased the separate banns book. Aside from the fact that sometimes additional genealogical information can be found by comparing both the banns and the marriage entry, there is another important factor that is often not realised.

After 1754, there is a greater chance of finding clues leading to the marriage entry because of the banns book. Suppose that in 1757 John Smith of parish A married Jane Brown of parish B by banns in parish B. As you begin searching for the marriage of this couple you don't know about parish A and B. All you know is that they had children in parish C. You begin to search around for the marriage, but because the marriage took place after the magic figure, 1754, you have increased your chances of finding the marriage if you also search the banns books. Finding record of the banns in a parish in which the marriage did NOT take place leads you directly to the parish in which the marriage DID take place because it states the name of the parish in which the other party was living. The record of marriage will be found in that other parish. The main exception to this rule is if the couple had decided to be married by special license.

Most of the microfilming of Church of England marriage records by the Genealogical Society of Utah has included banns books where they existed and most compilers of printed parish registers include record of banns. Thus, by using this approach you have speeded up your chances of finding the marriage entry you seek.

Study the reproductions on pages 207, 210, 216 and 217 of Volume 1 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales to help you understand the point being made.

2. Do not necessarily believe the ages as given in a marriage allegation (one of two documents leading up to granting a license, the other is the bond). For some reason in some archdeaconries and dioceses the ages of the two parties seem to have been formatted. The more common of course is 'age 21' or 'age 21 or over'. Both meaning that that person was aged 21 or over. In at least one diocese, age 30 is used frequently as a base. In some others, the ages are known, by study and analysis, to be grossly in error, just as if the Church of England recorder had looked at the persons wishing to be married this way and made a guess. Be sure to read prefaces to books of printed marriage bonds and allegations. The compiler, having spent many months with that series of documents, generally gives useful advice about that particular series of documents, generally gives useful advice about that particular series and the particular habits of the recorders. All this is not to say that ages are to be ignored altogether. Just keep in mind that ages are not infallible and that a likely christening for an individual should not be dismissed simply because it does not match the calculated year of birth derived from a marriage allegation.

3. Although it was more costly to be married by license than by banns, this did not seem to deter large numbers of couples from being married in that manner. Overall, however, probably no more than 10% married by license. This would still vary in different parts of the country. In the diocese of Canterbury, for example, it seemed to be very popular to be married by license in the beautiful cathedral or in one of the parish churches in Canterbury itself even though both parties came from small parishes some distance away.

Thus, when searching for the missing marriage on a pedigree and the marriage licenses for that area in print, it is often a smart approach to search those printed licenses FIRST (likely marriage indexes having been already eliminated) before going through the mechanical procedure of searching the records of nearby parishes. The number of marriage license series appearing in print increases each year and I have found this a very useful short cut to finding a needed marriage. Taking this approach one step further, many original sets of marriage licenses have manuscript indexes and so are easier to search than wading through a mass of documents where there is no index and the licenses are in boxes by year only.

4. I have seen parish register and bishop's transcript marriage recordings where they either gave no clue as to the type of marriage or said the marriage was by banns, when, in actual fact, a license was issued and the valuable documents of bond and allegation leading to the issuing of the license are still in existence. So, it is always wise to check for such documents, especially if those documents are of reasonable access.

Things to watch for -

1. Unfortunately, because human beings are involved you cannot believe everything you see. Even though a marriage license is an important document it sometimes does not tell the truth.

A good example of this is the example, partially treated on page 222 of volume 1 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales where George Swainston married Ann Thrussell by license. The bond and allegation additionally showed that he was aged 21 and a bachelor but she was aged 30 years and widow.

Actually she was not a widow at all. The marriage took place at St. Paul's Walden, Hertfordshire, 19 Feb 1795. Note the following christening entries:

29 Sept 1793 John son of Ann Thrussell, singlewoman

1 Feb 1795 William natural son of Ann Thrussell age 6 years

17 June 1792 John son of Ann Thrussell singlewoman

2 Jan 1791 Ann natural daughter of Ann Thrussell

14 Oct 1792 John Thrussell infant (no doubt the boy baptised in June of that year)

We can now see why Ann Thrussell styled herself as a widow when she married George Swainston. We have definitely proved that George Swainston came from some distance away because we cannot find Swainston entries in the parishes in the area and not one Swainston will appear in the probate records for Hertfordshire. Therefore, it seems very likely that George Swainston, a younger man, and a stranger to the area, came into the parish and decided to marry Ann Thrussell. No doubt she told him she was a widow at the time which would satisfy for him the existence of several children in her family.

Thus it is obvious that she did not tell the truth and the untruth became part of an official document. Perhaps George never did find out the truth. But without the evidence of the christenings of the illegitimate children, and if Ann was your ancestor, you would be looking high and low for the marriage of a Mr. Thrussell to an Ann....so that you could learn her maiden surname in order to find her own christening and ancestry.

Limitations-

1. Valuable documents but far more marriages took place by banns than by license.

2. Those for many jurisdictions still lie in boxes by year only with no alphabetical arrangement, thus making searches very tedious.

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature contains material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

Planning and Conducting A Genealogical Research Trip To England Or Wales

Determining the objectives. If the main purpose of the visit is to conduct research, then what you will be looking for, in precise terms (I'm going to work on my Smith line is not enough) needs to be written down. List these, placing first those that you would like to be sure to complete. Bear in mind that you may have to change your priorities later because of time, money and availability of the needed records.

Preliminary planning. Start planning several months before the intended date of the trip and your visit will be more productive. The main reason for this is that copies of many of the records you may need to use are already in Salt Lake City at the Genealogical Society of Utah's vast library. It could literally take months of work to exhaust what is in that library, depending on the counties in which the pedigree lies. Where possible, this should be done first.

Another reason for early planning is that appointments to see records often have to be made in advance. You can be turned away from a record office because all the chairs have been booked previously or you may find that the parish minister has gone on vacation and no one else knows where the key to the safe has been left. Furthermore, the Public Record Office in London has many records stored out in the country. It takes 24 hours or more to have those records brought in for you to see. Thus, pre-planning could be very vital to your success.

Travel arrangements. June, July and August are the highest plane fare months. Schools are out in July and August. Because of this, many of the local inhabitants take vacations during those months making it harder to find accommodations. The weather is reasonably good in April, May, September and October and these could be the best months for a planned visit. After the sight-seeing and research work to be done in London is over, it is best to rent a car to make the most of your time. This is particularly true if you have out-of-the-way parishes to visit where busses might run just once each week.

If you are positive that all your work is going to be in large towns or cities then a car is not really necessary except for sight-seeing. All towns and cities are served by excellent rail and bus services. If you plan to do a lot of traveling by rail or bus special passes can be purchased which work out to be more economical than purchasing individual tickets for each trip. These should be bought here in the U.S. A travel agent can make the arrangements for you.

What to wear. Take some wool clothing regardless of the time of year. A raincoat is a must and you'll probably need a hat and an umbrella. You can purchase such items over there but with the present inflation they can be quite expensive. It is not wise for ladies to travel alone except on heavily travelled bus and train routes.

It is amazing how much walking has to be done, so take a good pair of walking shoes. For visits to overgrown churchyards, ladies will need a pair of slacks made of good heavy material.

Use of motels, hotels and bed and breakfast places. Motels are not as easily found as they are in the United States, but there are some. They are operated very similar to the ones over here. Hotels can be quite expensive, especially in London and other large cities and towns.

Bed and breakfast is a good way to go if you have to watch the dollar. Many large homes place a sign in their window to the effect that they provide this service. You can get a night's lodging and an excellent bacon and egg breakfast for a very reasonable price. Don't expect the bathroom to be part of your room. It may even be on another floor.

Common courtesies and customs. Your letters and personal visits will be more effective if you follow the local customs of the country you visit. Letters should be addressed to Mr. John Doe not just John Doe. Please and thank yous are common and should be used often. Make sure the general tone of a letter is not demanding but is courteous and expresses appreciation for any services that are rendered.

Tools. Although you should be travelling lightly, there are some reference tools which would be useful to have close by you. The research paper published by the Genealogical Society of Utah titled Records of Genealogical Value for England and Wales (Series A #1) is very light in weight and provides a bird's eye view of the major record sources, the period of years they cover, the information given in each source, and where those records are housed.

More detail can be found on these major sources in volumes 1 and 2 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales by Smith and Gardner and published by Bookcraft, Salt Lake City in 1956. Volume 3 of that same series is useful to practice with to be able to read handwriting in many of the records you will be using. The chapters at the end of volume 3 are useful when you are sitting in the hotel or at home trying to analyse your results, making decisions and planning your next research steps.

The Genealogical Atlas of England and Wales published by Stevenson in Provo, Utah is a useful visual guide to determine which parishes are next to each other. The original maps from which this book was compiled were first printed in 1840 so you may also need a modern road map for your travels. These can be purchased locally.

By now your tools are becoming a little heavy, but if you can manage a little more weight, the Genealogical Gazetteer of England by Frank Smith and published by the Genealogical Publishing Company of Baltimore is also handy. It gives the beginning dates of each ecclesiastical parish where its parish registers began before 1813, the distance from the next largest town, the probate jurisdiction, the nonconformist chapels as of 1831 and the population as it was in 1831.

Carry several pencils, a small pencil sharpener and a good supply of ruled paper. Preferably the ruled paper should be 8½ x 11 inches. Smaller size paper does not allow uniformity of recording information and becomes bulky in a file.

Getting Down To Research

Using civil registration. Birth, marriage and death certificates are kept for all of England and Wales at the office of the Registrar General on Kingsway, London W.C.2 England. (W.C. means West Central).

The nearest underground railroad station is Kingsway, and there are several others close by. There are plenty of busses and taxis too.

It is more than 50% cheaper to purchase a certificate of birth, marriage or death by appearing in person than it is by writing for it. As of April 1981 it costs $19.00 to get a certificate by mail but you can get one at the counter at the General Register Office for about $9.00 depending on the current exchange value of the dollar.

There are many registration districts all over England and Wales and they have copies of the certificates issued from their district. The law says the local superintendent registrar is to make these available to the public at "all reasonable times." The price for a long certificate is the same as in London. Short form certificates are half the price of the long form certificates. To use the local registrar's records effectively, you need to be reasonably sure the events you are looking for took place within the area covered by that registration district.

Working in the Public Record Office. There used to be only one Public Record Office, that on Chancery Lane in the heart of London. Eventually it became necessary to use three buildings in the city for the records. Now a new Public Record Office has been built in Kew, Surrey, further out from the center of the city. The address is Ruskin Avenue, Kew, Surrey TW9 4DU.

Most of the records you will use in general genealogical research are already at Kew and the tendency is to move all the records from the city out to Kew. Contact this office well in advance to make sure of the present locality of the records you need and for application forms for a Readers Ticket so that you can see them. You will need to know the hours they are open too. The hours of opening may be a disappointment to you if you are trying to put in a full day of work there, but there's nothing you can do about that.

Working at the Society of Genealogists, London. 37, Harrington Gardens, London SW7. The nearest underground station is South Kensington. Hopefully, before leaving the United States you were able to visit Salt Lake City and check out their collection of parish registers and other sources. Before going to the trouble of visiting parishes, stop at this society and search their collection of church records, tombstone inscriptions and a wide variety of other sources.

You do not need to be a member to visit here but a half daily and daily fee is charged if you are not a member.

Many of the parish registers not available in Salt Lake City have been transcribed and are available in this Society. A list of their holdings of church records is published periodically and is available in the library in Salt Lake City or you can purchase one by mail before you leave the U.S.A., but there are always others becoming available in between updated editions.

Be sure to check their surname index to pedigrees while there. As well as a general collection, there is a collection for each county so it could profit you to browse through the collection of the county in which you are planning to work.

Other London Record Repositories: Use of these will greatly depend on the geographic area of your pedigree and the needs of the pedigree. Consult your research paper Series #1 mentioned in the beginning of this article for records housed in London that might help you. As an example of this, the Historical Manuscripts Commission at Quality House, Quality Court, Chancery Lane maintains an updated file on the known whereabouts of all Manor Court Rolls.

If you have a military or naval problem there are valuable collections in several different repositories. This is indicated in the above mentioned research paper.

Working in the County Record Office. Try to make an appointment before visiting otherwise you might find that after going to a lot of trouble to visit, all the seats are taken for all of that day. Bear in mind too that many record offices close for an extended lunch period. On Saturdays the most you can expect is that they will be open for half a day. You will not be allowed to use pens. With today's shortage of staff due to severe budget cuts you may have to wait a while before documents can be brought to you. There is nothing much you can do about that. Be sure to treat original documents very carefully. Some archivists in record offices do not think too highly of genealogists as a breed because of their carelessness in handling records.

Working with a parish minister. Letters to a parish minister should always be addressed to "The Reverend...." or "Reverend and Dear Sir" out of respect for his calling. Catholic priests should be addressed as "Reverend Father." In face to face conversation he should never be addressed as Mr. but as Reverend so and so or vicar or rector depending on whether the parish 'living' is a vicarage or a rectory.

Assuming that you have previously determined that he still has the parish registers (many have now gone to the local county record office) you will need to make an appointment to see them. The minister has many duties and you will need to fit your time to his. Some ministers will insist that they be present when you search, others will 'help' you search, others will insist on doing it for you, and the ones you will appreciate the most will leave you alone to get on with the searches. Ideally, try to persuade the minister that you know the value of the registers and can be left alone with them. If necessary, estimate the length of time you will need and ask him to come back at a certain time. Normally you will either be working in his home or in the vestry of the church. So far as charging for the searches is concerned the statutory rule is very vague and open to private interpretation. Even though you yourself are willing to make the searches, the minister or his clerk may try to charge you so much per year of search and multiply that three times (christenings, marriages and burials) and multiply all these charges by the number of surnames you are extracting. This is the extreme case, (with other arrangements all the way down to putting some money in the parish poor hat.

Because of possible pressure (Minister pacing backwards and forwards as you search; he searching one page while you search the other, and so on) try to search slowly enough to make the search an accurate one. A hasty search is almost useless as vital entries may be missed.

Make a note later that day when the search has been concluded if you felt you were under pressure. Note the general conditions of the registers and if the minister insisted on assisting you. These will become vital parts of your pedigree analysis later. Ideally, if you have time and money, and they exist for the time period, check the same period in the bishop's transcripts. You will not only be checking on your own accuracy but you will be noting the many differences that there are between the two sets of records. Although, theoretically they are the same, there are many differences. An ideal research program is to search BOTH sets of records in every instance.

The minister may invite you home for a meal. Whatever you do, leave a nice feeling so that another person visiting later (you may need to go back yourself sometime) will be treated with courtesy rather than suspicion.

Working in the churchyard. Inscriptions appearing on tombstones are considered a valuable research tool as well as a visual addition to a family history. Searches for such inscriptions should always be a part of a research program. In the small country parishes, the burial ground surrounding the old parish church is usually still in use. Your visit may coincide with an obvious need for a grasscutter so be prepared for long (and sometimes wet) grass and thistles. It is useful to have a small trowel handy to clear away the overgrowth of moss and grass on horizontal stones. Don't grumble at this because such stones can be among the best preserved, the moss and the grass having protected them from the weather. Record the inscription exactly as it appears, rather than try to interpret it or transpose it into some other form.

You will often find that all the older stones are in a different part of the churchyard from the newer ones but bear in mind that only a small percentage of persons buried had a stone erected to their memory. Don't ever think that because you have burial information on an ancestor that you need not look for a tombstone. Tombstone inscriptions give different information than the burial registers and tie individuals together. In the larger towns and cities you will generally find no stones around the churchyard anymore. Often, they have been removed and the area put into lawn. Sometimes the stones have been used as sidewalks or as a fence or simply reared by the churchyard wall. Before the stones were removed, it is more than likely a copy of the inscriptions have been made and appear at the Town Hall, the local library, the local family history society or the Society of Genealogists in London. The Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City has a good collection but not as good as that at the Society of Genealogists.

You need no one's permission to wander around the churchyard. Your ancestor may have been buried in a more modern cemetery, most of which were not created until the middle of the nineteenth century. The quickest way to locate the grave of an ancestor in this case is to use the sexton's records which give a precise location and you can then check to see if a tombstone was ever erected. No such plan is kept by the minister for the graves around the church but many copyists of inscriptions do show the location of each stone. Don't forget to search for tombstones in the church too. It costs more to be buried inside the church but you will find yourself walking on tombstones in the aisles, they are sometimes under the organ and some of the wealthier families had commemorative plaques put on the inside church walls.

Many stones have now disappeared through weathering, vandalism and landscaping so part of the trip plan should be to check for copies of the inscriptions recorded in print. Kent and Gloucester are two outstanding counties where all inscriptions in many churchyards have been printed in books as long as one hundred years ago. Of course, many of those stones have now disappeared or are too weathered to be read. Similar copying has been done in other counties in varying degrees.

Taking or buying pictures. Pictures of houses, streets, churches, countryside, tombstones, schools, factories, are obviously valuable to illustrate your research and make your family history become alive.

Street addresses can be found on civil registration records, census returns and even church records. The staff of the local library can help you find the location of the street or other place. If the place no longer exists they can tell you where it once stood. In some cases where an industry was an important one or where the house was that of an affluent person, books can often be found describing those places. Taking pictures of tombstones needs care if the wording is to be seen. You will need the natural light just right. Clean off the stone as much as possible before taking the picture.

In times past most parish churches had pictures and brief histories of the church sitting on a table just inside the church. You simply dropped the price of the postcard or brochure in a small money box. Since the war this practice has become scarcer. However, the local stationers may have pictures of the churches and views of the town village or area which could work out cheaper than you taking the pictures yourself. If you wanted a 'period' picture of the parish church showing what it looked like when your ancestors worshipped there, check libraries for books on the parishes or the counties. For example, for Suffolk, years ago, a pocket history of every parish in Suffolk was written and was accompanied by a picture of the parish church. These were all published in the local newspaper as a series and have since been bound into a book.

Sometimes an artist will have drawn a series of parish churches in a county. This is true for Sussex where an artist 150 years ago made many such drawings. Each county varies in its wealth of such histories and pictures. The Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City has a good collection of such histories while the local county record offices have become a goldmine of original items. The same county record offices have maps that are of such a scale that a house, a street, even a tree is indicated. A photocopy of part of such a map would be very useful for your illustrated history.

Finding living relatives. Here again, some early preliminary work is vital. If your ancestors emigrated to the U.S.A. in the nineteenth or twentieth centuries, you may have cousins or second cousins living over there whom you don't know about now but would like to meet. Furthermore, they may know just a little more about your pedigree than you do.

The Newspaper Press Directory for Great Britain and many Commonwealth countries is available in Salt Lake City and in the libraries of many of the larger U.S. cities. This directory lists all the newspapers, large and small, details of their circulation and cost of advertising.

Normally, you should avoid the large national newspapers because of the expense of advertising. In the smaller provincial newspapers you may wish to place a notice asking that descendants ofcontact you at your home address. Local newspapers charge only a small fee for this and sometimes will print the information without charge as a news item. If relatives are located in this way you could plan to visit with them when you arrive over there. Relatives can also be discovered by talking to the minister of the parish or to some of the local inhabitants of the area. Telephoning persons of your surname can have some success although many families still do not have a telephone. Working through the local family history society can also have success in this and other ways.

Joining the local family history society. In the last few years England and Wales have been completely covered by local family history societies. You would do well to join the appropriate one(s). They will list your interests in their regular publications and you will know what is going on among the local people with regard to copying and preservation of records. These local societies are coordinated through the Federation of Family History Societies, 96, Beaumont Street, Millhouse, Plymouth, Devon PL2 3AQ. They will be happy to give you details of the society nearest to your area of genealogical interest.

Emphasis On English Research

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature contains material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

A Digest Of Some Standards and Procedures To Be Followed In English Research

1. When searching church, census or vital records, always double check the key parish or parishes.

2. Try to find record of the family in at least two census returns, and if possible and practical, in three census returns.

3. Keep in mind the possibility that at marriage a person could have been a widow or widower without the marriage entry saying so. You can be alerted to this by studying entries of the surnames just prior to the year of marriage.

EXAMPLE:

Mary Miller married in 1787 and this has introduced the surname Miller to the pedigree. Now you want to find her christening. Start at the date of marriage and work backwards in case she is the widow of Mr. Miller. If she is, and 7% in England were, then if you were looking for her under Miller you would be looking for her christening in the wrong surname.

4. When searching for a marriage, consider that it may have taken place AFTER one or more of the children were born.

5. On female lines, watch for a will proved by a relative after the female ancestor married mentioning her by her married name.

6. If tombstones are used and reasonably available in your geographic area, always make them a part of the arch procedure, especially in the parish of known residence.

7. When searching for the marriage of a couple in parishes near where they had their children, always watch for possible additional children.

8. When a possible ancestral christening has been found, be sure to first search the burials in case the child died before marriageable age. Next, search the marriage entries to see if a person of that name married someone other than the known ancestor. Also, check to see if there are two fathers of that name having children in that parish in the same time period. If there are, then the probable ancestral christening already found could belong to either of them.

One of the hardest things to decide when doing genealogical research is - when is the family group of children complete? Be sure to watch for the burial of an unbaptised child. Bear in mind that in the International Genealogical Index the unbaptised child is not recorded, and therefore a search must be made in the original record. Use as many sources as necessary. Clues may be obtained from census returns. Probate records often name children not found in church records. Remember, the last child is often a 'mistake', born quite a few years after the regular string of children. Where there are large gaps between children there could have been stillborn babies and these are not usually recorded in English church registers.

10. Maintain lists of searches you have made and circle the areas on a map of the locality. Record your reasons for accepting any connections, especially those whose basis was circumstantial evidence or a lack of conflicting evidence.

11. Consider using records that show movement of people.

12. The economy of the locality needs to be understood. Failure of industry caused ancestral movement. Industrial development was also responsible for movement.

13. Consider using records that list individuals, such as tax lists. They help to demonstrate movement of a family and could provide clues to an ancestral christening or some additional children.

14. Consider the possibility that although a family record or census return states that a person was born in a certain place, the record of his birth or christening may be in an adjacent parish EVEN THOUGH THERE IS ONE THAT FITS PERFECTLY INTO THE PICTURE IN THE PARISH IN WHICH HE SAID HE WAS BORN.

15. Many children grow up thinking they were born in a certain place because their brothers and sisters were born there, or think they were born in a place to which the family moved shortly after the birth. Even though three census returns may record the place of birth the same, it could still be wrong. Therefore, look for conflicting christenings in nearby parishes.

16. If the stated place of birth is different from the place in which they were residing when the census was taken, search the census of the stated place of birth in case there is another family listed there with the husband born about the same year as the husband you have found in another census. For an example, read pages 94-96 of Volume 1 Research in England and Wales.

17. Consider ages at given events to provide supporting evidence for a likely birth or christening record found. Bear in mind that the older a person is stated to be, the greater the possibility of error. For a birth or christening, search back at least five years BEFORE the stated or calculated year of birth, and forward to the year of marriage.

18. Several religious groups kept records of births and infant baptisms. Do not confine your searches to just one of these groups. Usually, people were free to have events recorded with any group, and were sometimes baptised as adults, so the period of search should always be a generous one.

19. Where nonconformity is known to be in a family, be prepared to search a very wide radius. Nonconformists were willing to travel many miles in order to worship in the denomination of their choice.

20. Sometimes, more than one child in a family would have the same given name. Don't assume the first one is dead by the time the second one receives the same given name.

21. The geographical and topographical features of the locality must be considered in all research situations.

22. Naming customs peculiar to your locality need to be known. Given names are often synonymous . . . so are surnames.

23. Occupational clues must be considered . . . soldier, sailor, baker, etc., lead to searches in military records, records of freemen, etc. They also provide clues to possible movement and the whereabouts of additional children. Knowledge of towns with the SAME PRINCIPAL OCCUPATIONS is also useful.

24. England has bishop's transcripts and parish registers, ostensibly a duplicate recording. Ideally, both sets of records should be searched as part of the research program.

25. Consideration should be given to the possibility of the ancestor being born out of wedlock. The mother may have married shortly afterwards and the child may have grown up using his stepfather's surname. His christening or birth record may be under his mother's maiden surname.

26. Sometimes, two children may be found in a parish record, both having the same given name and surname, either of which could be ancestral. In this situation it may be possible to develop the line of each child to see if they converge a generation or two earlier and thus have a common ancestor.

Emphasis On English Research

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. A Digest Of Some Standards and Procedures To Be Followed In English Research

How much do we know about this hypothetical James Arnold, so far as his birth and parentage are concerned? Well, the census said he was born in Gamlingay, Cambridgeshire and that he was aged 60 in 1851. By simple calculation, therefore, he was born about 1790-91. We know nothing about his parents.

Possible research action

1. Find out the genealogical background essentials of Gamlingay.
2. Search church records of Gamlingay for James' christening.
3. Search the Cambridgeshire IGI for a possible christening entry.
4. Search the family groups archives in Salt Lake City.

Critique of possible research action and results.

1. This is always a good habit. Gamlingay turns out to be a medium size country parish with registers existing back to 1698, 2¼ miles northeast of Potton, Bedfordshire. Jurisdictionally, for the granting of marriage licenses and for the probating of wills, it was in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. For the county as a whole the bishop's transcripts of the parish registers extend back to 1660. Boyd's marriage index includes entries for varying periods from about 170 parishes. This information was easily gathered from Smith's Genealogical Gazetteer of England and volume 2 of Genealogical Research In England and Wales by Smith and Gardner.

Parish Registers of Gamlingay, Cambridgeshire christenings, marriages and burials 1780-1815.:

2 November 1782 John son of Thomas Arnold christened

4 November 1782 John son of Thomas Arnold buried

24 November 1784 John son of Thomas Arnold christened

2 January 1785 John son of William and Mary Arnold christened

16 August 1787 Samuel son of William and Mary Arnold christened

10 December 1791 Elizabeth daughter of William and Elizabeth Arnold christened

3. Cambridge IGI -- Nil

4. Family group record archives, Salt Lake City -- Nil

Another approach that is fairly new is to determine the activities of the local family history society. Within the last few years these have blossomed all over England. Every county is now covered. Loose coordination of them is through the Federation of Family History Societies which issues a News and Digest each six months. Each issue gives a complete list of the local societies and a digest of some of their main activities. The Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City subscribes to all these societies but it would be well for you to support personally the local societies for your areas of genealogical interest. You will then be abreast of their activities so far as tombstone copying projects, marriage indexing, census indexing, etc., that is going on locally.

2. The parish registers of Gamlingay needed searching for a generous period of years. At the time of writing, the library in Salt Lake City did not have a copy of these registers or of the bishop's transcripts, in fact very little in the way of church records from this county. They have the census returns 1841 through 1881, Boyd's marriage index and the probate records. Ideally, both parish registers and bishop's transcripts should be searched for the same period of years. There are always some differences in both copies. Searching both, however, is not always possible economically. Although by a recent law, the parish ministers are supposed to house their records in the appropriate county record office, many are still in the parishes. If you do not have access to the current disposition of Gamlingay registers you would need to check the county record office to find out. If they are there, that office will provide you with a list of record searchers one of whom you could hire to make the searches for you. If they are not there, you can hire a record searcher to visit the parish which is expensive because you are paying travel, record searcher fees and the minister may also charge a search fee. Or you can write directly to the minister and have him make a search on your behalf. The worst part about having the parish minister make the searches is that he has other very important things to do and may make a hasty and possibly inaccurate search and he may not be able to read some of the handwriting.

So that we can press on, let's say that the parish registers were not at the county record office and that you decided to contact the minister. Even so, the period of years searched should not be stifled. The search ought to come as late as 1815, the year our James married and go back to 1780.

Emphasis On English Research

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature contains material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

Review of the foregoing actions

1. No likely James Arnold christening has been found, but at the time he would have been born there is a William Arnold having children. Note the child Elizabeth is given a mother Elizabeth. Although these are only hypothetical entries they are true to life. Often the minister, distracted by something when recording the entry, wrote the same name for the mother as for the female child so that actually the mother Elizabeth is the mother Mary. This has been proven time and time again where the husband or wife left a will naming the children. See tombstone inscription in this case.

2. The Thomas Arnold who had children christened in 1782 and 1784 could also have had another child christened around 1790. Searches prior to 1780 may show this to be impractical so far as the mother is concerned, but it should be remembered that in thousands of families there is quite a gap between the births of the last two children in the family.

Possible research action

1. Search the bishop's transcripts of Gamlingay to see if they provide entries not found in the parish registers, especially the christening of our James Arnold.

2. Search the registers of the nonconformist chapels in the area, covering an area of 20—25 miles around Gamlingay. Nonconformists were prepared to travel long distances to attend their own chapels.

3. Search the parish registers or bishop's transcripts of parishes around Gamlingay. The period could be 1780-1815 if access is easy. If access is difficult and expensive, the search period could be narrowed. Ideally, other sources should be used.

4. Search the appropriate probate records, particularly to see if Thomas or William Arnold name a son James.

5. Search for possible tombstone inscriptions, especially if easily accessible.

6. As is customary, search the Family Group Record Archives, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Critique of possible research action and results

1. This is always a good procedure. James' christening could have been omitted from the parish register. There are sometimes serious differences between the two sets of recordings. In this instance nothing was found.

2. This is normal procedure. There are many families that had children recorded in different places of worship. Nowadays this search can be economically made by using the IGI for the various English counties as this index now contains all the entries from all the known nonconformist registers. Time was that this was a major undertaking when the only copy was the original kept in London. In this instance nothing new was found.

3. This too is normal research procedure. Resulting from searches in the registers of nearby Church of England parishes are the following entries:

Hatley Cockayne (also Called Cockayne Hatley), Bedfordshire
30 Oct 1789 James son of William and Mary Arnold christened

10 Nov 1799 John son of William and Mary Arnold buried from Gamlingay

2 Oct 1808 William Arnold buried from Gamlingay

Little Gransden, Cambridgeshire
6 Nov 1779 William Arnold and Mary Gurney married

4. Searches in probate records is also normal research procedure. The appropriate courts to be searched can be determined by using Chapter 9 of Volume 2 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales and Smith's Genealogical Gazetteer of England; from county maps printed by the Institute of Heraldic and Genealogical Studies, Canterbury, Kent and by using the Genealogical Society research paper series A310 Probate Jurisdictions of Cambridgeshire. The latter is particularly useful as it lists the best order in which the probate courts should be used. In this instance, no help was received from probate searches.

5. Tombstone inscriptions of Hatley Cockayne showed the following information:

William Arnold died 3 Oct 1808 age 58; Mary wife of the above died 1 Jan 1820 age 65; John son of the above died 10 Nov 1799 age 14; Elizabeth daughter of the above died 11 Dec 1791 age 1 day

6. Archives search was negative.

Review of the search results

1. No evidence was found that the Thomas Arnold of Gamlingay had children anywhere else in the area or that bishop's transcripts of Gamlingay showed any additional children.

2. Note that William and Mary Arnold seem to have had close ties with the parish of Hatley Cockayne. Although in another county the two parishes are only two miles apart. Pay attention to the two burial entries in 1799 and 1808 which clearly indicate this is one family with connections in the two parishes. Thus there is great value in following such a procedure. Note that we seem to have the christening of our James at Hatley Cockayne. The 1851 census said he was born at Gamlingay. Perhaps he was, but he was christened at Hatley Cockayne. Perhaps he assumed he was born at Gamlingay because some members of the family were. This again points up an important point when using stated places of birth from any source, not just census returns.

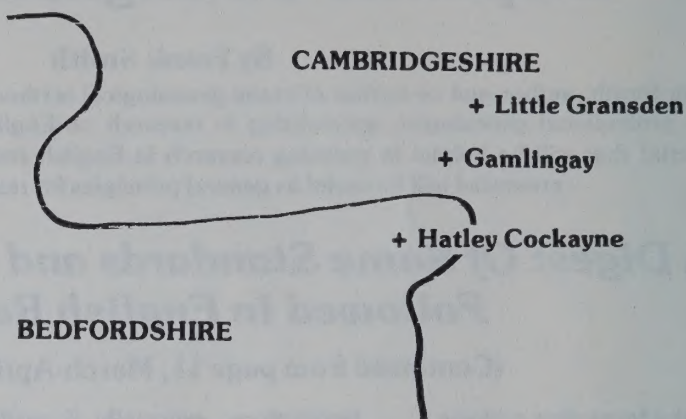

3. Apparently the family favored Hatley Cockayne as a place of burial.

The finding of the inscription is especially valuable in the case of the father. Parish registers do not usually give ages at burial until 1813. Note also that the inscription clarifies the mother of the child Elizabeth.

4. The parents married in 1779 at Little Gransden which is 3 miles from Gamlingay.

5. The fact that no helpful probate was found is not surprising. Success will only come 10% of the time, or even less but the searches should still be made. No record has shown the occupation of William Arnold. This area is almost 100% agricultural at the time so perhaps he was a farm laborer.

6. This research problem lies across the border of two counties. This has to be taken into account when searching indexes, probate records and nearby parishes.

If research was to be continued on the Arnold line, the parish registers of Gamlingay and Hatley Cockayne should be searched right up to 1851 for valuable burial entries and for possible marriage entries of the children. 1851 is chosen to tie in with the 1851 census returns.

Extensions to this line may be possible by following similar procedure as those described above, keeping in mind the counsel given in chapter 10 of Volume 3 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales.

Emphasis On English Research

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature contains material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

A Guided Tour Through An English Pedigree

Note from the Editor: The March-April and May-June 1984 issues contained parts of this subject, but not the beginning. Please consider the contents found in this issue as the beginning of the subject, "A Guided Tour Through An English Pedigree." It will be continued in upcoming issues and then it should be followed by the parts included in the above mentioned issues. Please accept my sincere apologies for placing this valuable data in an out-of-order sequence.

Introduction

You may have taken conducted tours of cities or countries where a trained guide has pointed out to you all the important things of which you should be aware. He has helped you to be sure you didn't miss any important places and that you didn't find yourself lost and confused in unknown territory.

Relying on such a knowledgeable guide can make your trip much more enjoyable and organized as well as saving you time and money.

Travelling through the hypothetical pedigree that follows will be much like taking such a tour and will serve as a travel guide for working on your own pedigree. Sometimes, you may find that you already have some knowledge of what you should do next and in that case, this guided tour will reinforce your understanding. Sometimes you will find that you are partially or totally lost in the territory and the guide will point the correct way to go.

In the exercise that follows, that I have called a guided tour, there will be decisions that have to be made as to what research action should be taken next. There is sometimes more than one possible approach to the research problem. Some approaches are very good, others not so good and others are decidedly poor - wasteful in time and money. Some are better left until later in the research program.

This tour will help you go directly, by the shortest route, to the destination you desire, rather than wandering around aimlessly, up one street and down the other, hoping that by some good fortune you will eventually reach your desired goal. It can be likened to firing buckshot versus shooting an arrow directly into the bull's eye.

Each time you read what the present research problem is (titled 'possible research action') cover up the next paragraph (titled critique of possible research action and research results') until you have done some thinking of your own as to the best searches to make.

Also, as each research problem is presented try to relate it to a problem on your own pedigree. If you have a similar problem at the same period of time, then the possible solution could help you. The IGI is described in full in the Genealogical Department's research paper Series F#4.

The Pedigree Problem

Your surname is Arnold and you wish to start research on your Arnold line. You live in the U.S.A.; your parents and grandparents did little about genealogy. What little they did do was lost in a fire some years ago. All that you know is that your great grandfather John Arnold was born about 1850 in Birmingham, a large town in England. His parents brought him to the United States and he died somewhere in Minnesota about 1924. His son Samuel was your grandfather. With such meagre information where should you begin?

Possible Research Action

1. Find out more about Birmingham, England, its size in 1850, together with the various civil and ecclesiastical jurisdictions at that time.

2. Write to the Registrar General in London, England to obtain a birth certificate for John Arnold.

3. Search the L.D.S. Church International Genealogical Index for both England and the U.S.A. for likely John Arnold births and marriages.

4. Write to Minnesota for a death certificate for John Arnold for the year 1924.

5. Search the 1900 census of Minnesota for the family of John Arnold.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Research Results

1. It is always good practise to find out more about an area in which you are going to be working. This is a step that can be taken at the same time as other steps. The best source to use is Smith's Genealogical Gazetteer of England as it is a composite of several out-of-print books that were prepared around 1850.

2. This step is too early in the research program. You need at least John's father's given name as there will be many likely John Arnold births around the right time period. Right now you do not even know his father's given name.

3. The International Genealogical Index (IGI) for Warwickshire (the English IGI* is by county and Birmingham is in Warwickshire) can be searched but as in step 2 it is too early in the program. It will not do any harm to list likely entries. The Minnesota IGI was searched without any success.

4. If you chose this step, you could go ahead but you would not find the right death record in 1924.

5. If you chose this step you made a good choice because the 1900 census has a Soundex Index. This is a card index to the federal census which uses the first letter of the surname and then the phonetic sound of the rest of the surname. Then, within each coded surname, the householders are arranged alphabetically by the given name. Looking at the John Arnold cards you find one as follows:

Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, 1900. Enumeration Dist. . . Sheet. . . Line. . .

John Arnold head age 50 born England Dec. 1850.

Sarah Arnold wife age 47 born Minnesota Sept. 1852.

Now it's time to determine the next step as you seem to have found the family you were looking for.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the 1895 Minnesota state census, Duluth County.

2. Search the original returns of the 1900 census using the Soundex entry already quoted, as a guide.

Critique of Possible Research Action

and Research Results

1. There is nothing really wrong with searching the 1895 state census except that the federal census gives more information. The state census of 1895 provides name, age, sex, color, place of birth, length of residence, regular occupation, amount of time employed at regular occupation in last twelve months, whether soldier or sailor in the War of the Rebellion, (Civil War) and parentage whether foreign or not.

2. This is obviously the best step to take. Indexes should be used as tools to get you back to an original record. Here is the information found:

John Arnold/white/male/born Dec. 1850/age 50/married/number of years married 30/place of birth, England/birthplace of father, England/birthplace of mother, England/year of immigration, 1867/number of years in the U.S. 33/naturalization, yes/occupation, foundry worker.

yes/occupation, foundry worker.

Sarah Arnold/white/female/born Sept. 1852/age 47/married/number of years married 30/place of birth, Minnesota/birthplace of father, New York, birthplace of mother Pennsylvania/year of immigration -/other columns did not apply except mother of how many children, 3/number of these children living, 2.

Review

Now let's look at what we have so far found about John Arnold:

1. He was born in England in December 1850.

2. He emigrated to the U.S. in 1867 as a single person.

3. He married a Sarah about 1880.

4. They had three known children, two of whom were still alive in 1900.

5. By occupation, John was a foundry worker.

6. His parents were both born in England.

7. He was a naturalized American by 1900.

Concentrating on finding more about John Arnold rather than his wife and children, what should be done now?

Possible Research Action

1. Search the emigration records.

2. Search the naturalization records.

3. Search the 1880 census of Duluth, Minnesota.

4. Search the 1875 and other Minnesota state censuses.

5. Search the 1870 census of Duluth, Minnesota.

6. Obtain a death certificate for John Arnold.

Critique Of Possible Research Action and Research Results.

All these steps are necessary, some a little more important than others but all need eventually to be made.

1. John emigrated aged about 17 and therefore may have come with his parents. Passenger lists that are indexed would obviously be the first choice to search, confining the search to the northern ports such as Boston, New York and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

The indexed passenger lists are indexed under the name of the head of the household. No index reference for a likely John could be found. Other Arnold families were there during the year 1867 but rather than examine each of these right now it would be better to wait until the name of his father is found, then search the emigration records again.

2. Naturalization records originate at national and county levels. At the county level, those of St. Louis county and counties in Pennsylvania should be searched first but here again, Pennsylvania has not yet been disclosed as a possible source until others of the suggested searches have been made. St. Louis county, Minnesota naturalization records disclosed no likely entry.

3. Hopefully, the John Arnold family was living in Duluth when the 1880 census was taken. There is a Soundex index to this census which indexes all families who had children age 10 and under. Our John Arnold is likely to fit into this category and his family was found in the Soundex index. Using this index then referring back to the original 1880 enumeration, the following was found:

Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, 1880.

John Arnold age 30 head born England.

Sarah Arnold age 27 wife born Minnesota.

Samuel Arnold age 8 son born Pennsylvania.

Sarah Arnold age 5 dau born Minnesota.

Occupation of John Arnold - - foundry worker.

Place of birth of his father - - England.

Place of birth of his mother - - England.

Place of birth of Sarah's father - - New York.

Place of birth of Sarah's mother - - Pennsylvania.

4. State censuses are available in Minnesota for 1865, 1875, 1885 and 1895. Their main value is in corroborating information found in the national census returns or in finding the family if the national returns do not show the family.

5. The family was not found in the 1870 census of Duluth. Based on what was found in the 1880 census, the family was probably in Pennsylvania in 1870.

6. You know that your John Arnold was supposed to have died in 1924 and that a death record for him did not appear in the year 1924.

Making 1924 the central year, have a search made of 1922-1926, writing to the Minnesota Department of Health, Section of Vital Statistics, 717, Delaware Street SE, Minneapolis, Minn. 55440.

You did this and hit the jackpot as follows:

John Arnold died 5 March 1925 buried 6 March 1925 age 74 at Duluth, St. Louis County.

Born 2 December 1850, England.

Father's name - - Samuel Arnold.

Mother's name - - Mary.

Informant - - Samuel Arnold.

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. A Guided Tour Through An English Pedigree

Now we can reconsider some of the searches that were a little premature before:

1. Again using the emigration records, indexed under the name of John's father, the family was found arriving through Philadelphia on the ship Weymouth 13 June 1867:

Samuel Arnold age 48 from England

Mary Arnold age 44 from England

John Arnold age 17 from England

Mary Arnold age 15 from England

2. Looking again at naturalization records we now know that John Arnold arrived in the U.S. in 1867 at Philadelphia and had children in Pennsylvania and Minnesota. Beginning in Philadelphia, county records should be searched until record of Arnold's application for citizenship is found. You are not looking for one document but several. The first is the Declaration of Intention (application) for citizenship, various oaths and the final petition and naturalization. These documents provide age, place of birth, port of departure, year of departure, arrival in the U.S., arrival in that state, intention to settle, years of residences in different states.

Review

Now let's review what additional information we have found about John Arnold:

1. His father's name is Samuel Arnold and he was born in England about 1819.

2. His mother's name is Mary and she was born in England about 1822. He had a sister Mary born about 1852 in England.

4. His wife Sarah was born in Minnesota about 1852.

5. Two of his children were named Samuel and Sarah and were born in 1871 and 1875 respectively.

6. His wife's father was born in New York and her mother was born in Pennsylvania.

Again concentrating on John Arnold, his parentage and brothers and sisters, what should be done now?

Possible Research Action

1. Search for a birth certificate for John Arnold.

2. Search the 1900 census for Samuel Arnold and his wife Mary.

3. Search for a death record for Samuel Arnold.

4. Search for a death record for Mary, wife or widow of Samuel Arnold.

5. Search Duluth cemetery records for record of Samuel and Mary Arnold.

Critique of Possible

Research Action and Results

1. Knowing that John Arnold was born in December 1850 in or near Birmingham, Warwickshire, England and that his parents were Samuel and Mary it is now reasonably possible to obtain a birth certificate for him from the office of the Registrar General in London or from the office of the Superintendent Registrar for Birmingham.

The birth certificate was obtained and disclosed the following:

Registration District: St. Martin, Birmingham, county Warwickshire

Born 2 December 1850 at Smith Street, Birmingham - John son of Samuel Arnold, a brassfounder and his wife Mary Arnold late Pitt formerly Walton.

2. The 1900 census Soundex, followed by searches in the original census returns showed that Samuel had died but his wife Mary was still alive.

It stated that Mary was born in March 1822 in England and that living with her was a Mary Jensen age 48 born October 1852 in England. The place of birth of Mrs. Mary Arnold's father and mother was given as England; number of years married 54; year of immigration 1867; number of years in the U.S. 33, naturalization, yes; mother of how many children 7; number of these children living 3.

3. As Samuel Arnold had died before 1900, a search for his death record was made in the death records of St. Louis County courthouse. This showed that:

He died 8 Sept. 1898 in Duluth.

He was born in Birmingham, England in 1819.

His parents were James and Harriet Arnold.

Mary Arnold was the informant.

4. Searches for a death record for Mary widow of Samuel Arnold beginning in 1900 in the same courthouse showed that she died 6 December 1905 in Duluth. This death record showed that:

She was born about 1822 in Staffordshire, England.

Her father was Nathaniel Pitt of Worcester, England.

Her mother was named Jane.

The informant of death was her daughter Mary Jensen.

5. Searches in Duluth cemetery records showed record of both Samuel and Mary and corroborated the information already found. This source would be very valuable if the information could not be found in other sources.

Obituries in local newspapers may give more biographical information, when and where married, survivors, etc. Same would apply to John Arnold.

Review

Now let's look at the additional information we have found about John Arnold, his brothers and sisters and his parents:

1. We know the precise street of his birth in Birmingham and a precise date of birth.

2. We know his mother's given name and according to the birth record her maiden name was Walton and that she had previously been married to a Mr. Pitt.

3. The father Samuel Arnold was a brassfounder in 1850. Previously gathered background on Birmingham showed this to have been a major industry in Birmingham for the making of guns and other manufactories where brass was involved.

4. John's mother Mary was born in March 1822 in Staffordshire, England, a daughter of Nathaniel and Jane Pitt.

This proved that the registrar got his facts missed (or the informant did) and the mother was actually maiden named Pitt and had previously married a Mr. Walton.

5. The father Samuel was born in 1819 in Birmingham, a son of James and Harriet Arnold.

6. John had a sister Mary who was born in October 1852 in England and that since her arrival in the U.S. she had married a Mr. Jensen.

7. The marriage year for Samuel Arnold to Mary Pitt could be expected to be around 1846.

PRELIMINARY SURNAME SURVEY (PSS)

A PSS is a search of one surname line (beginning with an individual ancestor) in (4) four major indexes, the International Genealogical Index (IGI), the Family Groupsheets Record Archives (FGRA), Family Histories and Family Records (FHFR), and Accelerated Indexing Systems (AIS). Combined these indexes hold more than 120 million names (mainly United States and the British Isles) and very likely will help you locate your particular ancestor and reveal all the research that others have done on your particular line. It is not uncommon for these searches to uncover more than a dozen generations. Instructions and descriptions of each index are on the back.

The IGI is a worldwide index to about 82.5 million names from vital records, church records, and many other sources that cover as many as 10 centuries. All entries are for deceased individuals.

The FGRA is a worldwide index covering about 8 million family groupsheets from documents of any nature, with as many as 10 centuries on a single family line.

The FHFR is an index of more than 100,000 surnames to tens of thousands of family histories, records, pedigrees, genealogies, etc. with as many as 10 centuries on a single family line.

The AIS is 1400 microfiche with about 20-40 million individuals (head of household) from the United States divided into several regions. Entries cover a period of 20 years from 1620 to 1900. Most are comprised of census and mortality schedules and is very helpful in locating an individual in a certain known region and time.

Instructions:

The more data about the subject of the PSS, the more effective the survey will be, especially the father's full name. If father's full name is unknown you should back up one generation.

Emphasis On English Research

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. A Guided Tour Through An English Pedigree

Now, with the objective in mind of finding the complete family of Samuel and Mary Arnold we are ready to begin using English records. How should we begin?

Well, we'd better begin with a recap of what we have totally learned about our Arnold family thus far:

HUSBAND Samuel Arnold born 1819 Birmingham, Warwickshire, he was a son of James and Harriet Arnold.

WIFE He married Mary daughter of Nathaniel and Jane Pitt.

CHILDREN John Arnold born 2 December 1850 Birmingham, Warwickshire, married Sarah. Mary Arnold born October 1852 England, married Mr. Jensen.

Taking one surname at a time, let's see if we can take that line back several generations in English records. By doing this hypothetically, the introduction of new records and different circumstances can be more readily controlled in a shorter space.

Knowing that John Arnold was born 2 December 1850 in Smith Street in the very large industrial town of Birmingham, Warwickshire what is the next step that should be taken to find out more about him, possible brothers and sisters and more about his parents?

Possible Research Action

1. Search the 1851 census of Birmingham.
2. Search the 1851 census of Smith Street, Birmingham only.
3. Search the 1861 census of Birmingham.
4. Search the registers of all the parishes of the Church of England in Birmingham for record of any brothers and sisters of John Arnold.
5. Obtain a birth certificate for Mary Arnold in 1852.
6. Review the background of Birmingham previously gathered.

Critique of Possible

Research Action and Results

1. To search the whole of the census of Birmingham would take about one week so some short-cuts need trying first, searching the whole of the census as a very last resort.

2. This is 'the best and most direct search to make because the 1851 census was taken on the night of the 30 March only five months after John Arnold was born. The search was made, Smith Street being located through a street index to the town, the search time being reduced from one week to thirty minutes. Unfortunately, our Arnold family could not be found although all of Smith Street was searched.

3. To search the whole of the 1861 census of Birmingham is premature and may not even be needed.

4. Searching the Church of England parishes of Birmingham for persons born around 1850 is not practical. At that time about 175,000 people were living there and there were at least ten parishes, each maintaining its own set of registers. Furthermore, by 1850 there were many nonconformist chapels of various denominations all baptizing and registering children. Thus, many families were just not attending the state church by 1850.

5. A review of the historical, geographical, religious and economical background is useful and needs to be continually kept in mind as searches proceed.

Review

Well, we didn't find our Arnold family on Smith Street so we have a problem. What should we do now?

Possible Research Action

1. Search the International Genealogical Index for Warwickshire for children of Samuel and Mary Arnold 1837-1860.
2. Search the 1851 census of a few streets near Smith Street, Birmingham.
3. Search a commercial directory for Warwickshire printed about 1850 to see if Samuel Arnold is listed as a brass founder with a street address.

Critique of Possible

Research Action and Results

1. Searching the IGI at this stage for this period of years is not a bad idea, but it is not the best. It is quick but it is not likely to cover all the births of children for this period of time. Even if all the christenings and births from churches had been placed in there, there are families that never used a church at this late date. The current Vital Records Listing gives details of records totally extracted and in the IGI for stated periods.

2. Using a commercial directory for street addresses in certain circumstances can be very helpful. But where an occupation was very common such as laborer, farm laborer, coal miner, nailer, etc., those people are not listed. Gentlemen, farmers, bakers, plumbers, and certain other tradesmen would be listed. In the case of a brass founder, there were many of them in Birmingham and the chances of Samuel Arnold being listed in the commercial directory would be remote. However, if such a directory is readily available to you, the search takes just a few minutes. Samuel was not listed.

3. Searching the 1851 census of a few streets near Smith Street is a good idea and in this case was successful. Here is what was found:

1851 Census of Waterloo Place, Birmingham, Warwickshire

Samuel Arnold, head mrd, age 31, brass founder, born Birmingham, Warwickshire.

Mary Arnold, wife mrd, age 28, born Willenhall, Staffordshire.

Samuel Arnold, son, age 3, born Birmingham, Warwickshire.

John Arnold, son, age 3 months, born Birmingham, Warwickshire.

Benjamin Pitt, lodger, age 60, baker, born Wolverhampton, Staffordshire.

Review

Let's briefly review what new information we have found.

1. The father Samuel was still in brass.
2. His approximate year of birth and place of birth is now known.

3. The same is true for his wife Mary.
4. One more additional child, Samuel, has been found.

5. Who is this Benjamin Pitt, living with them on the night the census was taken? From what we have learned so far, Mary Arnold was a Pitt before marriage so Benjamin could be her uncle, brother to her father Nathaniel. Or it could be just a coincidence. Lodgers were very common in those days. What should we do next?

Possible Research Action

1. Search civil registration marriages for the marriage of Samuel Arnold to his wife Mary Pitt. It is already known that their marriage took place about 1846.

2. Search the Warwickshire IGI for children of Samuel and Mary Arnold 1846-1870.

3. Search the 1861 census of Waterloo Place, Birmingham to see if our Arnold family is still living there.

Critique of Possible

Research Action and Results

1. This is a good search to make.

You should have read and studied about this collection of records as a research source in Genealogical Research in England and Wales or in briefer form in the Genealogical Department's research papers. Microfilms of the indexes to civil registration marriages are available at the L.D.S. library in Salt Lake City or through its branch library system. Your plan, then, is to search the indexes for 1846 and if the marriage is not found in that year, to extend the search either side, say, 1845, 1847, 1844, 1848 and so on. Do not necessarily assume that the marriage took place before the birth of the first child. Sometimes it took place afterwards. Sometimes it is hidden under spelling variations that you have not considered.

Once the index reference is found and the registration district, quarter of the year, volume number and page number is learned from the index and these index references match exactly for both Samuel Arnold and Mary Pitt, you can send for a copy of the certificate to either the Registrar General in London or to the local superintendent registrar. The above mentioned text by Smith and Gardner will tell you more about this.

But we have forgotten one thing. The birth certificate of John Arnold in 1850 described the mother as "Mary Arnold late Pitt formerly Walton." But we concluded that this had been mixed up as we found from other sources that Nathaniel Pitt was Mary's father, therefore Mary must have been 'late Walton formerly Pitt'. That means that the marriage certificate will only be found under the matching references of Samuel Arnold and Mary WALTON (not Pitt). IT IS VERY IMPORTANT THAT THIS BE UNDERSTOOD, otherwise matching references in the indexed will never be found.

Samuel Arnold of full age, gun maker, son of James Arnold, brass founder married to Mary Walton, widow, of full age, daughter of Nathaniel Pitt, shoemaker, married at Wolverhampton according to the rites and ceremonies of the Independents.

2. If you are close to Salt Lake City or to a branch library, searches in the IGI for Warwickshire will take only a few minutes, otherwise, regardless of what is found would not be a conclusive search. It is true that a study of the vital records listing which shows its contents other than patron submission (study the L.D.S. research paper on the controlled extraction program) shows many parishes in Warwickshire have been included right up to the 1870's. But the search will not be conclusive for two reasons: a. not all the Birmingham area parishes are included for the right period and b. the IGI does not take into account those who did not attend a church of some sort. Of course, by a great stroke of luck, you might find a patron has submitted these very same family entries that you seek through civil registration, a family Bible or other source.

Anyhow, you made the search and no children were found to our Samuel and Mary Arnold.

3. Searching a census of a street ten years later than you found them is chancy but worth a try, especially if the source is readily available. As the 1841, 1851, 1861, 1871 and more recently the 1881 census is now available in the Salt Lake City library and through its branch libraries, the action is certainly worth a try. Luckily the family were still at Waterloo Place and fairly quick access to Waterloo Place was made through a street index.

Review

It seems we are making good progress so let's look at what we found:

1. We have a marriage date now for Samuel and Mary Arnold.

2. We now know the name of the father of Samuel Arnold.

3. We have confirmed the name of the father of Mary as Nathaniel Pitt.

4. The occupation gun maker and brass founder go hand in hand.

5. The term 'of full age' simply means that the person concerned was 'over 21 years of age'. But a word of caution here. No evidence of age had to be presented. Persons under age had to have consent of parents. Registrars recording events like this varied. Some were particular and recorded precise ages. Others didn't bother.

6. It is very important to note that the marriage did not take place under the auspices of a Church of England minister as was usually the case. The minister of some local Independent chapel tied the knot. This might mean that one or both parties to the marriage belonged to the Independents and record of their own christenings might be found in the records of the Independents.

7. Ages between the 1851 and 1861 census returns seem to match up closely enough but there is a discrepancy in the place of birth of the wife Mary. The map of Staffordshire shows the Willenhall and Wolverhampton adjoin each other. At a later date we will need to consider this discrepancy further.

8. Scholar, as given in the census, simply means that the child was attending some kind of day school.

School often started at age 3 and ended at age 12. However, there is a child here still at school at age 13.

9. We now know five children of Samuel and Mary Arnold. The 1900 Soundex census stated there were seven children altogether. Note the gap in the children between Mary age 9 and Harriet A (most likely Harriet Ann) age 3.

Having set out this information on a family group sheet and a pedigree chart, working style, with ages and occupations recorded, what is the next thing we should do to try to complete the group sheet of Samuel and Mary Arnold?

Possible Research Action

1. The IGI for Staffordshire for the Arnold children and the birth of the daughter of Nathaniel Pitt.

2. Check the family group sheet archives of the Genealogical Department, Salt Lake City for a possible group sheet of Samuel and Mary's children.

YOUTH FOR CHRIST

3. Using the birth records at the local superintendent register's office in Birmingham, have searches made for the children. What period should be covered in this very large registration district? Well, the search could begin in 1846, the year of the marriage and go to about 1868.

Critique of Possible

Research Action and Results

1. Birmingham is close to the Staffordshire border and too often we place too much importance on county boundaries so the idea is not as ridiculous as it may seem. However, no record of any of the Arnold children was found.

2. This is a sound research procedure at each generation. Some relative might just have submitted a record of that family or part of the family. Those archives contain more 'non-related' family groups to the sender than they do related ones. It is very important to remember this. However, in this case, nothing helpful was found.

3. Searches at the local register office can be quite successful and most registrars make searches by correspondence. One of the virtues of using the local superintendent registrar is that he can find names of children in a family whose names you do not know. Many of the local offices kept an index of names of sorts but no national standard was ever set up for them to keep such an index as compared with the national one in London. In large towns such as Birmingham, the most you can expect the local registrar to search is one particular sub-district. In this particular family the sub-district where John Arnold was born in 1850 was stated on the birth certificate already to hand. This sub-district should be stated in your request to search.

The suggestion above was to search 1846-1868. This is a large request and it might be wise to split it into two halves. Also avoid having to do the extra work of searching 1850, an unlikely year to find another child in our Samuel Arnold's family. Quote the names of the children you know with their approximate years of birth. Mention that there may be other children whose names you do not know. Send some funds with your request, promising to pay the difference when the total cost is known. Addresses of these offices can be obtained from the Genealogical Department in Salt Lake City but a letter to the Superintendent Registrar, the Register Office, Birmingham, would find its way there also.

Okay, you make the search and the following are the children you find born to Samuel Arnold and his wife

Mary Pitt / Walton:

Samuel Arnold born 6 March 1848 at Birmingham.

Mary Arnold born 2 October 1852 at Birmingham.

Elizabeth Arnold born 29 November 1856 at Birmingham.

Harriet Ann Arnold born 16 February 1858 at Birmingham.

Moroni Arnel born 30 August 1853 at Birmingham.

Review

Now it's time to review again what we have additionally found (or not found) about the family of and children of Samuel and Mary Arnold.

1. They have seven known children.

2. Complete birth dates and places have been found for six of them.

3. The spelling of the surname varies as written. Obviously the registrar wrote down what he heard.

4. No birth certificate was found for the child Benjamin who was one year of age when the 1861 census was taken. His birth may be one of the 6 percent that went unrecorded at that period or it may be hidden in the records under some unusual arrangement of the name Arnold.

Possible Research Action

1. Begin to make search to find out more about Samuel's parents James and Harriet Arnold.

2. Try to find out more about the children of Samuel and Mary as to their deaths and marriages.

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature contains material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

A Guided Tour Through An English Pedigree

Critique Of Possible Research Action And Results

1. It is a little premature to do this until we have completed suggestion #2. It is a natural tendency to push on rapidly but the objective should be to complete, as far as is reasonable and practical, the family group record in each generation.

2. It is practical to contact the local superintendent registrar of Birmingham, asking to search his death indexes for record of children who might have died as young children. Death certificates for young children show the fathers name but as they grow older, no parent identification is given. This fact, plus the size of the registration district and the fact that the surname is fairly common, makes it impractical to find death records of all the children. By the same token it is impractical to search for marriages unless some clue from a family Bible or other family records is known.

The registrar provided records of death for three children:

Elizabeth died 3 Dec 1856 age 4 days

Harriet Ann died 18 Sept 1861 age 3 years

Moroni died 31 Aug 1863 age 1 day

Review

1. Now we can see part of the reason why only two children, John and Mary, emigrated with their parents.

2. Still unaccounted for, however, is a birth or christening record for Benjamin. As part of search #2, let's say that the church records of all the then existing churches in Birmingham were searched for Benjamin Arnold's christening, a very extensive assignment, without finding it. This is the typical pattern in English research. What happened to Samuel Arnold we do not know, except that family records say he died in 1861.

It would be a good exercise for you to prepare a family group record for Samuel and Mary Arnold and their seven children. What information do you have on each of them and what are the sources from which the information was gathered?

Now we can turn our attention to the next earlier Arnold generation, that of James and Harriet Arnold and their children. Let's say that family records show James as dying in 1852 and Harriet in 1840.

Very little else is known, only that they had a son Samuel born about 1819-21 at Birmingham in Warwickshire. The father James is variously described as a brass founder and an iron founder.

Possible Research Action

1. We do not know how long James and Harriet Arnold lived after their child Samuel was born and we have no street address where James was living. Let's see if, as a brass founder he appears at an address in the commercial directories of Birmingham.

2. Failing this, let's search the 1841 census of the whole of Birmingham for the family

Critique Of Possible Research Action And Results

1. At this time period, commercial directories were published regularly, by some firms as often as every two years. There are good collections in the Salt Lake City Genealogical Library, the Society of Genealogists in London, the British Library at the British Museum in London and for Birmingham only, the Birmingham Library will have a collection. Unfortunately, as in the case of the later generation, no entry for James Arnold was found. We can assume therefore, that he was a worker in the commercial directory.

2. Searches of the 1841 census returns of the whole of the town of Birmingham could take a whole week. Let's think a little harder and see if something else is better.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the parish registers of the Birmingham Church of England parishes and also the registers of the Birmingham nonconformist chapels.

2. Search the L. D. S. Family Group Records Archives

3. Search the L. D. S. International Genealogical Index

By Frank Smith

This feature contains material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

2. There was no record of the family among these group records 1 and 3. Some of the church records are in the IGI, others are not. It is first necessary to determine the period of years that need to be searched. This will be a somewhat arbitrary period to begin with, so let us say that the search should cover christenings and burials 1805-1840.

Having determined this, reference to Smith's Genealogical Gazetteer of England shows seven Church of England parishes and chapels with registers for all or part of this period of search. Reference to the vital records listing at the front of the IGI shows that the records of christenings and marriages for several of these parishes are completely included in the I. G. I. for the period required. Others are partly included, others are not included at all.

All of the known nonconformist chapel registers for Birmingham are in Salt Lake City and have been added to the IGI.

At least the bishop's transcripts and sometimes the parish registers of all the needed Church of England parishes are on microfilm in Salt Lake City so by a mixture of searches in the IGI and microfilms it was possible to make the desired search.

Here is what was found concerning our family:

Parish Registers of St. Martin, Birmingham cb 1805-1840

chr 10 Nov 1819 Samuel son of James and Harriet Arnold, Snow Hill, bur 6 Apr 1826 Thomas son of James and Harriet Arnold age 1, Snow Hill bur 9 Nov 1840 Harriet Arnold age 45, Snow Hill Bishop's Transcripts of St. Mary, Birmingham cb 1805-1840

chr 21 June 1821 Sarah dau of James and Harriet Arnold, Reeves Alley bur 6 Dec 1818 Harriet dau of James and Harriet Arnold age 1 Parish Registers of St. Phillips, Birmingham cb 1805-1840

chr 2 Feb 1817 Harriet dau of James and Harriet Arnold, Snow Hill Presbyterian Chapel, Birmingham c 1805-1837

chr 28 Apr 1823 Elizabeth dau of James and Harriet Arnold, Snow Hill

Critique

Now let's look at what we have found and make some comments and explanations.

1. Six children of James and Harriet Arnold have been found. One of them is recorded only in the burial registers. That child, Thomas, may have been christened with no recording made, or may not have been christened at all. There was no compulsory registration at that time.

2. Note that four different churches and chapels are involved in the recording of the children. There was no rule against this. Parents went where they pleased. None of the churches were a really great distance from each other. For pedigree work in a city no one parish or set of registers can be ignored.

3. Two places of residences are discovered - Reeves Alley and Snow Hill
Now let's see if we can figure out the best approaches to find out more about this family.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the 1841 and 1851 census of Reeves Alley and Snow Hill, small areas of Birmingham
2. Obtain a death certificate for Harriet Arnold who was buried at St. Martin, Birmingham 9 Nov 1840 age 45

3. Search the appropriate Birmingham parishes for the marriage of James Arnold to his wife Harriet

4. Search parishes adjacent to Birmingham for the birth or christening of their son Thomas, born about 1825 but whose christening has not yet been found

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. The 1841 census of Snow Hill, Birmingham (pinpointed through use of the street index) reads:

James Arnold; age 50-54; labr; not born in county

Samuel Arnold; age 20-24; brass founder; born in county

Sarah Arnold; age 20-24; born in county

Elizabeth Arnold; age 15-19; born in county

The 1851 census, showed, living at #10, Snow Hill:

James Arnold, lodger, widower, age 60 born Gamlingay, Cambs living in the home of another elderly couple

2. Contact with the local superintendent registrar is the best way to obtain this death certificate because we already know so much about the death. The certificate verified what the burial entry said and that she died 6 Nov 1840 age 45 of dropsy and that she was the wife of James Arnold, labourer in a factory.

3. In our previous searches of Birmingham parish registers we had not searched the marriages. This was done and the marriage was not found.

4. This can be done but wait a few moments. Maybe there is something else we can do at the same time.

Let's review these new searches we have just completed:

1. Nothing startling in the 1841 census, except that the father James is not born in Warwickshire. As ages

NORWELL
YOUTH FOR CHRIST
Post Office Box 117

in the 1841 census for persons aged over 15 were given to the lowest five year term, the actual enumeration showed the ages as 50, 20, 20 and 15 respectively.

2. The family has flown and James Arnold is living with someone else. The key information is that he was a long way away in Cambridgeshire. He was probably a farm laborer there and like thousands of others moved into industrial England for employment.

3. The death of Harriet Arnold definitely identifies her as being ours. The church burial register entry did not do that but the death record says she was the wife of James Arnold.

There's still a little more search to do before we say that this family group record of James and Harriet Arnold is reasonably complete.

Possible Research Action

1. Search parishes near Birmingham for the marriage of James to Harriet and for the christening of their son Thomas. Hopefully the marriage took place in that area rather than in Cambridgeshire although at this point we do not know where Harriet is from.

2. Maybe the father James Arnold did not live too long after the 1851 census was taken. Having developed a good working relationship with the superintendent registrar for Birmingham, perhaps he could be persued to search a few years after 1850 for such a death record.

3. If item #2 is not successful, a search of the 1861 census returns of Snow Hill, Birmingham might be worthwhile or perhaps James Arnold left a will.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. This is a good suggestion. We should not isolate the town of Birmingham and its ecclesiastical parishes, as within just a few miles there are other industrial towns such as Aston and Edgbaston that we could rightly call suburbs of Birmingham. In the parish churches in those towns, events might well have been recorded that are of interest to us.

What period of years should be searched for the christening of the child Thomas? A look at what we already know shows that he died in 1826 age 1 so the christening register search need only be 1825 and 1826 or perhaps 1824-1826. Searches were made in several of our outlying parishes for Thomas without success.

As mentioned before, this is not an unusual situation in English research. For the marriage of the parents this was found in the parish registers of Edgbaston 18 July 1815 (only 2 miles from Birmingham):

James Arnold, lab'r single to Harriet Thompson, single of Birmingham

Witnesses: John Smith, Caroline Thompson

2. The superintendent registrar for Birmingham did not have to search long for James Arnold's death record. He died 9 Jan 1853 at #10, Snow Hill and was reported to be aged 64, a labourer. The informant was Samuel Arnold.

Review

Although James Wrnold was a humble laborer in a brass foundry, this should not rule out a search for a possible will for him. Laborers, miners and the like did sometimes leave wills. In this case, no will was found in any of the likely probate courts. Without a long explanation, the simplest way to determine these probate courts is to use the Genealogical Department's probate jurisdiction paper for Warwickshire but you will need to study Volume 2 of Genealogical Research In England and Wales for a more exhaustive explanation.

Review

Except for more detailed information for the parents, this group record is as near complete as we can reasonably make it. For exercise, compile a group record of your own for this family. Our next effort will be to find out more about James Arnold and his brothers and sisters.

A Guided Tour Through An English Pedigree

Editor's Note:

Some of the data for this section was placed out of sequence. So the material in sequence that should follow from the May-June 1985 issue can be found in the March-April and May-June 1984 issues.

The material used in this issue follows then, in sequence, the information as printed in the May-June 1984 issue.

Thank you for your forbearance in using this material which has been printed out of sequence.

Now let's see if we can develop the line of Harriet Thompson. What do we already know about her?

1. She married at Edgbaston, Warws., 18 July 1815 to James Arnold. Witnesses to the wedding were John Smith and Caroline Thompson.

2. Her last known child was born in 1825.

3. She died 6 November 1840, her age at death was given as 45. Her brother Joshua Thompson of H.M.S. Victory was the informant of death.

4. She was buried in the churchyard at St. Martin, Birmingham 9 November 1840 when her age was again recorded as 45. She was therefore born about 1794-5.

Possible Research Action

1. Search of all the registers of the known nonconformist chapels of Birmingham and the area 1790-1837 for all entries of the surname Thompson.

2. Search all the registers of the Church of England parishes in Birmingham and the adjoining parishes 1790-1800.

Comment - because this is a common surname in the area and the industrial population large, searches will be very time consuming unless reliable indexes are available. You may wish to confine the searches at the outset just to Harriet and Joshua Thompson births and christenings. There are advantages and disadvantages to both approaches.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. There was a time when the only copy of these records were at Somerset House, London, under severe search restrictions, making the suggested search impossible. But now that they are all microfilmed and in the International Genealogical Index (christenings and births), the search is not difficult to make. The searches were negative.

2. This is not the best approach. Look again at the information known. Fortunately for us her brother Joshua Thompson was home on leave when his sister died. Again, very fortunately, the registrar takes time to record Joshua as a member of the crew of H.M.S. Victory.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the ship's musters and other records relating to H.M.S. Victory for information about Joshua Thompson.

2. Search the probate records of the area, examining Thompson wills proved in all the likely courts after 1815, the year of Harriet's marriage, for a Thompson will naming her in her married surname.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. A ship's muster, especially the first one for new crew member will show the crew member's place of birth at this particular time period. Read Chapter 7 of Volume 2 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales and the Genealogical Department's research paper Series A#1 Major Genealogical Sources in England and Wales.

The ship's musters of H.M.S. Victory were searched. Those for 6 January 1809 said he was aged 18 and born at Rugby, Warwickshire. These musters are not indexed so are fairly time-consuming to search.

2. This is a tremendously large and time-consuming search. Let's leave it over for the time being and see what happens as a result of search #1.

Possible Research Action

1. Read up on Rugby and make notes of its background.

2. Search the Warwickshire IGI for the christening or birth record of the children Joshua and Harriet Thompson. According to the Vital Records Listing, the key to knowing what is contained in the IGI, Rugby christening registers are included for the right period.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. Rugby is 16½ miles ne of Warwick. In 1840 it had a population of 2,500 and was a fairly large market town. For the period of our interest it had only one parish church with parish registers beginning in 1620. By 1840, the date of the reference book being used, it had places of worship for Baptists and Wesleyans.

Rugby had a grammar school of high repute, founded in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Boys living within 10 miles of Rugby were eligible to go to this school.

2. Warws. IGI showed: chr 21 September 1789 Joshua son of John and Caroline Thompson at Rugby. No likely Harriet Thompson was christened there although there were many of this name from other parishes.

Looking at all the Harriet Thompson christenings carefully, one was noted as having the same parents as the above Joshua but christened at a place called Hillmorton 28 January 1795.

Possible Research Action

1. Find out where Hillmorton is in the county and what is its background.

2. Make a wide search of Rugby and Hillmorton parish registers (or bishop's transcripts or both) christenings, marriages and burials, say, 1775-1815 for all Thompson entries.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. Hillmorton is a small country parish 3 miles south of Rugby with a population in 1840 of 873. Its parish registers exist back to 1564.

2. Searching 1775-1815 is arbitrary but it is a good practice to the year of the ancestral marriage (Harriet married in 1815) just in case entries in the registers suggest that the woman may have been a widow. In our case, we know she was a Thompson because she had a brother Joshua Thompson. In some cases, however, as entries of the pedigree surname are studied, it could be observed that a Mr. Thompson and a wife Harriet had children just before 1815, the husband being buried just before 1815, leaving the widow free to marry again. Don't expect the registers to state 'widow' as marital status, particularly before 1754.

Review: We seem to have found the family we were looking for. Surprisingly, all the children seem to have survived infancy unless by an unusual chance they were buried in another parish. Note also that none of the children married in either parish, at least up to 1815. With children recorded christened in 1782, 1785, 1789, 1792, and 1795 the ever present and difficult to answer question comes up - are there any more children in the family that might be recorded elsewhere? This is a difficult decision to make - whether to move on or look for more children. In this particular case, the children are spaced three or four years apart so there could be more children. There could also be children born after 1795 because we have not found a burial for the mother right after 1795. The decision would have been easier to make had we found children one year apart and the mother dying right after the birth of the last known child.

One good thing about the Salt Lake City IGI is that many of the parishes nearby can be readily searched simply by looking at the Thompson microfiche for Warwickshire (and adjacent counties if there is a border problem) for other children of John and Caroline Thompson. Even though the surname is common it does not take long to look for these other children. Then the question arises: "What other parishes near Rugby and Hillmorton have I missed because they are not included in the extraction program that fed the IGI?"

Now it is a matter of using a map and the appropriately dated Vital Records Listing, circling each parish that is in the IGI for the appropriate dates. For those parishes that have to be searched the harder way, the Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City has most of them on film and available through the branch library program. The map you should use would be one printed in the nineteenth century such as those published by Samuel Lewis and Co. or specially compiled in recent years showing parishes only and dates of commencement of the parish registers. Consider each parish within a twelve-mile radius of Rugby. Let's say that no additional information was found and the group sheet can stand as it is.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the Salt Lake City Family Group Records Archives (all on film) for a possible group sheet for the John and Caroline Thompson family.
2. Search the Warws. IGI for the christening of the father John Thompson.
3. Study Thompson wills proved from Rugby and Hillmorton, say - 1780-1820.

Critique of Possible

Research Action and Results

1. No likely group sheet was found.
2. Because the given name and surname are both common this is not a good idea. However, the IGI is readily available and a record could be made of all the John Thompson christenings and births occurring in the Warws. IGI 1744-1764 which would allow him to be between 36 and 16 years of age when he married in 1780. Attempt no analysis at this point, keeping them in the research file for reference.

3. Again, this is not the best search that can be made right now although it will need doing sometime. The search could be made, likely wills abstracted and placed in the file ready for future analysis.

The real item that you should have noticed as you made your analysis is that John and Caroline Thompson's marriage in 1780 was by license, Volume I of Genealogical Research in England and Wales and the Major Source Paper referred to earlier both indicate the value of information recorded on marriage bonds and marriage allegations that lead up to the granting of a special license to marry. These were granted through Church of England jurisdictions most of the time. Smith's Genealogical Gazetteer of England and a good contemporary topographical dictionary will show that Rugby was part of the large diocese of Lichfield and this would be the logical place to start such a search.

Possible Research Action

1. Search for a marriage bond and allegation among the records of the diocese of Lichfield. The documents would have been prepared on the day of the marriage or a day or two before hand.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. Marriage bonds and allegations generally speaking have either been microfilmed or are in archdeacon's registries, diocesan registries or in county record offices. The license in this case proved to have been granted through the office of the bishop of Lichfield and gave the following information:

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. Searches in the naval records kept at the Public Record Office in London and searched through an agent were successful.

Officers Service Records showed that John Thompson had joined Repulse as a midshipman in 1772 at the age of 18, rising to rank of lieutenant and had been killed at the Battle of Trafalgar in 1805.

A ship's muster for 1772 showed him to have been born at Brownsover, Warwickshire.

2. The parish registers of Brownsover are in the Warws. IGI according to the Vital Records Listing. If John gave a correct age at enlistment (and many lied) he would have been born about 1754.

John Thompson christenings from Brownsover as shown in the IGI are as follows:

- chr 2 Apr 1753 John son of Mary
- chr 4 June 1755 John son of William and Hannah
- chr 30 Nov 1756 John son of Samuel and Petronella

A background study showed that Brownsover is a small parish a few miles north of Rugby. In 1840 it had a population of 90 and its parish registers date back to 1593. It is described as a chapel in the parish of Clifton upon Dinsmore. Clifton in 1840 had a population of 597 and registers going back to 1594. The IGI has one John Thompson christening for our period:

- chr 6 Jan 1754 John son of Henry and Jane.

Review:

Here are four likely John Thompson christenings, all possible candidates to be the ancestor. Let's stress a golden rule before we get over-excited about the IGI. Remember that the entries you see are for christenings and marriages. Only occasionally have burials been matched to the christenings. Therefore, it is always necessary to go back to the original source used and see how many of the likely possibilities for the the ancestral christening (even if there is only one) you can bury off before marriageable age or marry off to some person other than the spouse you know the ancestor married.

Possible Research Action

1. Search sufficiently in Brownsover and Clifton upon Dunsmore marriage and burial registers for all Thompson entries to try to account for as many of the four John Thompson christenings as you can.

2. Look again at the probate searches already made and add to these, any Thompson wills proved from Brownsover for a wide enough period of years.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. These searches failed to account for any of the four likely John Thompson christenings so they are all viable possibilities.

2. Several Thompson wills have been found from the four parishes in question. None seem to be of immediate value. Actually, the only probate that would be of value at the moment would be one where our John would be named in a relative's will, naming him as a married man and also naming at least two of his children for matching purposes.

Note: These negative results on this hypothetical pedigree are deliberately designed to draw your attention to other record sources not as commonly used as church, probate and census records. Remember that this John Thompson was an officer in the Royal Navy and lived close to Rugby which had a prestigious grammar school. Why not search the alumni registers of this school to see if John attended there. Your copy of the Major Source Paper says that often these registers give a place of birth and a father's name.

Possible Research Action

1. Search Rugby grammar school registers for record of John Thompson's entrance into the school.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. These registers showed a John son of Samuel Thompson enrolled in 1768, born 10 November 1756. A notation made later, common to registers of top schools and universities, stated that he was killed at the Battle of Trafalgar in 1805.

Review:

The notation about the Battle of Trafalgar ties the entry in with the Offices Service Records previously searched. Thus it appears that the John christened in 1756 son of Samuel and Petronella Thompson at Brownsover is the one we seek. What should we do now concerning the family of this couple?

Possible Research Action

1. Search Brownsover and Clifton upon Dunsmore for all children of Samuel and Petronella Thompson, say 1740-1770 and even to 1800 if the records are readily accessible.

2. Search the Family Group Record Archives in Salt Lake City for a possible group sheet relating to this couple's family.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. Brownsover parish registers 1740-1800 (selected Thompson entries)

2 Dec 1748 Perscilla dau of Samuel and Petronella Thompson, clerk bur 3 Dec 1748

29 May 1750 Perscilla dau of Samuel and Petronella Thompson, clerk bur 3 Dec 1748

2 Dec 1752 William son of Samuel and Petronella Thompson, clerk bur 3 Dec 1748

16 Apr 1754 Petronella son of Samuel and Petronella Thompson, clerk bur 3 Dec 1748

30 Nov 1756 John son of Samuel and Petronella Thompson, clerk bur 3 Dec 1748

Clifton upon Dunsmore no Thompson entries for same period.

2. A group sheet was found in the archives showing this couple with the above five children. No burial of the first child was recorded and the profession of the father was not stated.

Review:

The father Samuel Thompson is described as a 'clerk' in the christening entries for his children. This could refer to a parish clerk, a local parishioner, or it could refer to the parish minister who is a clerk in Holy Orders.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the Warwickshire IGI for other children of Samuel and Petronella and for the marriage of the parents.

2. Search the archives in Salt Lake City for a possible group sheet showing the marriage of this Samuel Thompson but without children. Very often, the appropriate marriage appears on a separate group sheet.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. None found.
2. None found.

Review:

Many parish ministers attended schools and universities whose alumni records have been preserved. In case Samuel Thompson was one of these why not look in the Cambridge and Oxford University alumni registers that are in print and readily available in the genealogical library?

Possible Research Action

1. Search the Cambridge and Oxford printed alumni records.

Critique of Possible

Research Action and Results

Cambridge University — Samuel Thompson matriculated (graduated) B. A. 1742 son Michael Thompson of Shrewsbury, Shropshire. Curate of Hopesay, Shrops. 1743-1747, vicar of Brownsover 1747-1780.

Review: Note that additional biographical information has been added to the original entry. This was quite common. Notice that a new county, Shropshire comes into the picture. Shropshire is separated from Warwickshire by Staffordshire and Worcestershire so the school records provide valuable information on this family movement across counties. This now raises the possibility that we may find Samuel's marriage and additional children at Hopesay in Shropshire. For a description of Shropshire see the beginning of the next objective.

Possible Research Action

1. Search Hopesay, Shrops. 1740-1747 for children of Samuel and Petronella Thompson.

Critique of Possible

Research Action and Results

1. A child Samuel was christened at Hopesay 2 October 1746. This shows that the group sheet in the archives is incomplete.

Using Mr. Boyd's Shropshire marriage index the marriage of the parents was soon discovered — 1744 Samuel Thompson to Petronella Jaundrell at St. Chad, Shrewsbury. The parish registers of St. Chad additionally gave the full date, 30 June 1744 and said that Samuel was a 'clerk of Hopesay'.

Further research could be done in Shropshire but let's leave it and try to extend the line of Petronella Jaundrell.

Now let's take a look at another pedigree line so that we can illustrate hypothetically that while some sources fail to help in certain pedigree problems, they can be very useful in others.

What do we presently know about Petronella Jaundrell and how can we find her Jaundrell ancestry?

She married Samuel Thompson 30 June 1744 at the parish church of St. Chad in the town of Shrewsbury, Shropshire. No place of residence was stated for her but her husband was stated to be of Hopesay, Shropshire. Right here is a training point worth remembering. When a marriage gives a place of residence for one of the parties like this one did, often both parties are from the same place.

As Shropshire is a county we have not worked in before, we need to check into it's background a little bit.

Using a good topographical dictionary and chapter 9 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales, Volume 2, here are some of the things we learn:

1. Shropshire (also called Salop) is in the midlands, bordering on Wales.
2. It is mainly agricultural but coal, lead, copper and iron are mined.
3. The county town is Shrewsbury which has 5 ancient parishes (parishes with registers beginning before 1813).
4. A large percentage of the registers of the parishes within the county have been printed for pre-1813 periods and are also in the International Genealogical Index.
5. Percival Boyd used the printed marriage registers to compile his marriage index to the county.
6. Ecclesiastically, the county was roughly divided between the diocese of Lichfield and the diocese of Hereford.
7. The Burgess Rolls, listing those who became burgesses or freemen of the town of Shrewsbury are in print.

Having gathered this much background, what searches should be made so far as Petronella Jaundrell and her pedigree is concerned?

Possible Research Action

1. Search the Shropshire IGI for the christening of Petronella Jaundrell, say, 1708-1728.

2. Determine from Boyd's marriage index for the county and from the IGI if the surname Jaundrell is very common in the area.

Critique of Possible

Research Action and Results

1. No christening of any Petronella Jaundrell appears in the Shropshire IGI.

2. The surname is not very common, christenings found principally in the parishes of Pontesbury, Church Pulverbatch, Pitchford and a few others.

Possible Research Action

1. Copy all Jaundrell entries from the IGI for future study. These can be photocopied personally in the Salt Lake City library or can be obtained through correspondence.

2. Copy Jaundrell marriages prior to 1750 from Boyd's marriage index.

3. Search the appropriate local probate court for Jaundrell wills proved after 1744 in the hope that one will be found naming Petronella in her married surname of Thompson.

Critique of Possible

Research Action and Results

1. This information will be part of the Jaundrell file for use as research proceeds.

2. Same as in item #1.

3. Parishes where Jaundrells are found all seem to be in that part of Shropshire ecclesiastically in the diocese of Lichfield (see Smith's Gazetteer and Parish Maps of the Counties of England and Wales).

Several wills were found and abstracts made of them. One of great interest is the following:

Thomas Jaundrell, yeoman, of Little Hanwood, will proved 6 January 1774 names wife Mary, daughter Petronella, grandson William Thompson and son Samuel Jaundrell.

Smith's Gazetteer says that Little Hanwood is in the parish of Pontesbury.

Review: From the material now in the Jaundrell file, representing almost every parish in the county, let's say that there is a Thomas and Mary Jaundrell with a son Thomas christened 6 June 1725. There is no other likely Thomas and Mary Jaundrell family. Clearly Petronella is another of their children. Her christening has either not been performed or has been performed and the recording has been lost.

This is a valuable research point to remember that when parents leave wills and name their children, invariably there is one child (sometimes more than one) whose christening or birth record cannot be found.

So now we have our Thomas and Mary Jaundrell family with only two children. What is the next step?

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature contains material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

A Guided Tour Through An English Pedigree

Possible Research Action

1. Search the Family Group Record Archives in Salt Lake City for a possible group sheet for Thomas and Mary Jaundrell.

2. Search the Shrops IGI and Shrops Boyds for the marriage of these parents.

3. Compile a background of the parish of Pontesbury as it is presently unfamiliar territory.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. The above archives does have a group sheet for Thomas and Mary but it shows only the child Samuel. Here is another research point worth noting - group sheets put in these archives between 1942 and 1970 often contain results of searches in only one source. A large proportion of those sheets were not direct line families to the person submitting them so time-consuming research was not involved.

2. The only likely marriage found in the IGI and Boyd was:

21 July 1722 at St. Chad, Shrewsbury -- Thomas Jaundrell mrd to Mary Jones

3. Pontesbury is a parish 7¼ miles southwest of Shrewsbury, comprising the chapelry of Longdon and the townships of Cruckton, Edge and Pontesbury. In 1831 it had a population of 3,000 and had a Baptist chapel. Its parish registers exist back to 1538.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the Shropshire IGI for the possible christening of Thomas Jaundrell say 1686-1706.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. There is one other thing that should be done first. We have not yet fully determined if the above marriage is the one we need. We need to check the actual entry in St. Chad Shrewsbury registers to see if the copy we used had the full information. When examined, it was discovered that the original entry stated that both parties resided at Little Hanwood. We had said earlier that Little Hanwood was part of the parish of Pontesbury according to Smith's Gazetteer. So it looks as if we have the correct marriage. When Thomas left his will he was of Little Hanwood.

Now it's time to make the suggested search in the Shropshire IGI. The only Thomas Jaundrell christening is one that took place 23 Dec 1703 at a parish called Pitchford. His parents are listed as Abraham and Mary. In fact this is the only Jaundrell family of a Thomas at the right period.

Possible Research Action

1. Where is Pitchford in relation to Pontesbury?

2. Follow through to see if the child Thomas survived to marriageable age and/or married in that parish.

3. Is there a group sheet for Abraham's family in the archives in Salt Lake City and how does it compare with the entries appearing in Pitchford parish registers?

4. Study Jaundrell wills for the appropriate time period to see if: the above Abraham leaves a will naming this son Thomas and possibly Thomas's children, their names coinciding with the ones we have; is there a will for the Thomas christened in 1703 whose children's names do not coincide with the ones given to our Thomas's children.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. It is always a good practice to gather this background each time a new parish is introduced into the picture. Pitchford is a much smaller parish, with a population in 1831 of only 197. It is 6½ miles southeast of Shrewsbury and about seven miles east of Pontesbury. Its parish registers begin in 1558.

2. The Thomas Jaundrell christened there in 1703 appears to have survived infancy and no conflicting marriage has been found.

3. There is a group sheet for Abraham and Mary Jaundrell in the archives in Salt Lake City. It has 11 the known children shown in Pitchford parish registers:

John 25 July 1693, Abraham 3 Dec 1699, Phillip 5 Nov 1701, Thomas 23 Dec 1703

4. When searching for Jaundrell wills proved locally, two major probate jurisdictions are involved. Pontesbury is in that part of Shropshire included in the diocese of Hereford while Pitchford, only a few miles away is in the diocese of Lichfield. Both jurisdictions need searching with another final search in the calendars of the Prerogative Court of the Archbishop of Canterbury. These are the three most likely jurisdictions. If probate jurisdictions are a puzzle to you, be sure to use the research paper for Shropshire dealing with them, available from the Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City.

Let's say that we did find a will for the above Abraham Jaundrell proved 27 August 1740 in which he names his son Thomas, Thomas's son Samuel and Thomas's daughter Petronella.

Special note: To develop the rest of this pedigree we could follow the same pattern that we have followed thus far but it's time to introduce two more sources not previously mentioned in this whole exercise.

For the Pontesbury / Pitchford area there happens to be excellent MANOR COURT ROLLS and in actual Jaundrell drell case on which the author worked in this area, it was possible to take the Jaundrell pedigree back to 1500 through the combined use of manor court rolls, probate records, church records and burgess rolls (see below). Without the use of only one of these sources it would not have been possible. Each source had its weakness and gaps, but in each generation another source came through with the little bit of key information.

NORWELL

Without going into a lengthy explanation of Manor Court Rolls, your ancestors in many parts of England lived on manors, areas owned by manorial lords. The business of working the manorial land was a matter of record. Regular courts were held, where the business of running the manor, transferring land, etc., were recorded, making a source valuable to genealogical research. The records are widely scattered, their whereabouts varying from county to county. The most up to date listing of their present whereabouts is maintained by the Historical Manuscripts Commission whose offices are at Quality House, Quality Court, Chancery Lane, London WC2A 1 HP, England.

The other new source to be introduced at this point is the record kept of apprentices and freemen. In some counties freemen are referred to as burgesses. In our initial study of Shropshire you may recall that we discovered that Burgess Rolls for Shropshire are in print.

When an apprentice had served his time, usually seven years, he passed out as a journeyman, often becoming a freeman of the city. This meant that he had the right to vote, a right confined to only a few people in those days. The records are valuable in that the place of birth and name of father are often given.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the printed Shrewsbury Burgess Rolls especially for reference to our Abraham Jaundrell who had children at Pitchford back to 1693.

2. Manor court rolls for manors in the parishes of Pitchford and Pontesbury for appropriate period to involve this Abraham and earlier generations.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. An interesting entry reads:

Thomas Jaundrell of Little Hanwood son of Abraham and descended from the above John, 1721.

Interpreted, this means that Thomas was a man who looked after cattle and was sworn (made a freeman or burgess) in 1721. The minimum age to become a freeman was 21 so he would have been born about 1700-01 which fits our Thomas son of Abraham christened in 1703 at Pitchford but whom we know later moved to Pontesbury, of which Little Hanwood is a part. The "above John" refers to an earlier entry in the Burgess Rolls:

John son of Rowland Jaundrell, husbandman of Pulverbach sworn 1551.

Pulverbach is Church Pulverbach, a parish near Pontesbury and Pitchford. As mentioned earlier, with proof, such as this movement from one parish to another, and since our Abraham is shown christened at Pontesbury even though he lived at Pitchford when he was having his children, it was possible to extend this line back to 1500. Attention is drawn to the fact that before 1732, manor court rolls are usually written in Latin and are not indexed, making searches in them time consuming. When a pedigree gets back into the sixteenth and seventeenth century as this one does and it appears to have ended, what is the final search that could be made? Rather than ask for possible research action, let's get straight to the point. There are many printed and other collections of pedigrees that can be searched through books that have been printed that index the surname and say where the pedigree is to be found.

Even before such a check and assuming you are near a good genealogical or city library, search the card catalog for family histories or other sources that relate to the surname you are working on.

Here are the other guides, all of which are available in Salt Lake City, with some, if not all, available in other large libraries:

1. Records and Collections at the College of Arms, London by Sir Anthony Wagner

2. The Genealogists Guide by George W. Marshall (1903 edition reprinted 1967)

3. A Genealogical Guide by John B. Whitmore (1953 is best edition) Also printed as volumes 99, 101, 102 and 104 of the Harleian Society of London publications.

Items 2 and 3 attempt to index all visitation and other pedigrees appearing in English books up to the year of the printing of the index. Others of use are:

1. A Select Bibliography of English Genealogy by H. G. Harrison (1937)

2. Index to the Pedigrees and Arms Contained in the Herald's Visitations and other Manuscripts in the British Museum (now the British Library) printed in 1849.

An example from Marshall's Guide, perhaps the most popular on the list, follows: (items in parenthesis are to clarify the entry for you)

JENKINSON. Harleian Society (vol)i(page)52. Visitation of Oxfordshire, 1634(page)23 Visitation of Norfolk, published by Norfolk Archaeological Society,(vol)ii(page)94. See JENKINSON.

No reference appeared in these indexes to the surname Jaundrell so it appears that after having used the named sources, this is perhaps as far as the line can be taken in existing records.

Emphasis On English Research

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature contains material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

Now let's take a look at another ancestral line and demonstrate through this hypothetical pedigree how other sources can be of value in genealogical research. How much do we know about CAROLINE PERRIN?

She married 4 June 1780 age 23 by license at Rugby, Warwickshire to John Thompson. They had children christened at Rugby in 1782, 1785, 1789 then moved to Hillmorton in the same county and had children christened there in 1792 and 1795. Searches for the surname Thompson in both parishes extended to 1815 without finding anything else pertinent to this family.

What searches should be made now to find out more about Caroline Perrin, her brothers and sisters and her ancestry?

Possible Research Action

1. Search the Warwickshire IGI for Caroline's birth or christening at least 1755-1765.

2. Search the family group record archives in Salt Lake City for record of her as a child.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. Both of these suggested actions are premature although #1 will have to be done sometime soon. As we do not know Caroline's parents names yet, to search the archives as suggested in #2 is premature. Contrary to what you might think, the surname Perrin is fairly common in this area.

So think carefully. Isn't there something better than this that can be done? As a clue, keep in mind that Caroline might have died after 1815 (when our earlier searches ended) and that parish register burials after 1812 usually give an age at death.

But, you say, we already have a calculated year of birth for her because she was 23 years old when she married. Ages in marriage allegations cannot always be relied upon, so a 'second opinion' as it were, would be useful.

Possible Research Action

1. Search Hillmorton burial registers 1816 onwards for the burial of Caroline Thompson. If the church record was not available in Salt Lake City, it would be wise to have the search made in stages, say 1816-1830 for the first stage. You can always tell the record searcher to stop the search when the right entry has been found.

2. If copies of tombstone inscriptions are readily available for Hillmorton they could also be searched. It is difficult to get people to make such searches on site.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. Always place great importance on the use of burial registers after 1812 when it is right for the pedigree. In this instance, Hillmorton church records disclosed that Caroline Thompson was buried 2 March 1817 age 60.

2. There are no tombstone inscriptions for Hillmorton in the Salt Lake City library. The Society of Genealogists in London has an excellent collection and local family history societies are doing much work in this area.

Now we can see that both ages at a given date point to the year 1757 as the calculated year of birth for Caroline Perrin. What shall we do next?

Possible Research Action

1. Search the IGI for Warwickshire for the christening or birth of Caroline Perrin born about 1757. According to the Vital Records Listing, both Rugby and Hillmorton are in the IGI for the necessary periods.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. There is no Caroline Perrin in this IGI or in counties nearest to the key parishes.

What can have gone wrong? Many of the parishes adjoining Hillmorton and Rugby are in the IGI. Some others are not. Should we search these other parishes for a likely Caroline christening? No. Instead, let's present another golden rule, another standard procedure, one that pays off so much of the time. Think. What Perrin entries are there in Hillmorton and Rugby church records about the time our Caroline was born. Let's look at selected entries from Rugby 1740-1780.

30 June 1748 John Perrin and Caroline Blackwell married.

2 Feb 1750 John son of John and Caroline Perrin chr.

6 Aug 1753 Mary dau of John and Caroline Perrin chr.

7 Nov 1760 Henry son of John Caroline Perrin chr 8 Nov 1760 bur.

6 Aug 1778 Mary Perrin and Samuel Whitaker married.

4 Jun 1780 John Thompson and Caroline Perrin married by lic.

Possible Research Action

1. Search for Perrin and Blackwell wills in the appropriate local probate court say 1748-1780.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. There is nothing wrong with this procedure. The local court, determined through a topographical dictionary or from Smith's Genealogical Gazetteer of England or from the Institute of Heraldic and Genealogical Studies county map is the Episcopal Consistory Court of the diocese of Lichfield. Unfortunately, nothing of value was found.

Post Office Box 117
Ossian, Indiana 46777

Think harder. Could we play on the given name Caroline a little more? It is unusual. What other church record entries at Rugby are there about this same time period with the given name Caroline in them? Here they are:

21 Aug 1740 John Blackwell and Caroline Mee married.

6 Dec 1742 Benjamin son of John and Caroline Blackwell buried.

20 Feb 1743 Hannah dau of John and Caroline Blackwell chr.

24 Nov 1746 John Blackwell bur

Now think very very hard. Do these entries along with the Perrin entries previously listed, tell any story? Yes, they do tell a story, riddled with golden rules. Here are the golden rules:

1. Marriages before 1754 rarely indicate marital status such as widow or widower.

2. Where a marriage takes place before Lord Hardwicke's Marriage Act of 1754, are there children of the stated surname of the mother, with a man of that surname dying just before the marriage.

In our Perrin problem, yes, there is. John Blackwell and his Caroline Mee married in 1740 and had two children after which the father John Blackwell died in 1746 leaving the widow Caroline free to marry again in 1748, she being young enough to have another family. How would you go about strengthening this supposition?

Possible Research Action

1. See if there are any likely MEE wills proved from Rugby.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. In the local Lichfield Consistory Court there is a will of a John Mee proved from Rugby 15 June 1793 in which he names:

... my nieces Mary Whitaker and Caroline Thompson, children of my sister Caroline

So there is the proof for the supposition. Proof is not always possible but if the surname is not common a strong case of circumstantial evidence can be made. Another approach to this problem is to read every will proved from Rugby for a chosen number of likely years REGARDLESS OF THE SURNAME OF THE TESTATOR. This is often successful, though a time-consuming approach. In this particular case, the John Mee will would have been discovered. Because of the work involved, this has to be considered a 'last ditch effort'.

For exercise and in case you have not fully understood the procedures used, prepare family group records on these Perrin and Mee families.

Going back to work on another of the ancestral lines, let's look at the possibility of finding more about Mary Gurney and her ancestry. What do we know about her at present?

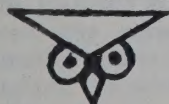

She married William Arnold 6 November 1779 at Little Gransden in Cambridgeshire, had children christened at Hatley Cockayne, Bedfordshire and was buried there 1 January 1820 age 65. She was therefore, by simple calculation, born about 1755, using the age at burial as a guide.

Please keep in mind that these are hypothetical exercises but using real places, surnames appropriate to the area and in some cases, parts of actual examples. Before getting into the actual Gurney exercise, let's say a few words about ages given in death records, burial records, census returns, tombstone inscriptions and the like. These are always to be used with caution, especially as a person gets older. After all, it is not the person who died who gave the age but someone else. How well did the person stating the age know the person whose age is being given? For that matter, how well does a person in those days, know his or her own age? Even though they were present at their own infant baptism, it is not an event that they can recall. When an age is given in a census return, who gave that age? Probably not the person whose pedigree you are working on. So use calculated years of birth with caution. Test them with other ages at specific events. It is sometimes possible to find an age at marriage, an age in census returns, an age at death or burial and an age on a tombstone. All of these ages will often disagree with each other. Sometimes it is possible to reason that the age at the earliest event is most likely to be correct but this 'ain't necessarily so. Marriage certificates may say 'age 21' and may actually mean 'age 21 and upwards' (which could be age 40 or any age over 21). Marriage bonds and allegations may say 'age 21' or some other standard age common to that ecclesiastical registry, 23 for example. In the latter case, take a look at other licenses being issued by that court to see if there is a pattern of standard recording. Of course, if the age is given as '40' then it can be readily said that the court was not using a 'standard' age in that instance.

Furthermore, when you have determined a calculated year of birth, look at it and see if it is responsible with all the other known facts about that person. Especially in the case of a female, does it fit the date of the last known child? That is, is the date of birth of the last known child within the realm of possibility. If the last known child is born 60 years after the calculated year of birth of the mother, then something is wrong. Usually a woman has stopped child bearing at the age of 50 although there are exceptions to this rule. Are you sure you have correctly attributed the children to the correct parents? Could there have been another couple of the same names who started having children about the time your ancestral couple stopped having children?

Think of all the possibilities and reason out the situation. Try your best to prove that this is not your ancestral family or your ancestral connection.

Now let's get to Mary Gurney whom we have said was born about 1755 by simple calculation. This birth year does not conflict with her marriage or with the year of birth of her last child. How should we begin?

Possible Research Action

1. Use the International Genealogical Index (IGI) for her birth or christening, choosing county Bedford.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. This is a little premature. I need to draw your attention to a point I haven't brought up for some time but which should come now just as natural as breathing. That is to study the geographic area of the problem. You would find that:

a. The two parishes in which Mary Gurney lived straddle the borders of Bedfordshire and Cambridgeshire.

b. The IGI for Bedfordshire gives almost complete coverage of births and christenings in the county while that for Cambridgeshire gives very little, as of the time of writing. This will change as the years go by.

c. The two counties have separate probate and marriage license jurisdictions.

d. Both counties are predominantly agricultural in nature.

e. Cambridgeshire has a Boyd's marriage index which covers certain periods of years in almost every parish in the county.

f. By glancing at various surname indexes, the surname Gurney is reasonably common and scattered throughout the area.

Let's try again.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the IGI for Beds. and Cambs., searching at least 1743-1763 for Mary Gurney births and christenings.

2. Map the area with emphasis on all parishes within 12 miles of the two key parishes in which Mary Gurney lived.

3. Circle on the map those parishes that are in the IGI for the vital period. This is done by using the Parish and Vital Records Listing that matches the year of the IGI you used.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. The IGI searches show that in Blunham, Beds., there is a christening of a Mary daughter of William and Mary Gurney 1 December 1754. How far away is Blunham (Blunham with Mogerhanger) from the key parishes? Six miles.

How close is the year of christening to the calculated year of birth of our Mary Gurney? Almost on the nose.

2. A map of the area shows that many parishes in Cambridgeshire considered vital to the problem have not been covered by the IGI search.

Possible Research Action

1. Since the 1754 is right on the nose and Blunham is only 6 miles away from the key Mary Gurney parishes, develop the pedigree of her parents William and Mary Gurney.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. A very bad decision. Just because the year is so close does not always mean this is the one. How do you know that this Mary did not die in infancy? How do you know she did not marry in Blunham?

2. Many parishes in Cambridgeshire are not yet searched, some of them just as close to Little Gransden and Hatley Cockayne as is Blunham. We could very well find other possibilities there.

3. There is another key procedure to which I should draw your attention, common sense and obvious to some but perhaps not to others. Suppose there are Gurney entries in the two key parishes about the time our Mary would have been born. Could not Mary have belonged to one of those families whose christening has been missed or omitted or recorded in another parish? If this is the case, it would be dangerous to accept a christening in another parish unless there were also children of that same parentage in one of the key parishes.

Possible Research Action

1. Search Blunham to try to bury off or marry off the Mary Gurney christened there in 1754.

2. Begin a search of the Cambridgeshire parishes nearest to the border and to Little Gransden for the key period. If this has to be done by expensive overseas contact, stop when each likely entry is found and test it by the usual methods.

3. Search in Little Gransden and Hatley Cockayne show no Gurney families at the time our Mary would have been born.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. Blunham registers show that on 6 August 1755 a Mary Gurney infant was buried. A study of Gurney entries for this time period indicated that this Mary must be the one christened in 1754 and considered as a likely pedigree connection. Now it can be eliminated.

2. After searching the registers of several Cambridgeshire parishes, a likely christening for Mary was found at Gamlingay 14 Sept 1756 daughter of Benjamin and Joan Gurney.

Possible Research Action

1. Test the Gamlingay christening

NORWELL
Post Office Box 117
Ossian, Indiana 46777

entry by seeing if you can bury off or marry off the Mary Gurney christening. Search for a likely will that would show this Mary in her married surname if you cannot eliminate her by other means.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. This Mary Gurney christened at Gamlingay in 1756 cannot be married off or buried off at Gamlingay. Incidentally, Gamlingay is only three miles away from Little Gransden.

2. A search of the records of the local probate courts showed that in the Episcopal Consistory Court of the Bishop of Ely (Ely is in Cambridgeshire and the center of the diocese), Benjamin father of the above Mary made a will dated 6 December 1791 in which he named:

daughter Mary ARNOLD

daughter Dorothy TIMPSON

Review - Here we have the clincher. Mary Gurney wife of William Arnold is the daughter of Benjamin and Joan Gurney. Note that no wife Joan is named in the will. She is probably dead by this time. A very important thing to remember here is that we did not search ALL the Cambridgeshire parishes that were within 12 miles of Little Gransden before beginning the testing. This considerable time and effort was saved. Of course, in other instances we could have found several likely Mary Gurney christenings without wills coming to our aid. Sometimes a pedigree extension is blocked because of this and sometimes there are ways around the road block. Let's go on.

Possible Research Action

1. Extend the search in Gamlingay for Gurney entries. For the time being let's search 1740-1779 and see what we come up with. If the records were readily accessible it would be no trouble to search a much wider period.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. Selected Gurney entries from Gamlingay, Cambs. parish registers 1740-1779:

chr 2 - 1748 Joan dau of Benjamin and Joan chr 16 Jan 1750 Joan dau of Benjamin and Joan chr 22 Jun 1752 John son of Benj. and Joan chr 14 Sept 1756 Mary dau of Benjamin and Joan

Note that no burials or marriages are found in connection with this family, yet the will shows another child Dorothy. It is very common (and also disturbing) to find children named in a will whose christening cannot be found.

In the extracts you will note that the month on one entry was not decipherable. Sometimes the month will be left blank. This means that the minister or parish clerk made the entry in the register months later and found that in the note he made at the time of the event, he had neglected to record the month. You should be very much aware that the recordings you see were often made QUITE SOME TIME after the event took place.

Another interesting point about this family. Note that there are two Joan's christened. Often the first Joan died and the second was named after it but this is not always true. Neither one is named in their father's will so both may have died before the will was made. Burials sometimes are recorded in a neighboring parish or simply cannot be found at all.

To complete this family group what are the next logical steps we should take?

Possible Research Action

1. Search for the marriage of Benjamin Gurney to his wife Joan always keeping in mind also that there could have been earlier children born and christened in another nearby parish. To do this, first search the IGI for Bedfordshire and Cambridgeshire as being quick, easy and economical.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. There is nothing wrong with the procedure but it brought negative results. Let's try again.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the original marriage record for full details in the marriage entry above.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. Little Gransden parish registers show that on 30 May 1746 Benjamin Gurney married Joan Bonnick. No further information is given.

The Gurney line could be followed further by using the research techniques already demonstrated. Since there is something startling to take place on the Bonnick line, let's move over to it and accept the challenge.

Emphasis on English Research

By Frank Smith

Frank Smith, author and co-author of many genealogical textbooks, is now in his thirty-seventh year as a professional genealogist, specializing in research on English pedigrees. This feature contains material that will be helpful in pursuing research in English records. In fact, much of the material presented will be useful as general principles for research in any country.

Now remember that we are going to try to develop the pedigree of Joan Bonnick who married at Little Gransden in Cambridgeshire 30 May 1746. Her children were christened at Gamlingay in the same county. You will accumulate some notes about these two places as has recommended on earlier occasions. Study the contours of the land, the flow of the nearby rivers, the direction of the main roads as well as principal occupations and existence of records of use in the course of research. Then there are county boundaries to consider. Record keeping, record preservation, record availability can vary from county to county. There are also ecclesiastical jurisdictions to consider which affect the recording of probate records, marriage allegations and marriage bonds. Armed with this background, it is noted that Gamlingay and Little Gransden are very close to the Bedfordshire and Huntingdonshire borders. Thus, three counties could be involved all under different ecclesiastical jurisdictions.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the IGI for all three counties, assuming Joan would have been born 1710-1730.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. It is certainly good practice to make a search of the IGI fairly early in the research procedure but in this instance I would say - too soon!

Let's look at some of the conditions involved in searching for the ancestry of a female before Lord Hardwicke's Marriage Act of 1754.

1. How many marriages were second marriages?

2. Is marital status given in church records before 1755?

In answer to item #1, about 7% of females marrying were second marriages. In answer to item #2, marital status is NOT usually given before 1755. Lord Hardwicke's Marriage Act called for marriage registers in a printed format. This format called for the status of the bride and groom (bachelor, spinster, etc.) even though it was often not filled in.

Now suppose that Joan Bonnick was one of the 7% who had previously been Married, her husband died (divorces were rare and for the wealthy only), then she would be married as Joan Bonnick not Joan the widow of . . . Bonnick. How to know or suspect this?

Well, first it is helpful if you have an unusual name like Bonnick to work with. Next, you need to study Bonnick entries from the key parishes and perhaps others nearby for a period of years right up to the year she married Benjamin Gurney. Searching from 1746 (her year of marriage) back to say 1700 would be good. Her last known child was christened in 1756 so she should normally have been born after 1706. As a result of this planning, here is what was found at Little Gransden:

30 April 1741 Joan Bonnick married to Joan Smith by license

9 March 1743 Henry son of John and Joan Bonnick chr

10 June 1745 John Bonnick bur

This is now worth looking into. Could the widow Joan Bonnick have married a second time the following year? Sometimes letters of administration or wills can be found for the deceased husband, the court indicating that the widow had married again. Such finds are rare, however, and more often, a decision has to be made on circumstantial evidence and a lack of conflicting evidence. In this instance, the surname proved to be uncommon and there was no conflicting evidence in the area. Therefore, the assumption was made that this was our Joan. To extend the line of Joan Smith, not Bonnick, is now our task. What do we know about her?

She married by license at Little Gransden, Cambridgeshire 30 April 1741. Gamlingay, in the same county, also features in her life as a place of residence.

Possible Research Action

1. Search the IGI for Beds., Cambs., and Hunts., for Joan's christening, say, 1705-1725.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. No, wrong again! Again, this is premature. The key to the next logical step lies in her marriage entry. She is married BY LICENSE which means that there may still be in existence a marriage bond and a marriage allegation which generated the permission to marry by this special license. Little Gransden is in the diocese of Ely and the bishop of that diocese granted marriage licenses.

Possible Research Action

1. The marriage bonds and allegations of the diocese of Ely need searching for April 1741. If the record of Joan Smith's marriage license is not found here, it might have been granted by the archdeacon of Bedford or by the archdeacon of Huntingdon, both of whom were empowered by their respective bishops to grant such licenses. For a detailed explanation of this procedure, the jurisdictions and the whereabouts of the records, please see volume 2 of Genealogical Research in England and Wales.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. The records of the diocese of Ely show that on 30 April 1741 John Bonnick of Little Gransden was granted a license to marry Joan Smith with the consent of her father, Henry Smith, a baker.

Review

Marriage bonds and allegations vary in their genealogical content. This time, no ages are given but it can be safely assumed that Joan Smith was younger than the legal age of 21. We know her father is named Henry Smith and that his occupation is baker.

Possible Research Action

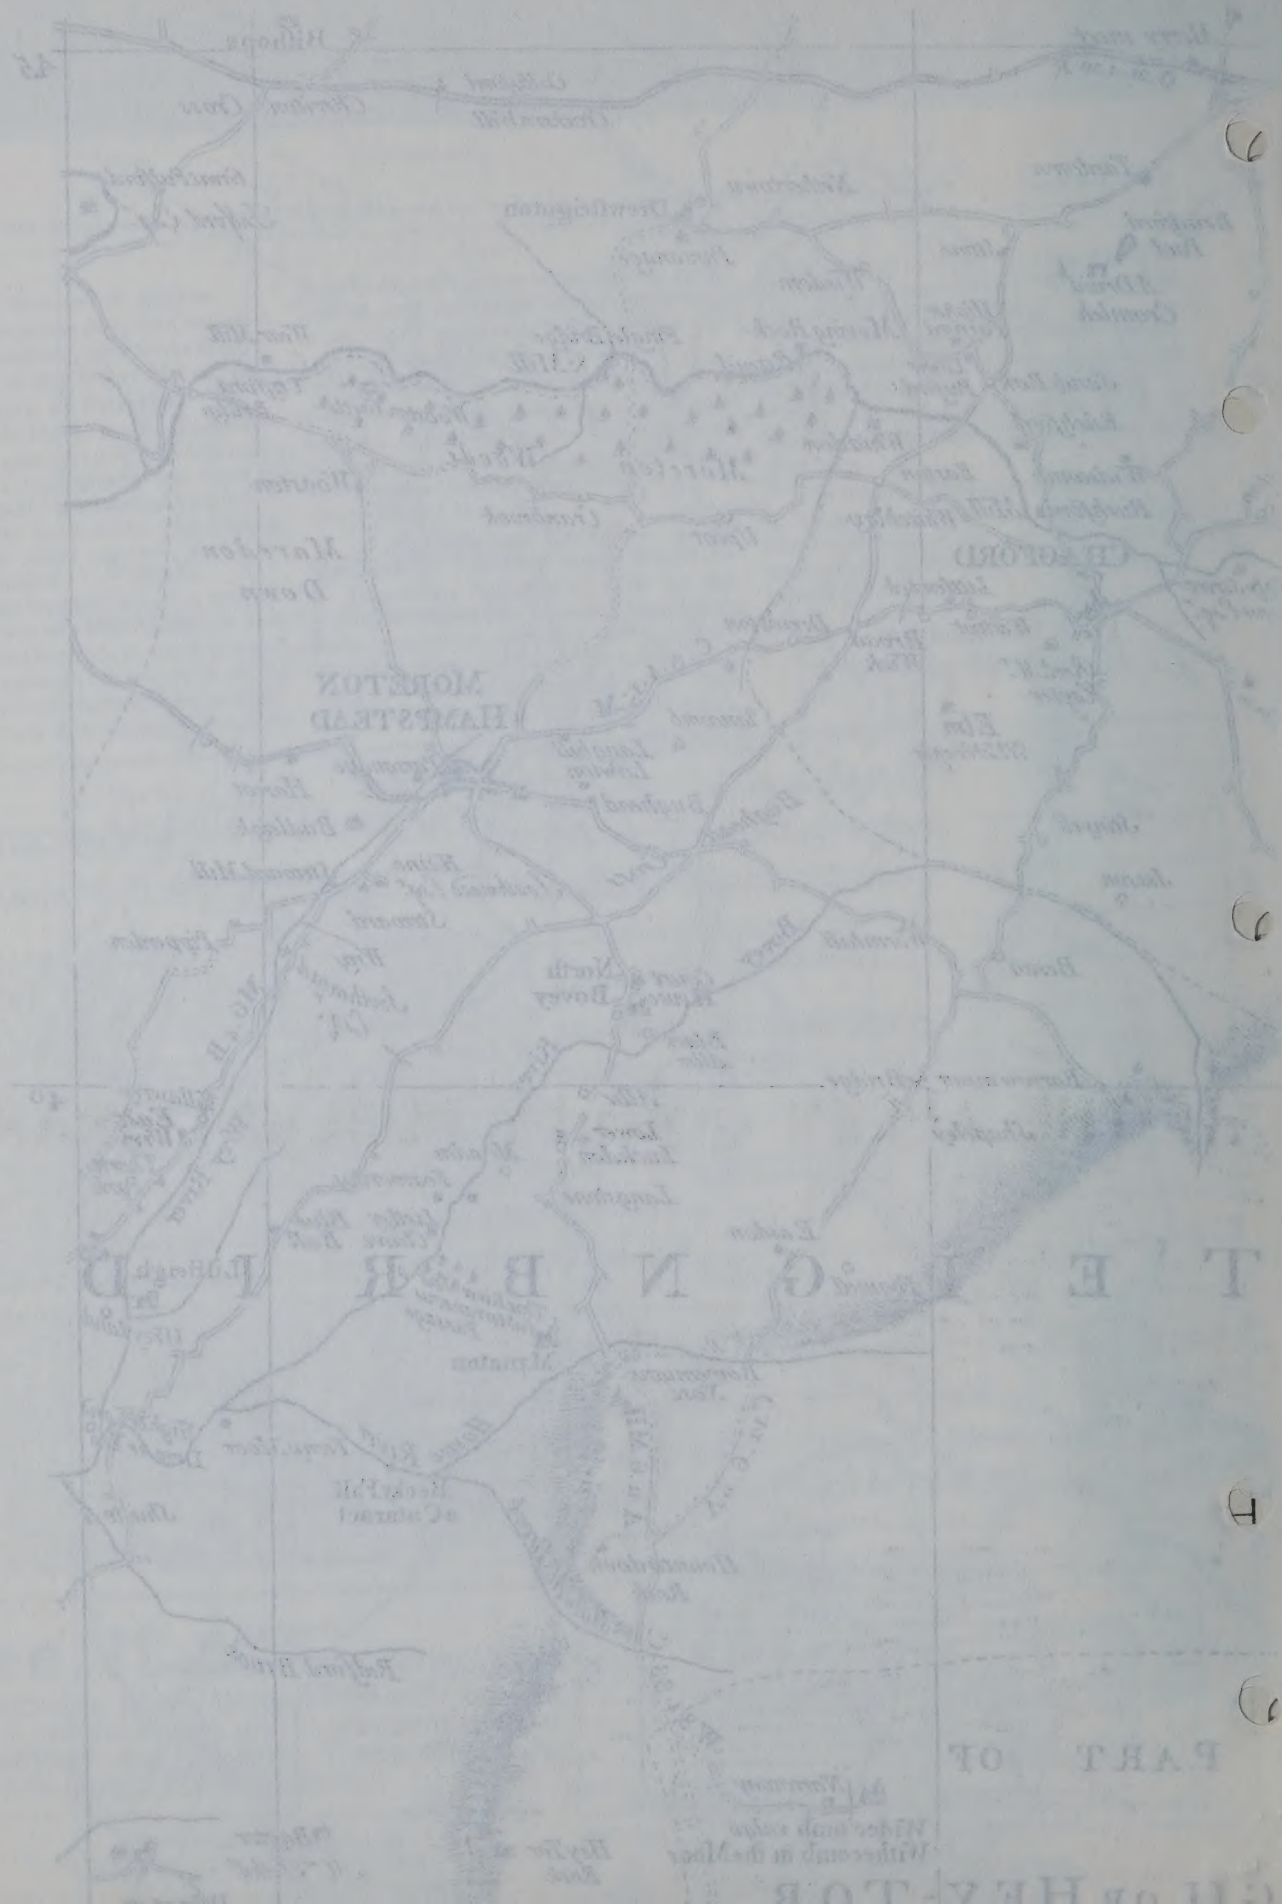

1. Search the IGI of Beds., Cambs., and Hunts., for the christening of Joan, daughter of Henry Smith after 1721.

Critique of Possible Research Action and Results

1. No likely entry was found for Joan in all three counties. A quick study of the Vital Records Listing which lists which parishes and periods have been completely extracted for christenings and marriages shows that while Bedfordshire is almost completely covered, very little is contained for the other two counties. This is just another example of how conditions vary from county to county. However, as the years go by, the IGI for adjoining counties will naturally become more complete.

AVAILABILITY OF THE RECORDS

The important records from Denmark's National Archives (Rigsarkivet); the four Regional Archives (Landsarkiver) of Copenhagen, Odense, Viborg, and Aabenraa; the military archives; and the city archives (Raadstuearkiver) have been microfilmed by the Genealogical Society and are available for searching in the Genealogical Society Library, 107 South Main, Salt Lake City, Utah 84111, or the microfilms may be used at the Branch Libraries of the Genealogical Society on a rental basis.

There are other archives and libraries in Denmark that furnish valuable information for the Danish genealogical researcher as: The Royal Library (contains copies of all records printed in Denmark and many manuscript records); Danes Worldwide Archives (which has a National Collection of books and documents of Migrational History); and Folkeregister (1924 to present).

ENGLAND

WRITE LETTERS FIRST

You can write letters to find relatives who have genealogy, advertise in newspapers, write to old residents, to postmasters, to city and county officials, to dealers in genealogical books, to names from directories, just the same in England as in America. If you expect to send a number of letters, write to some postmaster and send a money order for some stamps. Because of changing rates we suggest you ask for stamps in denominations for the class of mail you desire your letters to be returned by air mail or surface mail. You can then send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your letter to help get a reply. Or for 22 cents you can buy from your postmaster an International Reply Coupon which can be exchanged in England or any other country for a stamp to pay postage on the answer to your letter.

One of the most important phases of good genealogical research is to know what records are available for the area you are searching; also to know what period of time they cover and how to use them. The Genealogical Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has published several series of research papers designed to aid the researcher and save many hours of precious time in deciding these important questions. Series A, No. 1, "Major Genealogical Sources in England and Wales" lists 29 types of records, the periods they cover, type of information given and their availability. Other general papers for England are: Series A, No. 5, "Population Movements in England and Wales by Canals and Navigable Rivers"; Series A, No. 49, "English-Welsh Genealogical Research Procedures - Flow Chart"; Series A, No. 50, "The Social, Economic, Religious and Historical Background of England As It Affects Genealogical Research"; Series A, No. 51, "Population Movements in England and Wales during the Industrial Revolution." Each of the above will give you a background that will aid you as you search the records for your English ancestors. These research papers may be purchased from the Church Distribution Center, 33 Richards Street, Salt Lake, City, Utah 84101.

Another must for researchers in England is a three volume work "Genealogical Research in England and Wales" by David E. Gardner and Frank Smith. Volume I was published in 1956, volume II in 1959, and volume III in 1964 by Bookcraft, Inc., Salt Lake City, Utah. They may also be purchased from The Everton Publishers, Logan, Utah 84321. The authors have been engaged in professional genealogical work for many years. Both were born in England and handled and searched countless parish and archive records in practically every county in England before coming to America to continue their genealogical careers.

SEARCHING PARISH REGISTERS

Parish registers, which are the records of the Church of England, are valuable sources of genealogical information. They do not contain the records of Methodists, Quakers, etc. If your ancestors belonged to those religions the records of their churches must be searched for the desired information. These churches are referred to as nonconformists and their records as non-parochial registers.

A few parish registers go back as far as 1538, but most of them commence at a later date. Between 1538 and 1 July 1837 they are the principal sources of records of births, deaths, and marriages of every class of people in England. "Burke's Key to the Ancient Parish Registers of England and Wales," by Authur M. Burke, London 1908, lists alphabetically the names of the parishes in England and Wales, giving also the name of the county and the dates of registration. It is not unusual to find gaps in the records - periods when no registrations were made or when they have been lost. Check each register to see if it covers completely the period you are interested in.

If you know the birthplace of your ancestor you can often find his parents and the date of his birth and marriage by searching the parish registers. The record of births or christenings gives only the given name of the mother but by searching the marriage record her surname can often be found. The burial record also gives information that is valuable. There are many thousands of parish registers, only a few of which have been printed or microfilmed.

Parishes may be divided into townships. A small parish may not have a township. A town may have several churches. To be a city in England there must be a cathedral.

THE CENSUS OF ENGLAND AND WALES

For nearly a hundred and fifty years the census has been taken each ten years. The only ones available for genealogical research are those of 1841, 1851 and 1861.

Prior to that time census enumerators listed only the number of people living at a given address. The census of 1841 tells names of family members, the ages to the nearest five years but does not tell the exact place of birth. The census of 1851 gives the names of each member of the family, their relationship to the head of the family, the occupation of each, the age and the parish where born. It is necessary that the approximate address be known before a search can begin.

Information from the 1871 census and later enumerations are not open to the public or their agents. They contain practically the same information as the 1851 and 1861 censuses. It is hoped that the 1871 census will be made available sometime this year. (1971) Upon written application the Register General may make a search for a particular family but it is necessary to give him the precise address, the surname of the person or persons residing there and also signed statement that the information from the census will not be used for litigation. Also state in your letter that it is for genealogical purposes; your relationship to those who might be named in the record; and whether you know of others more closely or equally related to them. Ask for fees for census research. Information from the 1911 and later censuses is not available for genealogy.

The following is the address of the office in charge of the census, Public Record Office, Chancery Lane, W. C. 2, London, England. They may suggest a professional genealogist if you enclose an International Reply Coupon which you may buy for 22 cents at your post office.

ENGLAND VITAL STATISTICS

Previous to 1837 the task of keeping a record of vital statistics of England and Wales was left almost entirely to the churches. Beginning on the first day of July, 1837, the government has kept a record of births, deaths and marriages. These records have been gathered in one office and indexed so that anyone born in England or Wales, knowing the date of his birth, can for a small fee obtain a birth certificate, etc. To obtain information from this record write to the Register of Births, Marriages and Death, Somerset House, London, England. Thus if we know the full name of a person and his exact age but do not know his parents or birthplace, the birth certificate will give this information. Inquire as to the fee required.

If the date is near 1851, you can refer to the census and find the birthplace of the parents and thus open the way for searching the parish register. If you do not know the exact name and date of birth it will be hard to get information from the record.

NON-PAROCHIAL OR NONCONFORMIST REGISTERS

In England and Wales each church kept its own records. Those who did not belong to the Episcopal Church (Church of England) did not have their names mentioned in the parish registers. The registers of the Nonconformists or Dissenters which included the Methodists, Baptists, Quakers, Presbyterians and some smaller groups were all, as far as possible up to 1837, gathered up and deposited in Public Records Office, Chancery Lane, W. C. 2, London. Searches may be made there in person or you may write to them for fees and other regulations if you desire to have searches made for you. If you write to them you should give a description of the register as well as the name and location of the chapel. For example, Register of births, from the Baptist Chapel in Dereham, Norfolk, England. Also give the approximate date. Fees vary -- we suggest you ask what charges will be asked for each separate search you request. If your ancestor lived in Dereham and you wish to try the other churches you can send and have the Baptist record searched, if that fails you may try the Quakers, etc. There will be a separate charge for each search. The Genealogical Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Salt Lake City, Utah 84111, has copies of microfilms of all the non-parochial registers deposited in the Public Records Office.

WILLS IN ENGLAND

Wills are the backbone of genealogical research in England. The information they give us is most reliable, and you can often make up several family group sheets from one will. So far as telling who belongs to which family they are far better than the parish register. After you have examined a will it is well to search a parish register to fill in the dates and complete the record.

Probate records, of which wills are a part, are among the most neglected sources for direct evidence of relationships because of the many variations in the ecclesiastical jurisdictions which governed the probating of wills prior to 1858. To complete a thorough examination of the probate records of a certain area, it is necessary to have a guide to the various probate jurisdictions and the lines of authority followed by the established Church of England. This is important to insure that probate searches will cover the probate records most likely to contain information concerning ancestors. To assist you in this highly important, but at times frustrating, task The Genealogical Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints have prepared in their Research Paper Series the "Pre-1858 English Probate Jurisdictions" for each county or shire in England and Wales. Each number is a separate paper and they are all in the Series A:7, Bedfordshire; 8, Berkshire; 9, London; 10, Cambridgeshire; 11, Buckinghamshire; 12, Huntingdonshire; 13, Lincolnshire; 14, Oxfordshire; 15, Northamptonshire; 16, Wiltshire; 17, Hertfordshire; 18, Norfolk; 19, Kent; 20, Suffolk; 21, Durham; 22, Cheshire; 23, Lancashire; 24, Nottinghamshire; 25, Derbyshire; 26, Westmoreland; 27, Worcestershire; 28, Staffordshire; 29, Warwickshire; 30, Hampshire; 31, Northumberland; 32, Cumberland; 33, Gloucestershire; 34, Rutlandshire; 35, Cornwall; 36, Devonshire; 37, Dorset; 38, Middlesex; 39, Yorkshire; 40, Essex. As with the other research papers mentioned previously in this article, these may also be purchased from the Church Distribution Center, 33 Richards Street, Salt Lake City, Utah 84101. Notice: Warning Concerning Copyright Restrictions

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if, in its judgment, fulfillment of the order would involve violation of copyright law.

Use of Photoduplicated Material

Photocopying is done by the library under the following conditions:

1. The library will generally make photoduplicates of materials in its collection available for research use in place of manual transcription. Certain restricted material cannot be copied. The library reserves the right to decline to make photoduplicates requested or to limit the number of copies.

2. Payment in advance is required. Make check or money order payable to Genealogical Department.

3. All reproductions are prepared on order and may not be returned for credit.

Notice: Warning Concerning Copyright Restrictions

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research. If a user makes a request for, or later uses a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if, in its judgment, fulfillment of the order would involve violation of copyright law.
